White Paper Stalls Harbor Plan

By HUBERT BEYER

Plans for the proposed $25,000,000 Victoria Wharf Street development have been stalled and may be scrapped.

"I think that under the present circumstances, the project will not become a reality," J. A. Reid, president of Reid Properties Ltd. who conceived the project, said from Vancouver Monday.

Reid told the Colonist in an interview that federal Finance Minister Edgar Benson's proposed white paper on taxation was responsible for the change of plans.

"We have examined the minister's proposals and we have come to the conclusion that the Reid Development will not go ahead if the so-called tax reforms are adopted by the Commons," he said.

Reid said some of the white paper proposals discouraged the inflow of foreign capital, especially American.

"As a result of this, Canada has become bad news for foreign investors and without foreign capital, there is no chance for the Reid Development in Victoria."

The $25,000,000 development, key to urban renewal on Wharf Street, was to have been started this summer.

Plans included a three-tower complex below Bastion Square. The hotel was to have 160 rooms in the 10 top storeys of a 24-floor tower. Other space was to be occupied by offices.

Two other towers were to contain 292 apartment units. The entire project was to be completed by the spring of 1972.

"The federal government must take responsibility for this decision," Reid said.

"They have created an unhealthy atmosphere for investors; the white paper means a death blow to this scheme."

Reid said Prime Minister Trudeau was misusing his mandate to destroy economic development.

"I think he should go back to the people and ask them if that's what they want him to do," he said.

Reid said difficulties arising from negotiations with Ocean Cement Ltd., which would have to move its present facilities had been overcome.

"These negotiations were a problem at one time, but we've pretty well settled the matter now," he said.

Among other proposals, the Benson white paper calls for:

- Canada's first capital gains tax.
- Abolition of the three-year tax-free period for min-

Anti-Viet Protests Renewed

PHNOM PENH (AP) — Cambodian youths renewed their demands Monday for the withdrawal of North Vietnamese and Viet Cong guerrilla troops from Cambodia. More than 20,000 of them marched before the National Assembly, denounced the Viet Cong in speeches, then dispersed quietly.

Cambodian troops armed with United States-made M-16 rifles stood by. Some of the youths carried signs reading, Viet Cong Go Home. One waved a poster showing Cambodian soldiers skewering Viet Cong on a giant bayonet.

★ ★ ★

There was one incident. A youth who assailed the nation's leader, Prince Norodom Sihanouk, was severely beaten by about a dozen students.

The demonstration followed the ransacking by youths last Wednesday of the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese embassies in Phnom Penh. After that, the Cambodian government set a deadline of dawn last Sunday for the withdrawal of all North Vietnamese and Viet Cong forces in Cambodia.

★ ★ ★

U.S. officials in South Vietnam said they saw no sign that the 40,000 to 60,000 Viet Cong or North Vietnamese had left their Cambodian sanctuaries, from which they had been launching or directing attacks against U.S. and South Vietnamese government troops. The Ho Chi Minh infiltration trail from North Vietnam runs through eastern Cambodia.

Members of the National Assembly met with representatives of North Vietnam for three hours to discuss Wednesday's rioting.

★ ★ ★

Sihanouk is still out of the country. He had been in France for medical treatment when the rioting broke out. He denounced the attacks on the two embassies but left Paris for Moscow to seek Soviet help in getting the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong to withdraw.

He lunched in the Kremlin with Soviet President Nikolai Podgorny and Premier Alexei Kosygin Monday.

SEATTLE (AP) — Actress Jane Fonda sued U.S. Defence Secretary Melvin Laird Monday for alleged government violation of her constitutional right and said her anti-war stand may cost her an academy award.

"There are some very powerful people in my profession who take an opposite political stand," she said. "I could lose the Oscar over this."

★ ★ ★

Miss Fonda has been nominated for best actress award for her role in the movie, They Shoot Horses, Don't They?

"In the past other actresses who took unpopular political stands have lost their chances for an Oscar," she said. "I hope it's not true — I hope things have changed."

Miss Fonda and her attorney, Mark Lane of New York, were thrown off two army posts in the Seattle area March 8 and warned not to return when they tried to talk with servicemen and demonstrating American Indians. Lane was a vice-presidential candidate with black civil rights activist Dick Gregory in the last presidential election.

The suit, filed for Miss Fonda and Lane by the American Civil Liberties Union, asked the U.S. district court to declare the army's actions unconstitutional and enjoin the army from enforcing its order against their re-entering Ft. Lawton and Ft. Lewis.

"If they rescind the order," Miss Fonda said, "the first thing I'll do is return to Fort Lewis."

U.S. Jet Decision Due

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — The state department will announce later this week whether the United States will supply more jet aircraft to Israel, the White House said Monday.

The White House disclosure, 15 days after the expiry of President Nixon's original deadline for announcing his decision on the Israeli request, came amid increasing belief that Israel will be turned down.

Israel is reported to have asked for two dozen or more supersonic Phantom F-4 fighter-bombers and 80 slower A-4 Skyhawks.

On the Middle East front an Israeli military spokesman said Israeli jets struck across the Suez canal twice Monday, engaging Egyptian interceptors in dogfights and shooting down a Soviet-built MiG-21.

The two air raids, both against central sectors of the Suez canal, came on the heels of two Israeli commando attacks inside Syrian territory for the first time since the June, 1967, war, it was reported.

In the first of the commando raids, shortly before midnight Sunday night, helicopter-borne troops destroyed a high-tension power pylon 12 miles northeast of Damascus, plunging the eastern sector of the Syrian capital into darkness.

In the second raid commandos blew up a bridge and two pillboxes six miles from Golan Heights.

B.C. should prohibit the transfer of any land titles in perpetuity to non-Canadian absentee owners, Robert Williams (NDP—Vancouver East) said Monday night.

He told the Legislature during the debate on the principle of the proposed new Land Act that the bill pays only lip service to the government's announced intention of discouraging foreign ownership of crown land.

★ ★ ★

Non-nationals can get around the proposed law by employing a "simple dodge" Williams said. All they need do is form a private B.C. company which can then apply for and receive title to lands in the province.

The NDP member said the Land Registry Act should be amended without delay to prevent all transfers of land in future if not retroactively as well, to non-national absentee owners except under a leasehold agreement.

★ ★ ★

Second reading was passed at midnight by a vote of 42 to 5 with the Liberal MLAs opposed.

Williams said the bill before the House was simply an updating of an old statute and will have to be rewritten in the near future to plug the loopholes in it.

He said it does not, as it should, require all crown land to be allocated by bid only. "This government which believes so fervently in the market place is unwilling to test the market when it should," the NDP member said.

He added it should place a limit on all tenure and fails to make any attempt to clean up the government's "messy, tarnished image" resulting from transfers of park land.

The government's land use committee, which Williams described as potentially a major reform in the use of land in B.C., is dealt with only in passing by the bill under the heading "miscellaneous."

Williams said the bill also leaves the director of lands too much discretion as the final arbiter of the highest and best use of crown land in the province. Williams added: "Since the director does not have the staff needed this, too, is only lip service."

The NDP member tried to move adjournment of the debate at 11:05 p.m., saying that this was a major piece of legislation which required full study by members. The motion was defeated by the government on a vote of 33 to 15 and the House continued to sit.

Tenant Bill Voted In

It's 'Cruel Hoax' But Step Ahead

An NDP member told the Legislature Monday night the government is guilty of "a cruel hoax" by suggesting landlords will be thwarted in any attempt to raise rent without at least a three-month notice.

Gordon Dowding (NDP—Burnaby-Edmonds) made the charge during the debate on the principle of the proposed new Landlord and Tenant Act which was later given unanimous approval.

Opposition members attacked a number of what they claimed were the bill's shortcomings but finally supported the measure on grounds that it was a big improvement over the present law.

Dowding said he checked and found the largest landlord organization in Vancouver, which rents 2,200 apartments, does so on a monthly contract basis. He said the bill would allow a landlord in such cases to give a tenant one-month notice, then raise the rent for the new occupant without having to wait the required three months.

"Landlords must not be allowed to get around the law — so it becomes in effect, a cruel hoax," Dowding said. was ordered by Speaker William Murray to withdraw the word hoax and did so, substituting the phrase "a cruel disappointment."

But Won't Turn Raise Down

McGeer Says Nay to Pay

Only Liberal leader Pat McGeer raised an objection to the second reading of a bill in the Legislature Monday which will raise MLAs' pay from $8,000 to $10,000 a year.

McGeer's speech was short and echoed his budget-day complaints that a pay raise for MLAs was not in line with calls for restraint from federal and provincial governments in their fight against inflation.

"When the call for restraint comes," said McGeer, "I took it seriously."

But McGeer said later he will not turn down the raise when it comes. He first said he was opposed when the raise was announced budget day, Feb. 6.

In the House he said his objection was a "personal" matter, and he was not followed by his four Liberal colleagues when a voice vote was taken approving the measure and registering McGeer's lone "no."

The raise comes in the form of amendments to the Constitution Act, which also provides for a change in the

All Players Numbered In $3,000,000 'Game'

REDWOOD CITY, Calif. (Reuters) — A judge asked trial lawyers to retire and put numbers on their backs when 40 lawyers representing 60 clients turned up in court here Monday to battle for a portion of a $6,000,000 will.

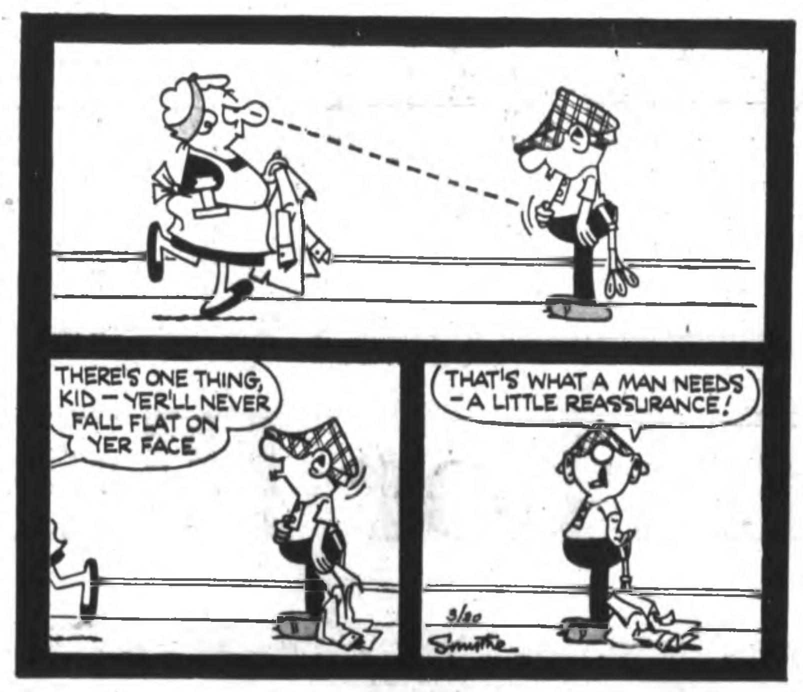

"You can't tell the players without a program," Judge James O'Keefe said, adding he hoped none of the lawyers would be offended by having to wear identifying placards.

The vast legal throng congregated in San Mateo County Superior Court for a hearing on the will of financier George Whittell, who left half of his fortune to "the society for the prevention of cruelty to animals local or national."

There is no national society in the United States and he did not specify a specific local society, prompting animal-loving organizers from all over America to claim the money.

The other half of the bequest went to the Defenders of Wild Life organization and the National Audubon Society, which were each specifically awarded one-quarter of the estate.

Ridiculous Stand, Says Peterson

NDP Holds Out Against Censorship

By IAN STREET
Colonist Legislature Reporter

The NDP opposed approval in principal given to a new Motion Picture Act by the B.C. Legislature Monday on grounds that there should be absolutely no censorship of movies.

Opposition leader David Barrett said his party approves the sections of the proposed legislation dealing with classification but is opposed to censorship because it usurps the rights and responsibilities of parents.

Attorney-General Leslie Peterson called the NDP stand "ridiculous" and said even the theatre operators are opposed to any easing of censorship in the province.

To do so, the operators said in a brief quoted by Peterson, would be "an open invitation to irresponsible film makers and distributors to plug B.C. with pornography which has no redeeming factor."

★ ★ ★

The attorney-general said the theatre operators don't want to police their own industry and added they were satisfied that the 20 films rejected last year by the B.C. censor had "little artistic worth."

Earlier, Peterson told the House while moving second reading of the bill that it represents a move from censorship to classification of films, while retaining for the office of the director of film classification the power to censor where it thinks such action is necessary.

By classification, he said, the office will make sure the public is "fully aware" of what is in films approved for showing in the province and leave it to individuals to decide whether they wish to see them or not.

★ ★ ★

Peterson said the government "can't be over-protective" because it recognizes that in many cases films which were previously shown on a restricted basis are now brought into the home by television.

The government is being "hypocritical," Barrett argued, by retaining censorship powers when TV brings "uncensored unclassified films into every home." He added it would remove the responsibility of parents to decide which films their children should see and weaken a family link which should be strengthened.

★ ★ ★

"I don't believe in raising children in cotton-batten," the NDP leader said.

"If we are to liberate their minds then we must let them see filth and good on the basis of personal scale put into the minds of our children by their parents. We must teach them how to make a choice, and act on it. To go further threatens the very fabric of the relationship between parent and child."

Barrie Clark (L—North Vancouver Seymour) said the party is opposed to censorship, but in favor of the bill because it would replace the existing "antiquated and unjust" legislation. He added it was "one-sided and unjust" to place so much emphasis in censorship and even classification of films on sex and obscenity and noted that in Denmark the censor only cuts violence from films.

★ ★ ★

"I would hope that in future the director of film classification will pay more attention to the undesirability of violence particularly where it relates to the glorification of war," said Clark.

Ernie Hall (NDP — Surrey) said as long as the government wields a pair of scissors in deciding which films are suitable for showing in B.C. he would oppose the legislation.

Referring to the narrowness of censorship on grounds of sex and obscenity, Hall said he believes obscenity is violence, corporal punishment and even sarcasm in certain cases. He promised to introduce amendments at a later committee stage which "will make this a first-class bill."

Robert Wenman (SC—Delta) said if the censor's title was to be changed to film classification director then censorship section of the proposed legislation should be omitted. He suggested the government "look at films as an art form" allowing individuals to make their own decisions and "the market will take care of itself."

"The big money makers today are Walt Disney productions," Wenman said.

Gordon Dowding (NDP—Burnaby North) compared the bill to the 1938 Alberta legislation which attempted to censor the press in that province. He said the government was attempting to rule on questions of obscenity which come properly under federal law.

Tenant Bill Voted In

—West Vancouver-Howe Sound) said it would have been "sensible" for the government to require all tenancies to be covered by a written agreement.

He said a written agreement would help establish questions of fact when any dispute arose.

A Liberal member also warned that while the government may think it has created an inexpensive way of resolving landlord-tenant disputes by putting them before small debts court, this system would result in inevitable complications and delays. He said it now takes a minimum of three months to obtain a hearing in small debts court.

★ ★ ★

"It is wrong to think this bill is going to solve all the problems facing landlords and tenants," Williams said. "Indeed it may create problems not in existance today."

Opposition Leader Dave Barrett said the legislation should include a model lease contract which would protect the rights of both landlord and tenant. "It's all very well to describe verbal tenancy agreements as binding," he said. "When the passage of time blows memory—then you're in trouble."

Barrett said the bill should be broadened to include a requirement that landlords give reason for eviction of a tenant. He added good landlord-tenant relationships must be established until there is a sufficient supply of good low cost accommodation.

★ ★ ★

"We must have the standards and the availability of accommodation, otherwise this bill has little meaning."

Both Barrett and Ernie Hall (NDP—Surrey) accused the government of taking the main principles of a proposed tenants bill of rights introduced by the party's retiring provincial leader Tom Berger in 1968 and 1969 and defeated by the government on both occasions.

Attorney-General Leslie Peterson, winding up the debate, denied the charge saying the principles contained in the bill were modelled on recommendations of the Ontario Law Reform Commission.

He also rejected the opposition's pleas for a provision that all tenancy agreements be in writing. Landlords in all cases wouldn't grant leases Peterson said, particularly in the case of weekly tenancies and therefore the tenants would be denied all protection under the proposed legislation.

"I have said before that I expect an increase in the number of written agreements and I would advise and recommend that tenants obtain a lease wherever possible," the attorney-general said. "But I think it would be a great mistake if this Legislature were to say that if a tenancy agreement isn't in writing then the tenant isn't protected."

★ ★ ★

Hall told the House he would supply Peterson privately "with chapter and verse" giving information he has received that some landlords are making it a condition of occupancy that tenants refrain from joining tenants' associations.

The NDP member said the government must act to protect tenants rights of association and free assembly.

● Abolition of certain depletion allowances to stockholders.

Victoria Mayor Courtney Haddock called Reid's statement "a severe blow" to the city.

"That's exactly what I was afraid of. I haven't heard from Mr. Reid yet, but I think he should get in touch with me to discuss the situation," Haddock said.

"If Reid Properties decides not to go ahead with the project, it will mean the end to any Inner Harbor redevelopment for quite a while."

Haddock said he would "add to the clamor" if his fears came true.

"Until then, I'd rather wait and see what Mr. Reid has to tell us. There may still be a way out of the dilemma."

Victoria Liberal MP David Groos said from Ottawa he would like to hear from Reid.

"Maybe if we bring his reservations to the finance minister's attention, Mr. Benson will change his mind on certain aspects of the white paper," Groos said.

The Reid Development, Groos said, was very important to Victoria's future. No stone should be left unturned to make it a reality.

"At this point, the white paper has not become the law yet. Many things will be discussed before the proposals become legislation. This is the time to make sure that there will be no adverse effects like the cancellation of such a development," he said.

Victoria Community Development Planner Jeoffrey Greenhalgh said he wasn't surprised by Reid's statement. Any proposed government legislation like the white paper on taxation was bound to get such reaction.

"I still don't believe that the white paper will be accepted by the Commons. I don't think the federal government would try to encourage housing on one hand and discourage it on the other."

The Inner Harbor project, he said, was as important to Canada as it was to Victoria.

"It represents a trend and I don't think the federal government wants to stop this trend."

McGeer Says Nay

name of the social welfare department to rehabilitation and social improvement department. The matter drew no comments from MLAs.

In opposing the bill, McGeer was opposing the raise in principle and he may still vote for the several sections of the bill if he wishes to approve the move in detail during theid reading.

He told the House: "I'm not suggesting the stipend is not in order . . ." but he observed that only last Friday, Premier Bennett was again urging restraint in the face of inflation.

"We can't expect others to observe this when we don't," said McGeer.

Only one main objection was raised during debate on second reading of a bill that will make payment of wages the "new priority" over any debts of an employer.

Several MLAs disagreed with the provision that exempts from the bill's other sections farm laborers, fruit-pickers, domestic servants, horticulture workers, teachers under the public schools act, the employees of the Pacific Great Eastern railway and professional employees. The act also allows the Board of Industrial Relations to reclassify an employee with respect to the bill's provisions.

But the bill was not opposed in second reading.

A bill to streamline procedures of the Supreme Court and one to dissuade the issuers of credit cards from sending them unsolicited through the mails were passed in principle with little debate.

Gordon Dowding (NDP — Burnaby Edmonds) said that the new Jury Act should provide a $25-a-day payment to people serving on juries for more than 10 days. Dowding said there are very few cases of a juror having his livelihood ruined by having to perform jury duty, but there are enough cases "to cause a tragedy."

As the bills stands, jurors will get, upon the discretion of the sheriff who summoned them, 'necessary and reasonable travelling expenses" and $10 a day for each day they are away from their places of residence.

Cream Preparation Helps Fight Scabies

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

YOUR GOOD HEALTH

Dear Dr. Thosteson: How do you get rid of scabies and what are they? They say they come from dirt but I know of the cleanest people who have them.—T.T.

Dear Doctor: I contracted a case of scabies from some little girls I was babysitting. They got it from neighbor children.—C.L.

Yes, clean people get scabies. I caught it once from a patient when I was a medical student. (Probably I missed my shower that day.)

Scabies is a parasitic disease of the skin. Mites burrow into the skin leaving an itching red streak. It is an annoying rather than dangerous ailment. The principal damage is that done to the skin by repeated scratching.

These mites are readily transmissible from one person to another, not unusual in school or among playmates.

If the source — the person scattering scabies — is known, that person (child or adult) should be treated. Otherwise the trouble will continue.

Scabies may get into a family and you have to watch our for reinfesting each other with the mites. Or, of course, scabies may recur from some outside contact.

Careful laundering of clothing and bedclothes is important because the little beasts can linger there.

Treatment used to be with smelly but effective sulphur preparations. Today a preparation called "Kwell" is used. It comes in cream or lotion form and readily destroys the parasites.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have arthritis in the knee. What effect does aspirin have on arthritis and how much is safe to take?—Mrs. R.H.T.

Aspirin is one of the most commonly used medicines for arthritis in spite of the variety of other drugs, new and old, now employed for different types of arthritis.

It demonstrates a favorable effect quite beyond its analgesic (pain-suppressing qualities. Aspirin, you know, is an anti-inflammatory drug, which was the original purpose to which it was put.

The amount to use is variable. Quite often one five grain tablet two to four times a day is effective, but larger dosage often is used, the limit depending on the patient's tolerance (stomach irritation, intestinal bleeding, etc.).

Dosage as large as 40 to 60 grains a day is well tolerated by some. The smallest effective dose is best, of course.

Huge Rock of Luck Heads for Osaka

VANCOUVER (CP) — A 46-000-pound jade boulder from Smithers is to be loaded aboard an ocean freighter today for shipment to the B.C. pavilion at Expo '70 in Osaka, Japan.

The big green boulder—one side polished to a fine finish—will be for touching by visitors.

Jade represents luck and good fortune in the Orient.

Cambodia Nabs U.S. Ship

Two Mutineers Granted Asylum

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two alleged mutineers who apparently used a bomb scare to seize control of the American ammunition carrier Columbia Eagle in the Gulf of Siam were reported by United States officials Monday to have been granted asylum in Cambodia.

Diplomatic efforts were under way to obtain release of the freighter and the 13 crew members remaining aboard.

Cambodia said today its navy had seized a merchant ship flying the American flag—without mentioning the hijacked U.S. munitions vessel, Columbia Eagle.

A state department spokesman said American Charge d'Affaires Lloyd Rives reported that "Cambodian officers boarded the vessel and have taken off the two who requested asylum."

★ ★ ★

Press officer Robert McCloskey added: "I fully expect that Rives now will be in touch with the Cambodian authorities with respect to the release of the ship and the cargo and the crew if that is the crew's wish."

McCloskey said he supposes that Rives also will request an opportunity to interview the two men reported to have engineered the takeover of the ship.

Senator Mark Hatfield Rep. Ore. said Monday night he had learned the two men are Clyde McKay of Escondido, Calif., and Alvin Glatkowski of Long Beach, Calif.

A spokesman for Hatfield said the men were signed on as crew members at Long Beach.

The spokesman said Hatfield also learned that Swann is still on board the Columbia Eagle.

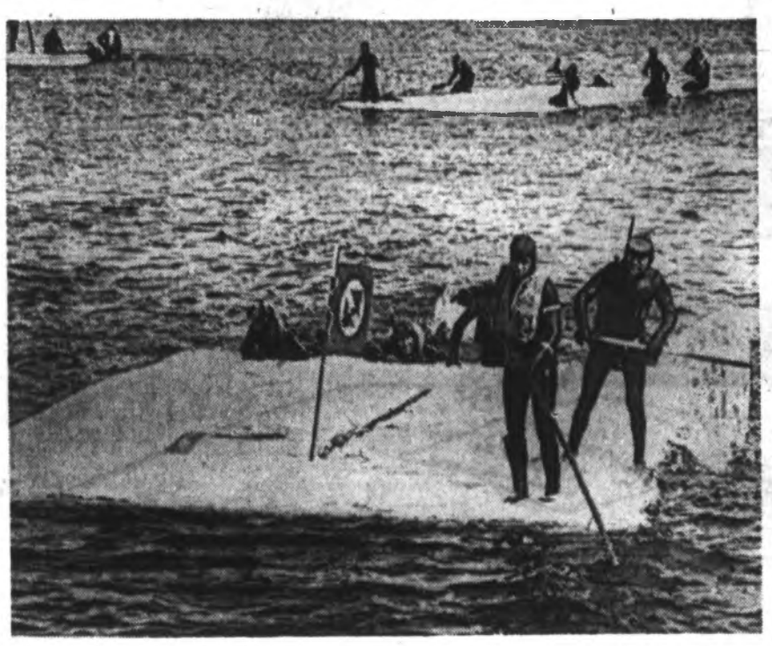

In talks to the defence department and Irving Thayer, president of the Columbia Steamship Co. of Portland, which owns the ship, Hatfield's aide said it had also learned nine U.S. ships have now moved into the area, standing by in international waters.

The Hatfield spokesman characterized the apparent hijacking as a protest of the Vietnam war.

"They threatened the ship as a war protest," he said.

At the state department McCloskey said: "We are not charging anyone with mutiny. I want to be clear on that." He said in response to a question that "we have no extradition treaty with Cambodia."

At last report the 7,600-ton Columbia Eagle, which was under charter to the defence department to transport munitions used in the Vietnam war, was anchored near a small island in the Gulf of Siam and about 26 miles from the Cambodian coast.

Four Persons Drown Off Mainland Coast

PRINCE RUPERT (CP) — An inquest was ordered Monday into the deaths of four persons from the Indian village of Kincolith, after a 34-foot fishing boat floundered Sunday off the north British Columbia coast.

RCMP identified the victims as a week-old baby, the child of Harold and Kathy Barton, who were among the five survivors; Millicent Edna Cecil, 37, and her two daughters, Yvonne, 6, and Carla, 2.

The other survivors were identified as Ruben Morgan, Harold Watts and Cynthia Cecil.

Two fishing boats went to the sinking boat after a distress signal reported the vessel's engines were stalled and that it was taking on water.

Police said the boat apparently developed the leak about 15 miles north of here and a mile offshore while on a 20-mile trip from here to Kincolith.

The two rescue boats, the Victor F. and the Gale Darlene, arrived an hour after the distress call went out.

Interior Minister

Cyprus Slaying Sparks Rumors

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — A rash of theories cropped up Monday to explain the assassination of Polycarpos Georgadjis, once the right-hand man of President Makarios, but police maintained a tight silence.

Authorities said the body of the 40-year-old interior minister was found Sunday night in his car on a lonely road about four miles from Nicosia with six bullets in his chest. He had been linked with the attempt on Makarios' life last week but denied any complicity.

Makarios called his cabinet into emergency session after Georgadjis was found.

★ ★ ★

At one point, the Greek ambassador to Cyprus, Menelaos Alexandrakis, and Gen. Elias Geraktnis, Greek commander of the Cypriot army, were called in. This was believed linked to a rumor that Georgadjis had been shot by a Greek army officer. That rumor was also denied.

Other rumors attributed the killing to the National Front right-wing extremists; to supporters of Makarios who blamed Georgadjis for the assassination try on Makarios, or to some personal or political enemy.

Another rumor claimed that Georgadjis drove to a rendezvous with two men and was subsequently shot.

Diplomat Tells Tale

SAO PAULO (Reuters) — Japanese Consul-General Nobuo Okuchi told Monday how he was taken blindfolded to a secret hideout in a small suburban house by Brazilian guerrilla kidnappers.

The diplomat's ordeal began when he was kidnapped at gunpoint Wednesday and ended with his release Sunday night.

New English Bible Sparks Much Debate

LONDON (AP) — The New English Bible went on sale Monday amid debate on its style and publishers' predictions of sales in the millions.

The new Bible is not a revision of previous versions but a new translation from Greek and Hebrew texts. Its publishers, the University Presses of Oxford and Cambridge, claim it is "as truthful as human skill could make it and carried out by the best scholars and translators that the churches possessed.

The translation was sponsored by all the major Christian churches in Britain except the Roman Catholic. The work took 12 years.

The new version drops most of the thees and thous which proliferate in the Authorized Version produced in Shakespeare's day. They are retained only in prayers and direct addresses to God.

The aim is simplicity and ready understanding. "The valley of the shadow of death" in the 23rd Psalm has become a "valley dark as death."

Reactions ranged from solid approval to disappointment.

Dr. Cecil Northcott, churches correspondent of The Daily Telegraph, said:

"It will rank among the great biblical achievements."

Queen Arrives Following Storm

CHRISTCHURCH (Reuters) — The Queen and Prince Philip arrived here in drenching rain Monday after spending an uncomfortable night aboard the storm-battered royal yacht Britannia.

The Queen stepped ashore in the "most English city outside England"—as Christchurch bills itself in tourist brochures—after the Britannia punched its way through a Cook Strait storm in which three sailors on an escort frigate were swept overboard. One of the men was drowned.

The royal couple, in New Zealand on a South Pacific tour, were ferried ashore by royal barge when rough weather forced the Britannia to anchor in the harbor at Lyttelton, the Christchurch port, instead of berthing at a dock.

Cheering crowds greeted them as they landed to join Prince Charles and Princess Anne, who spent the weekend on a vast sheep ranch owned by Sir John Acland, chairman of the New Zealand wool board.

The crowds were unable to see any scars the royal yacht might have received on its trip down the east coast of New Zealand's South Island.

Father Of 50 Wounded

NEW YORK (UPI) — A self-styled religious leader who claims to have 10 wives and 50 children was in critical condition Monday as the result of a chest wound.

Police said "Bishop" Devernon Legrand, 46, head of the "Church of St. John," was wounded when he went to the home of Ernestine Timmins, 32, one of his "nuns," Sunday. Legrand claims Miss Timmins is one of his wives and mother of six of his children.

Police said Legrand and James Ward were met by Miss Timmins' father, Ernest Timmins, who opened fire with a pistol. Ward died of wounds en route to hospital.

Sure your income tax problem is unique!

Like fingerprints, no two people have exactly the same tax return. Your sources and amount of income, your exemptions and allowances, all make your return just a little bit different. Here are some areas of your tax return which may cause problems:

(1) Income (almost everything you can think of is taxable. But there are some exceptions. See items ONE to SIX in Guide).

(2) Interest Income (attach T3, T5, T600 slips to your return).

(3) Personal Exemptions (this area causes half of all reject returns. Check Guide carefully).

(4) Canada Pension Plan payments (if you are self-employed and earn more than $800 you can't qualify for a pension unless you file income tax returns).

(5) Medicare (you are not entitled to claim medical expenses paid by a provincial medicare plan. Check Guide).

(6) Gift tax (new rules here, too. See Guide).

(7) Social Insurance Number (more than 150,000 people still file tax returns without the required SIN. Pension Plan and identification problems can result).

Your T1 Short Guide can help you on many points. Read it. If you still have doubts, call your district taxation office.

Alignment on the Pacific

IN THE MOUNTING confusion on the southeast Asian scene, it would be no surprise to see a closer political and economic relationship developing between Malaysia and Indonesia, as the central characters, and their neighbors in Thailand and Burma.

These nations are aware of the ambitions of the Communists, both the Hanoi- and Peking-directed variety. They are immediately affected by the campaign of infiltration and subversion, while their neighbors in Laos, Cambodia and Vietnam feel the direct shock of armed aggression.

But the still relatively unexposed nations appreciate that as soon as the enemy has over-run the territory that has heretofore served as insulation, they will have to meet the threat of military action as well as of political penetration.

They realize that the hope they had for protection in the South-East Asia Treaty Organization was unfounded; and that nothing better than a sympathetic clucking can be expected from the Association of South-East Asian Nations. They see the hastening British withdrawal, the French refusal of involvement and the Americans' increasingly reluctant presence.

Who can blame them for a deep, and deepening concern?

On Monday Indonesia's President Suharto arrived in Malaysia's capital, Kuala Lumpur. It is the first state visit by any Indonesian chief executive. It would seem to mark acknowledgement by the two nations of a mutual desire for protective association, and it is remarkable when it is remembered that less than three years ago they were in a state of war.

That, of course, was before General Suharto overthrew Achmed Sukarno, the puppet of Peking, whose avowed intention it was to destroy the new Malaysian state and bring Mao Tse-tung's enlightenment to the people.

Militarily, Indonesia is not as formidable as Malaysia. But it is populous — with more than 100 million people in its myriad islands—and not as vulnerable to Communist attack in spite of its area. Malaysia, with a promise of aid from Britain, Australia and New Zealand, and a useful bastion in independent Singapore, is seen as a valuable ally, indeed an essential one, by the Suharto administration.

And in Kuala Lumpur closer ties with a large and friendly neighbor are just as attractive, particularly in view of Japan's increasing interest in Indonesia.

On the Thailand border, Malaysia already has a working military agreement which allows troops of both nations to operate on either side of the frontier in the suppression of the continually intrusive agents from Hanoi and Peking and of their converted followers in the region.

If Canada, which the Trudeau administration has described as being "a Pacific rim state," is really to play a role of such a nature, the developments in southeast Asia, as well as in sister-members of the Commonwealth in this area must be watched with the closest attention.

But, as a responsible nation, Canada should not be satisfied with the passive role of an onlooker. If the country expects to benefit from increasing trade with Pacific nations, it must be prepared to participate in their development and assist them in the preservation of their sovereignty.

The Winnipeg Free Press, discussing the Communist threat in the Pacific some weeks ago, made this point: "With Britain out of the area and the United States disengaging, there will be a huge gap in the western defences of the region. If Mr. Trudeau is serious about his interest in the Pacific he may be faced with difficult decisions sooner than he expected."

Up to now his most significant and disturbing decision has been to ingratiate himself with China's Mao Tse-tung, with the aim of exchanging diplomatic representatives. If he is successful he runs the risk of identifying this country with an enemy of the bulk of the peoples on the Pacific front, people only anxious to advance their own social and economic programs, and who look upon Chairman Mao and all things communistic with understandable fear and suspicioun.

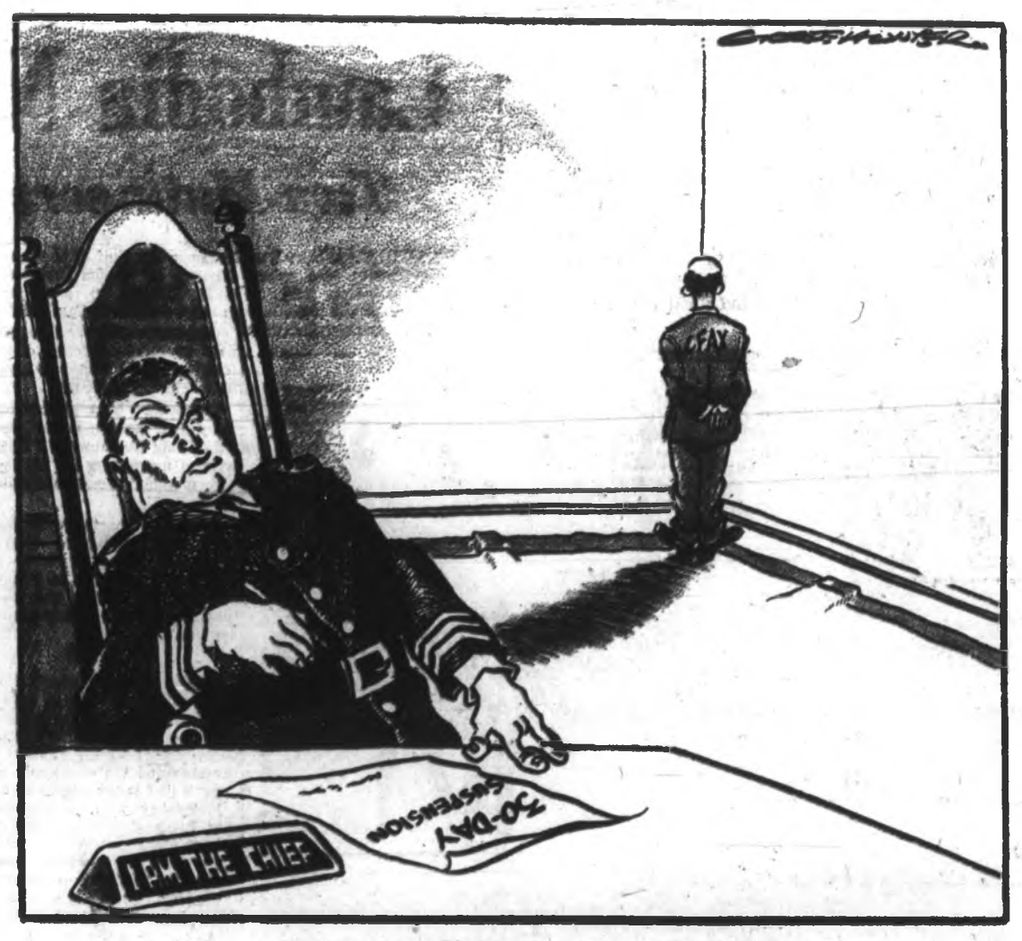

A more sensible course for the Canadian government, it is felt, would be the encouragement and reassurance of those nations anxious to preserve their freedoms and to find dependable trading partners.

No such considerations are likely to dissuade the prime minister. He has taken a position on the Pacific alignment, as he has done on other occasions, and it is not his nature to retreat from it. Only a real shock from the electorate, or his following flock, might change his course. Nothing is likely to change his mind.

Overparking Penalties

IF IT HAS the desired effect, the doubling of the fine for overparking at meters in Victoria should not drive shoppers away from the downtown streets, as foreseen by Alderman Peter Pollen. It should, indeed, make downtown shopping more convenient. The aim is to hit the persistent offender a little harder, therby opening up more parking spaces for the majority of drivers who seldom overstay the limits and even less often do so deliberately.

One cannot be sure, however, that a penalty of $2 will be sufficient to change the habits of those who now find $1 an acceptable price to pay each time they are caught. A preferable system might be the one suggested by Alderman Clyde Savage—fines progressing upward for repeated offences. True enough, this would mean a new clerical load on the police department, keeping records constantly up to date. But there would be offsetting revenue. At least a study could be made of practices in other cities, to see if such a method can be used effectively and without too much difficulty.

Lamar's Shame a Symptom of Reaction, A Last Stand on the Segregation Line

IN the long and hate-stained struggle for integration of the schools, climaxed by the shame of Lamar, S.C., one encounter in particular stands out for courage and staunch resolution.

In the fall of 1957 a situation had developed at Little Rock, Ark., not unlike that at Lamar. The federal courts had ordered integration of the Little Rock schools, beginning with Central High School. When nine young Negroes sought to enter the school a hate-inflamed mob of 400 white men and women booed and threatened them.

On orders of then Governor Orville Faubus the National Guard, called out by the governor, prevented the Negro students from entering. This was a direct defiance of federal authority. While the decision was unquestionably distasteful, President Eisenhower bit the bullet and took the only course that was open short of abdication.

* * *

As a new mob developed around the high school in defiance of the president's "cease and desist" proclamation, he ordered federal troops into Little Rock and federalized the Arkansas National Guard. A thousand members of the 327th Airborne Battle Group of the 101st Airborne Division were flown in from Fort Campbell, Ky. Faubus tried more evasive demagoguery with attacks on the president and on the troops. But in the end he played dead and the school was integrated.

It is scarcely an exaggeration to say that through the Eisenhower and the Kennedy-Johnson administrations pressure to integrate the schools was unremitting. Only through such steadfast and unfailing pressure has it been possible to hold the line and move forward.

That is the tragedy of the Nixon administration's backing and filling on integration. Their yearning, over-the-shoulder look at the past was bound to stiffen the attitude of those determined to resist school integration at any cost. By suggesting a slowdown and muffling the thrust of court orders, at the instigation of the attorney-general, the cutting edge was dulled and the opening created for a last-ditch stand on the segregation line. One can compute the cost in the terror of those 19 Negro children in the buses that were overturned and destroyed at Lamar.

* * *

The curious performance of Sen. Abe Ribicoff compounded the confusion and uncertainty. Besides getting a handsome harvest of headlines, Ribicoff's stand against Northern segregation in fact as well as Southern segregation by law and custom gave respectability to the South's principal spokesman, Sen. John Stennis of Mississippi, and his amendment calling for application of desegregation uniformly throughout the nation.

The Nixon blessing for the Stennis amendment—a kind of a-wow-you-see-it, now-you-don't blessing—added a little more smog to the already obscure atmosphere. A comic aspect was the way in which the Senate Minority Leader, Hugh Scott, got caught in the switches in an exchange with Sen. John Tower of Texas, one of the chief ball-carriers for the Southern strategy. A letter to Scott from the White House left the minority leader dangling in mid-air.

To this one can only add the misfortune of Patrick Daniel Moynihan's purloined memorandum. His prescription for easing the strains and tensions made a certain amount of sense. But the phrase "benign neglect," which got the focus of attention as applicable to the Negro problem, was one that a counselor to the president should never use and particularly in an official document that was purloinable. "Benign neglect" has a haunting sound against the background of Lamar.

Courageous voices have been raised. Leon E. Panetta, appointed by the White House to be chief of civil rights in the department of health, education and welfare, performed an act rare in this city of entrenched office-holders. He resigned and charged the administration with promoting racial separation as an easy way out. He accused Vice-President Spirto T. Agnew of catering to racism for political ends. But then Panetta added a moving assessment of this tragic moment:

"It is not just Vice-President Agnew. It is all of us. All of us have been raised in an atmosphere of anxiety and prejudice. All of us wonder what we would do if we had to send our children to black schools or if blacks moved next door."

How to get desegregation back on the tracks is the problem for the administration. Public statements deploring what happened at Lamar will not do it.

Trudeau Glibly Holds His Own With Beads and Flowers Prop

YOU never saw such a glorious fun and games performance.

There were the college students, an auditoriumful of Carleton University undergrads, all "uptight" about the injustices of "The Just Soceity," and just aching to sock it to Prime Minister Trudeau.

And there was that dumb-dumb of a master of ceremonies, telling the kids — many of them looking like whirling dervishes in their long locks and 'way-out threads — that they'd have to clear the two front rows of the college hall to make room for the prime ministers' fabled army of resident-thinkers and assorted aides.

So the kids rolled off the chairs and onto the floor and with mock ceremony polished what they laughingly called "the seats of the mighty."

And wouldn't it happen, though, that the first of the Trudeau retinue to troop in were some of the wives and girlfriends.

"Hey, man," hooted a student, "must be fun being prime minister with your own mobile bunny girls."

Now mind you, the kids weren't hostile, and no more rude than student activists usually are.

But they clearly regarded the prime minister and his party as the power-train of the despised "Establishment," and were relishing the prospect of getting their intellectual kicks by telling Trudeau where it's at on the campus.

Two weeks before, the Young Liberals had come to town in the same give-it-to-the-PM-where-he-lives mood.

The Young Liberals and the Carleton undergrads alike were almost feeling sorry for the PM as they waited for him to enter the arena.

Man, were they going to eat him alive!

I tell you, to listen to them savor the feast before the slaughter, they were going to chew him up and spit him out in little pieces.

It was sad.

Not what they did to him — but what he did to them.

You never saw such a quick cooling out.

With a shrug, and a laugh, a touch of scorn, and just a hint of pity for their pussy-cat performance, he tamed those campus cats.

"Hey," one of them yelled at him "you're Mr. Big — how come you let International Nickel raise its prices when it's selling almost all of the stuff to the Americans who use it to kill the Viet Cong? Some swindle, pop."

"If it's a swindle, sonny," shot back the PM, "it's the Americans we're fleecing, and that ought to please you guys."

"But it's our nickel," howled another student.

"So it's ours," fired back the PM. "What do you want to do with it, carry it around in your denims?"

"But we're making money with it," persisted the protester from what obviously was the student left.

"Money, sonny," purred the prime minister, "is what your daddy uses to pay your tuition."

Pow.

But the kids weren't about to cave in.

There was another mixed-up and untidy sociology student who wanted to know how the prime minister "permitted" the sale of Caribou aircraft to Brazil.

Now the Caribou happens to be about the best aircraft of its type on the world market and brings in a lot of good, hard, spendable foreign exchange for Canada.

* * *

Well, explained the prime minister, the plane was a good seller with a lot of people in different parts of the world wanting to buy it as a cargo carrier.

What did the student want to do with the Caribous, anyway, build them and park them on the tarmac, or close out the Canadian aircraft industry?

And anyway, what was wrong with selling a few to Brazil?

Plenty, sang out the student. Weren't they being used to drop napalm on the natives?

"You kids get the wildest stories," the prime minister told him, "where do you pick up this crazy stuff?"

This was a different prime minister to the one who cooled out the student Liberals. This time, in his campus appearance he wore a suit, shirt and tie instead of the turtleneck sweater with the love beads and the handful of daffodils.

But the result was the same: he out-zapped the kids who were out to zap him.

The Stamp Act, one of the major causes of the American Revolution, was repealed by the British Parliament 204 years ago today—in 1766. The act, designed to raise revenue in the American colonies, drew stiff opposition at once. It was so great that revenue amounted to less than the cost of collection.

I WISH to reply to your front page report on March 7: "Only Elite Get Chance to Enter Professions," It is wrong and highly discouraging. My background of teaching in four universities, two in Canada and two in the United States, over 40 years in all, justifies me in this conclusion.

Your heading is in itself a damper for the poor families, with children of good brains, well suited to go into the professions. It leads them to think the goal in life is only to get out and earn money as early as possible. What for? Many of the unessentials of life, TV, clothes dryers, a better car, etc., which the elite have purchased, often on time.

Universities are for the young men and women who have the drive and ability to train themselves for the various professions of their choice. The financial status of the family or the wish of the young person to make money, other than for further education, certainly are not the desirable attributes for college students.

The incentive of the student to enter university should be encouraged by the family, particularly by the mother. Now I am glad to say this has been greatly reinforced by the wives of students who help both mentally and financially. This latter is one of the very good new developments.

In the past my students came from all walks of life and many had to earn most of the cost of their educational expenses. Since their graduation most have done well, several are on the staffs of outstanding universities. Others in business have very responsible positions. Part and even all of the financial responsibility falling on the student for his college education has been a good training for life. On the other hand the elite families often give too much financial support to the student which does not help him to develop responsibility. Being sent to college by elite parents may easily be a liability.

Now a word as to the shortage of doctors, lawyers and professional men, the training of whom is a big expense to the government. To keep up with modern science it will continue to increase. More students mean more capital and operating expenses. Your article shows the shortage is not with the students when UBC has 380 applicants for medicine and there is only room for 60. The present, and future shortage, must be attributed to the lack of facilities provided.

CBC Captive

Being captive of the CBC (news wise) because of the newspaper strike in Vancouver has brought home to me the value of a free press!

How dreadful it must have been to have only Hitler's propaganda. How frustrated the captive people behind the Iron Curtain must be knowing that their news is strictly government propaganda!

With Prime Minister Trudeau now controlling the CRTC, planning a government "information" service and pushing legislation against "hate" literature, one wonders just when the "paper curtain" will descend on our freedom of speech.

'To Us They Look'

We commend you on the splendid editorial concerning the reprehensible actions of two snowmobile drivers who made sport of harassing a small brush wolf on frozen Lake Simcoe in Ontario for 90 minutes, striking it repeatedly. Then these "intrepid hunters" jumped the vehicle over the wolf, breaking its back.

As a member of the Ontario Humane Society, I have written the general manager urging him to continue an investigation without cessation of this barbarous thing. For the officials of the Ontario lands and forests department to offer a bounty to these men is a denial of all Christian principle and should be a matter for our clergy to deplore. In the hundreds of sermons I have listened to I cannot remember one reference to the inhuman and cruel actions of so-called civilized people towards our animal world. I have become weary of certain psalm-singing hypocrites in our congregations who follow their dreary ritual of prayer yet revel in killing for sport. Many of these same so-called Christians are strangely reticent as to animal welfare. I fear their prayers must ring very hollow indeed in the ears of a just and merciful God.

"For those who have no voice to plead their cause, no urge to harm the hand that strikes them down; whose hearts are ever faithful and whose laws concern alone a master's smile or frown: For those we speak.

"To us they look for help, these weaker ones, while cruelty still holds its ancient sway on field and stall, o'er countryside and slums; Remember them and do not turn away. For those we speak."

Easy Choice

It is disappointing to see that old excuse being trotted out to justify the imprisoning of wildlife! "They are better off in captivity."

There surely is a simple reply to that; how many of us would choose the security of a prison over the hazards of freedom?

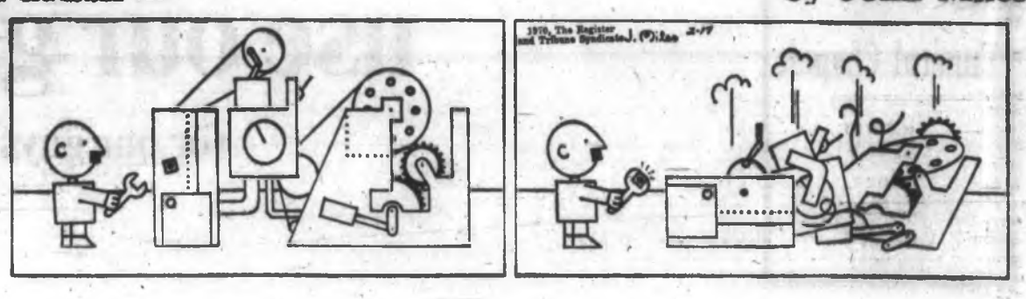

Certainly all creatures, human or otherwise, have their problems but anyone who has watched a herd of killer whales frolicking through the straits should know what their choice would be if given one.

It is true also that these animals attack others for food. Well, don't most of us eat meat, fish, chicken? No one has suggested we should be imprisoned because of that.

After centuries of thoughtless exploitation, man's attitude toward his fellow-dwellers on Earth is changing and the sooner this imprisoning of wild creatures for commercial gain or casual amusement is stopped, the better for us all.

No 'Deal' with Nixon

U.S. Shatters Illusion Of Rhodesians

By STANLEY MEISLER, from Nairobi

The closing of the American consulate in Salisbury crushed the delicately wrought illusion of white Rhodesians that the Nixon administration is really on their side.

●

The 250,000 Rhodesian whites, who are defying Britain by keeping control over 5,000,000 blacks, are an isolated people, condemned by much of the rest of the world.

Though this has not forced them to change their white supremacist policies, it does bother them. Out of their isolation, they grasp at straws and embellish them with fancy, making the isolation seems less real.

White Rhodesia's faith in Nixon's silent majority was bolstered by American conservatives who visited Rhodesia in the last few years to proclaim their support of the Smith government.

The white Rhodesian belief in a "deal" stemmed from a recent spy trial, in which two whites were convicted for selling information to a foreign power.

While the power was not named, most Rhodesians believed the U.S. government had paid the informers to find out how Rhodesian businessmen were working around UN economic sanctions.

After their conviction, the two whites were deported. Prime Minister Smith said he had released them because of a deal. He did not elaborate. But many white Rhodesians believed the United States had agreed to keep the consulate open in exchange for the freedom of the two men.

White Rhodesians also believed that Rhodesia had American industry in an economic vise because of chrome.

Russian Chrome Used

American steel producers had used Rhodesia's high quality chrome, buying most of the country's annual production before 1966.

Because of the UN sanctions, the United States stopped buying Rhodesian chrome and turned to the only other major producer of high quality chrome — the Soviet Union. The Russians charge American steel companies almost 50 per cent more than the Rhodesians did.

The Rhodesians, who tend to think in very cold war terms and look on themselves as bastions against communism, convinced themselves that economics and antipathy to communism would force the Nixon administration to come back to Rhodesia for chrome. As a first step, the Rhodesians decided, the Americans would keep the consulate open.

Isolated and naive, the white Rhodesians could not see beyond their illusions.

They did not realize that nothing loomed as large in Washington as the realization that Black Africa would look on the continuation of the consulate as virtual recognition of white Rhodesia. It would have meant a tremendous loss of prestige and influence.

Fundamental Issue of Current Political Battle

Quebec Election Test of 'Trudeau Power'

By BRIAN UPTON
From Quebec

Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand called his snap election for April 29 to keep the federal government out of Quebec's potato patch. There are other reasons, too, but Trudeau Power in Quebec is fundamental. It strikes at the roots of decades of Union Nationale ideology that Quebec is the homeland of French Canada and that anything else is heresy.

Prime Minister Trudeau has been poling holes in this old Duplessis idea for years. When elected, he began to prove it. In last week's announcement, which caught the four opposition parties by surprise, Premier Bertrand made it quite clear that he considers the April election the "equivalent of a referendum" on Quebec's status within Canada.

★ ★ ★

The Trudeau doctrine that the federal government represents all Canadians has never been stronger than now.

There are more French Canadian cabinet ministers in Ottawa than ever before. Trudeau has introduced the bilingual, biculturalism pattern—and more than ever, top federal civil servants are bilingual.

Trudeau Power has had the Union Nationale government on the run for over a year. It had to keep bowing to the Trudeau hardline which kept forcing it towards Separatist brinkmanship. It was called a "halfway" house between Quebec independence and federalism by Separatist leader Rene Levesque of the Parti Quebecois.

★ ★ ★

In addition to Trudeau's obvious popularity in this province, the real spearhead of the federal presence is smooth-talking Manpower Minister Jean Marchand. In speech after speech, Marchand said Quebeckers are going to know how much the federal government spends in this province despite efforts of the Union Nationale "to hide it."

It is an old Union Nationale tradition to pretend that the cost of baby bonuses, pensions for the aged or the blind, hospital and vocational school construction are paid by Quebec only. Ottawa now insists that its share, sometimes running to 75 per cent in the case of vocational schools, be made loud and clear to the Quebec taxpayer.

★ ★ ★

Linked to the federal assault in Quebec is the position of the Quebec Liberals led by 36-year-old Robert Bourassa.

Bourassa, the economics expert who replaced Jean Lesage, is making yards in Quebec's junior colleges. He sees confederation as the best way to achieve all Quebec aspirations—from more jobs to better French.

The Liberal leader is hurting the Union Nationale as well as the Parti Quebecois.

★ ★ ★

While the Quebec-Ottawa confrontation is fundamental in this election, the financial bind of the government is the most immediate problem. Both Bourassa and Levesque agree that the Union Nationale is afraid to bring down a March budget that would have to include a tax increase.

"It is an intellectual fraud to go to the people without telling them what is the financial situation of the province," said Levesque.

Said Bourassa: "The election has been called to avoid the moment of truth because most of the provinces' school boards are in debt with the banks and hundreds of teachers and school suppliers have not been paid."

★ ★ ★

They noted that legislation that would bring in medicare by July 1 is left hanging along with a controversial bill to integrate the French and English school systems on the island of Montreal.

Bertrand said the election will be almost the equivalent of a referendum. It would separate the outright Separatists from the "Quebec-first" Union Nationale and the "Federal-first" Quebec Liberals. Nobody else here shares that view.

★ ★ ★

The election results will only show a picture of a confused Quebec electorate, and nobody will know the real essence, if any, of Quebec separatism. Nor will it clearly show positions vis-a-vis confederation.

While the Union Nationale already has threatened to lead Quebec out of confederation in the next five years.

"We will be looked on 50 years from now as bloody fools if we fail to make confederation work," said Leo Pearson (Lib., St. Laurent), one of the party thinkers.

"Quebec has never really tested confederation, nor ever tried to make it work. It has always been negative with few exceptions since the time of Duplessis. "With so many French Canadians in Ottawa in high posts, if it doesn't work this time it never will. It will be the end."

A fear shared by both Union Nationale and the Liberals is that the Parti Quebecois may take 20 per cent of the popular vote, but fail to elect a single member. "This could be extremely dangerous and lead to violence. The revolutionaries will say the system is corrupt, so let's get rid of it," said Pearson.

Sell Us Arms—or Else, Says South Africa

Britain Given Ultimatum

By DESMOND WETTERN, from London

Steadily worsening relations between Britain and South Africa may result in an open split between the two countries by the end of this year.

Unless the British government relaxes its six-year-old embargo on arms exports to South Africa — or there is an election and the Tories gain office in Britain — it is now almost certain South Africa, whose racial policies are abhorrent to Britain, will refuse base rights to British warships at the Simonstown Navy Yard near Cape Town.

Ambassador Hendrik Luttig in London a few days ago delivered an ultimatum to Britain: either supply the arms South Africa needs or quit using Simonstown by the end of 1970.

When a London newspaper headlined the South African demand, Defence Minister Willem Botha denied in Pretoria that an ultimatum had been delivered. But in London, Foreign Office officials said that while the ambassador may not technically have delivered an ultimatum he had made South Africa's position quite clear.

★ ★ ★

Political commentators here are puzzled by South Africa bringing up the base issue at this time with a British general election not too far off. With a strong body of leftists in the Labor Party supporting the arms embargo, Prime Minister Wilson would be unlikely to risk angering many of his supporters by relaxing it in what may well be an election year.

However, the timing of the demand was not in fact so poor as it seems, it has been learned.

Since last summer there has been a strong division of opinion within the Labor cabinet over the defence of the South Atlantic shipping route around the Cape of Good Hope. Supporting the supplying of some arms to South Africa are Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart and Defence Minister Denis Healey; holding back is the more politically astute Wilson.

It was during a previous tour at the foreign office in early 1965 that Stewart gave the South African ambassador in London a pledge that "reasonable demands" for replacements of arms already supplied would be given "favorable consideration." At that time the Labor cabinet had agreed to supply four Wasp antisubmarine helicopters to South Africa in addition to the six furnished by the Tory government in 1964.

In the light of this undertaking, Stewart is believed to have backed a relaxation of the arms embargo in the summer of 1969 when the South Africans demanded four more Wasps to replace three which had been lost. But at a cabinet meeting early the following October the South African demand was rejected.

Then the South Africans presented a further request for four replacement Buccaneer bombers. Wilson had reluctantly turned over 16 of these aircraft when Labor came to power in 1964, but had refused to let South Africa take up an option on an additional 14.

★ ★ ★

Following the rejection of the Wasp demand Westland Aircraft, which makes the aircraft, wrote to Stewart pointing out that a $1,250,000,000 order had been lost. Other British industrial corporations trading with South Africa in the general commercial field also protested that the loss of goodwill could jeopardize British markets in South Africa.

Meanwhile, the British ambassador in Pretoria warned the foreign office in London that demonstrations against the touring Springbok football team in Britain by groups protesting white-ruled South Africa's racial policies were alienating grass-roots opinion in South Africa against Britain.

So last November Stewart recommended that the cabinet agree to a South African request for four Buccaneers worth about $22,500,000. Stewart was backed in the cabinet by Healey. In both the foreign office and defence ministry the deal was privately believed by senior officials to be "in the bag."

Despite the United Nations resolution of 1964 banning arms sales to South Africa which the Labor government had pledged itself to maintain, some London newspapers saw the Stewart recommendation as heralding a policy change. This was strongly denied by foreign office spokesmen. But privately it is admitted that the issue is not yet dead. The cabinet is now believed studying the February ultimatum.

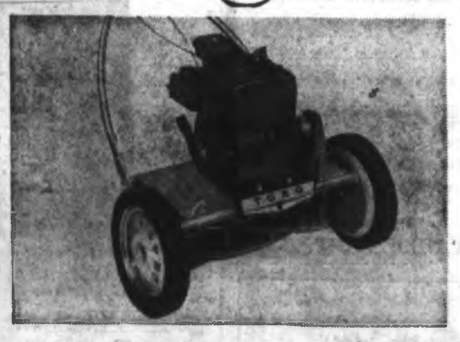

What is worrying the cabinet is that France may be given base rights at Simonstown. France is currently building three submarines for South Africa and has already supplied jet fighters and helicopters. If France signs a pact with South Africa, the effect on British trade could be severe.

Two-Point Attack on Breath Analysis Law

The constitutionality of a new Canadian law on breath analysis tests for drivers, already under attack in Vancouver, was questioned on two grounds Monday in Victoria Provincial Court.

The law, which went into effect late last year, makes it an offence if a driver refuses a police demand that the driver take a breath test.

It came under fire after prosecution evidence was presented in the trial of Wayne E. Roberts, 30, of 9633 8th Street in Sidney, who pleaded not guilty earlier to charges of impaired driving and refusing to take a breath analysis test in Saanich Feb. 19.

Victoria lawyer Dermod Owen-Flood, noting the law is already under fire in a Vancouver court case, claimed it is unconstitutional because:

● Parliament amended the Criminal Code to include the test and give a citizen the right to receive a sample from the test, but only the test was proclaimed into law.

● The Bill of Rights may be violated because the law forces a test that could be self-incriminating.

Judge William Ostler remanded the case to April 20 for argument by Owen-Flood and possibly representatives of the attorneys-general of Canada and B.C.

□

Robert George Gibb, 30, of 330 Plaskett, was fined $400 after pleading guilty last Friday to a charge of driving in Victoria Feb. 27 when his ability to drive was impaired by a drug.

No drug was named in court, but a doctor testified he had been treating Gibb since September, 1968, for withdrawal from drugs and Gibb had been receiving "other medications."

□

Gerhard W. Bradasch, 26, of 628 Harbinger, was found guilty by Ostler after separate trials on a charge of shoplifting clothing worth $29.95 Feb. 19 at The Bay and on a charge of assaulting Alexander Mortimer, chief security officer in the store.

Bradasch was fined $250 for the theft and $75 for the assault. The judge said the evidence showed Bradasch realized just after leaving the store that he was being watched, so he returned to put the two items of clothing back in a fitting room.

The judge said the theft was "complete at the sidewalk . . . any change of heart was too late." Court was told Mortimer was hit in the face after Bradasch had been apprehended and was told police would be called.

□

"You behaved like a wild animal," Ostler said to Peter Stevenson Jones, 25, of 682 Alpha, who pleaded guilty to a charge of assaulting a peace officer. Court was told Victoria Constable Richard Mitchell was hit twice during a family dispute Sunday at 682 Alpha. Jones was remanded to March 24 for sentence after a pre-sentence report.

□

A fine of $20 was given to Arnold Spencer Jones, 20, of Nanaimo, after he pleaded guilty to a charge of causing a disturbance by being drunk on Government Street early Sunday. Police testified Jones was standing in the middle of the street with a daffodil in his hand, waving the daffodil in the direction of oncoming vehicles.

□

In the court section of Judge J. A. Byers, a $500 fine was given to George L. McKay, 2858 Quadra, after McKay pleaded guilty to a charge of impaired driving.

□

In Provincial Court at Sidney, Judge D. G. Ashby gave a $350 fine to Larry George Imbrey, Calgary, after Imbrey pleaded guilty to a charge of impaired driving.

Holdups Probed

Police continued Monday with what one officer called "very active investigation" of two holdups Saturday night in Oak Bay and Victoria.

Oak Bay police said several citizens had provided information in their hunt for two gun-carrying youths who took $5 from Oak Bay Ald. Douglas Watts as he walked along Hampshire Road near Hampshire Terrace.

They said a number of leads were being checked but declined to elaborate.

In Victoria, police said several suspects were questioned about the robbery of $47 from Oliver Leslie Pirie, 712 Yates, behind a shop at 830 Fisgard. One of the youths had a knife and the other may have carried a gun.

Police said "a couple of lineups" were held but gave no other details.

Death Calls For Inquiry

An inquiry will be held into the weekend death of a 75-year-old Victoria man, Victoria's Coroner Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre said Monday.

The body of Benjamin Bennett, 945 Fairfield, was found late Monday morning on the beach off Dallas Road at the foot of Menzies.

Forces Man Drowns During Hike

One of two friends in the Canadian Forces who went on a weekend hike and rock-hunting expedition along the west coast Lifesaving Trail drowned Sunday at Port Renfrew near the end of the journey.

Sooke RCMP said Monday that Warrant Officer Gerald Samuel Jenns, 41, of 197 Egerton in Belmont Park, drowned when a small inflatable rubber raft capsized in Port Renfrew harbor near the mouth of the Gordon River.

His companion, Cpl. Kenneth George Senft, 28, of 2780 Crainger, grabbed a floating packsack and managed to use the current to swim and push himself to shore.

Police said Jenns, a member of the CFB Esquimalt shore patrol, and Senft began Saturday morning to hike the trail from Port Renfrew to Port Alberni and pursue their hobby of rockhounding along the way.

The weather turned bad and the two turned around at Camper Cove. About 6:30 p.m. Sunday, they got to the usual hikers' crossing point on the Gordon River and inflated a raft that one had been carrying in a backpack, police said.

A strong current took the raft about 150 yards to the mouth of the river and then a shorter distance out into Port Renfrew harbor, where the capsizing occurred almost at once.

Police said Jenns never reappeared. Senft made a brief search, then headed for shore and initiated a wider hunt by half a dozen area residents. They body was found about 90 minutes later near an industrial site across the harbor.

The discovery was made by search volunteers Stan Robertson and Bud Iverson.

Funeral services for Jenns, who is survived by a wife and two children, will be held at Sands' chapel in Colwood at 10 a.m. Wednesday, followed by interment in the Veterans' Cemetery at Esquimalt.

Postal Slowdown Continues

Security Guards on Trucks If Necessary—Kiernans

MONTREAL (CP) — Mail delivery in the city slowed down again Monday when truck drivers walked off their job, but Postmaster-General Eric Kierans said in Ottawa the government will do whatever is necessary to get the mail moving.

Kierans told a news conference in Montreal Sunday that the post office will employ security guards to accompany mail trucks if necessary.

The Canadian Press erroneously reported Sunday that Kierans had said armed guards would be used if necessary.

The truckers walked off their jobs Monday amid reports of renewed violence in the dispute which has disrupted mail services since Feb. 3.

★ ★ ★

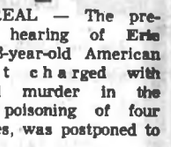

A postal official said only 20 drivers reported for work at the central post office, loaded their trucks with mail, locked the vehicles and left the premises. In some cases, keys had been broken in their locks.

A three-hour delay followed until mail was transferred to independent trucks—including grocery delivery vans and panel trucks—and taken to district postal stations accompanied by a security car.

Violence flared Saturday after 450 postal truck drivers rejected a compensation offer—severance pay in effect—totalling $350,000 by Kierans. The minister said it was "just an example of our recognition of our moral responsibilities."

The drivers are employed by G. Lapalme Inc., which will lose its exclusive mail delivery contract on Montreal Island March 31 when five new trucking firms take over.

Rescuer Nixon's Brother

SEATTLE (AP) — A helicopter piloted by President Nixon's brother rescued two teenage Seattle girls from Puget Sound during the weekend, but they did not know the pilot was Lt.-Cmdr. Ed Nixon.

When they found out Monday, Maria Daubenspeck, 14, said: "Gee, I think that was pretty neat."

Maria and Ann Kunzl, 15, were a mile offshore in a 12-foot sailboat when wind and tide kept them from getting back.

Postal Slowdown Continues

Security Guards on Trucks If Necessary—Kiernans

MONTREAL (CP) — Mail delivery in the city slowed down again Monday when truck drivers walked off their job, but Postmaster-General Eric Kierans said in Ottawa the government will do whatever is necessary to get the mail moving.

Kierans told a news conference in Montreal Sunday that the post office will employ security guards to accompany mail trucks if necessary.

The Canadian Press erroneously reported Sunday that Kierans had said armed guards would be used if necessary.

The truckers walked off their jobs Monday amid reports of renewed violence in the dispute which has disrupted mail services since Feb. 3.

★ ★ ★

A postal official said only 20 drivers reported for work at the central post office, loaded their trucks with mail, locked the vehicles and left the premises. In some cases, keys had been broken in their locks.

A three-hour delay followed until mail was transferred to independent trucks—including grocery delivery vans and panel trucks—and taken to district postal stations accompanied by a security car.

Violence flared Saturday after 450 postal truck drivers rejected a compensation offer—severance pay in effect—totalling $350,000 by Kierans. The minister said it was "just an example of our recognition of our moral responsibilities."

The drivers are employed by G. Lapalme Inc., which will lose its exclusive mail delivery contract on Montreal Island March 31 when five new trucking firms take over.

B.C. Mines Take Dip

VANCOUVER — Big chunks were bitten out of prices of a number of mining stocks. Heaviest losses were in Adanac which fell .60 to 2.60 and in Utica which hit a new low at 1.35 for a drop of .50 on the day.

Also lower in the mining groups were Buttle, Gibralter, Silver Chief and Shield, all off .20. Casino was off .15 and Alice Lake .12.

Brenda up ⅝ at 13½ was a strong exception.

Captain International was strong among industrials climbing further .50 to 5.75. Driver lost most of last week's gains dropping .20 to .95.

Airlines, utilities, motors, rubber issues and farm implements were generally lower.

Oils were active following statements by oil industry officials that a cabinet committee's recommendation to replace the oil import quota system now in effect with a tariff system would increase imports.

Prices of oil issues included Jersey Standard, off ⅛ to 54⅛; Occidental Petroleum, off ⅝ at 22⅛; Gulf, off ¼ at 25⅛; Texaco, off ¼ at 26⅝; and Atlantic Richfield, off 4⅝ at 60⅝.

Budget Hurts Stocks

TORONTO (CP) — The market fell sharply in light trading, apparently in response to Thursday's federal government budget speech.

Trust and loan and bank issues, which paced Friday's losses, led Monday's industrial decline.

Investors Group A lost ⅛ to 8, Royal Trust ⅛ to 27⅝, Royal Bank ⅜ to 23⅛, Canadian Imperial Bank ⅝ to 22⅛ and Bank of Montreal ¼ to 16⅛.

McIntyre rose 3 to 185 after dropping to 176 and Falconbridge, in which McIntyre has a 37-per-cent interest, dropped 3 to 176.

Banks in Decline

MONTREAL (CP) — Banks led the market lower in light trading.

The Banque Canadienne Nationale declined ⅛ to 11, the Royal ¼ to 23¼, Bank of Nova Scotia ⅛ to 21¼ and Bank of Montreal ⅛ to 16¼. Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce gained ⅝ to 22⅝.

Among senior mines and oils, Inco slipped ⅝ to 48¼ and Imperial Oil ⅜ to 20⅝. Rio Algom was up ¼ to 23.

B.C. Telephone fell 1⅛ to 66 on a 423-share trade.

Seagrams was off ⅜ to 50⅝. Canadian Hydrocarbons ⅜ to 14 and Melchers ⅜ to 14½.

Caught in Two Minds

NEW YORK (AP) — The market decline accelerated.

Investors appeared caught between two conflicting fears — that further steps were necessary to bring inflation under control and that the economic slowdown in the United States was proving more pronounced than expected.

White Paper: Read It Soon

A number of people is being urged to write to Prime Minister Trudeau, or Finance Minister Benson, to protest against the proposals in the white paper on tax reform.

But according to a recent public poll, it has been established only 50 per cent of the Canadian taxpayers have read the report.

The result is that when asked to say what specific parts of the proposals they object to, many are in difficulties, and have only a foggy notion of what they are complaining about.

HELP FOR SOME

For the sake of those who find themselves in this position, here are some of the main points of criticism lodged against the proposals.

Higher rates of taxation for most Canadians in the $10,000-$15,000 a year bracket.

Imposition of capital gains tax on investments every five years, even though the gains have not been realized.

Higher rate of capital gains tax on personal goods, including real estate and closely held Canadian corporations, than on capital gains from widely held Canadian stocks (those with ready marketability such as listed stocks).

Increase of complexities which will be involved in the filing of the annual income tax return (professional help will be a must for many).

RAINY DAY

Imposition of new tax penalties on those individuals who seek to save for the rainy day.

The abolition of the low rate of corporation tax on the first $35,000 of earned income. (Small businesses say this will be disastrous in their efforts to keep competitive with the big corporations).

Limiting tax-free "entertaining" allowances to $150 a year per person, even for those who entertain regularly in the normal course of their business.

NO APPROVAL

Assumption by the finance minister that higher taxes will be necessary in 1971 or 1972 than at present, and budgeting for such increases without parliamentary approval.

In any case, any persons feeling strongly enough to write to Ottawa about it, should certainly acquire a copy of the White Paper.

It is written in fairly non-technical terms, and can be obtained free at the local offices of the Canadian revenue department.

BRENDA 'SATISFIED'

Brenda Mines Ltd. reports its open pit and concentrator equipment is in commission and ready for the 24,000-tons-a-day production rate set for the big copper-moly mine in the Okanagan.

B. O. Brynelsen, president, says metallurgical results have been promising and recoveries have exceeded the pilot plant estimates of 88 per cent for copper and 82 per cent for molybdenum.

Compaction and freezing of fine ore material in the ore bins has created some initial problems in handling, while a leaching section to reduce the impurities in the molybdenum concentrate is ready to start operating.

The president said progress in all areas has been satisfactory.

TRUST FORESTALLED

The British Columbia government has forestalled one of Canada's leading trust companies with its new age of assent bill shortly to become law.

In its March bulletin, Canada Trust has urged the provinces to get together with Newfoundland, New Brunswick and Saskatchewan that will make it possible for persons to make a valid will before reaching the age of 21.

The new government act which will allow all persons over 19 years of age to vote, drink, and assume all the benefits and responsibilities of being an adult, covers the right of these youngsters to draw up a will that will stand up from his 19th birthday.

THE MINORS

Canada Trust pointed out that minors who had estates and who died before their 21st birthday could not in any way direct how their estates were to be distributed, even if they had wives and children.

The B.C. bill will cover the trust company's complaint so far as this province is concerned.

JOLLY GIANT GROWS

Increased gross earnings are reported by Giant Mascot Mines Ltd. in a preview of the first quarter of the fiscal year (Oct. 1 to Dec. 31, 1969) in the president's annual report to shareholders.

The quarter produced a gross of $846,240, only $21,692 less than the gross earnings for the whole of the 1969 fiscal year, said president J. Austin.

MORE MOMENTUM

Momentum is being gained at the company's nickel-copper mill near Hope, where the grade of ore is improving.

Austin said the new posted price of nickel which came into effect last November ($1.28 a pound against the previous $1.08) showed up only partly in the first-quarter figures, and the major impact of the 25-per-cent increase would be realized at the end of the current quarter.

The company is considering doubling its mill tonnage to 3,000 tons a day if exploration work justifies the step.

□

BEST YEAR YET

Falconbridge Nickel Mines Ltd. broke all its sales and earnings records in 1969 when its net earnings of $45,154,000 ($9.13 a share) were up from $24,441,000 ($4.99) in 1968.

The company's previous best performance had been in 1966 when the net earnings were $27,725,000 ($5.66).

Record metal deliveries despite a three-month strike, plus higher metal prices, were responsible.

□

READY TO SPLIT

Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting Co., which plans to split its stock three-for-one, reported record net earnings in 1969 of $29,698,514 ($9.86 a share), up from $21,134,880 ($7.42) a year ago.

High prices for copper and zinc and treatment of tax-free ore from two of its six producing mines were responsible.

Operating revenue was $95,674,349 against $79,699,926.

RECESSION FOR SOME

The declining production rate in the automobile industry is shown up in the half-year results of Kelsey-Hayes Canada Ltd., a major manufacturer of parts.

In the six-month period to Feb. 28, Kelsey-Hayes net profit was $312,344 (28 cents a share), down more than two-thirds from $970,347 (88 cents) in the corresponding period a year earlier.

Coking Coal Train Starts First Run

VANCOUVER — The first unit train to carry coking coal from Kaiser Resources' new mining opertions left the Elkview plant in the East Kootenays at 11 a.m. Monday en route to the west coast carrying high grade coking coal for transshipment to the Japanese steel industry.

In the announcement from Sparwood, G. E. Baisley, vice-president and general manager said "Our new mine is in operation. Our modern coal preparation plant has begun its shakedown, and we expect to be running at full swing within a few weeks."

"Canadian Pacific Rail has marshalled a fleet of newly designed coal cars and engines for the unit train service. Our port facility, Westshore Terminals Ltd., at Roberts Bank is ready and awaits the first shipments of coal as soon as the rail line to Roberts Bank is completed. That completion is scheduled for early April; in the interim shipments will be made from Port Moody."

★ ★ ★

"We have an April commitment to begin shipments on our new export contracts and we are pleased and proud to be on schedule," Baisley said. "The hard work and dedication of all our employees and the coordinated effort of over 50 construction contractors and their employees has brought this project into existence, and we compliment them on a job well done."

"The unit train concept coupling Canada's largest and most modern coal mine with our new terminal facilities at Roberts Bank has resulted in Canadian coal becoming a major factor in international commerce," Baisley said.

Foreign Investors Add $625,000,000 To Canada in 1969

OTTAWA (CP) — Another $625,000,000 of foreign direct investment came into Canada last year, mainly into the manufacturing, petroleum and natural gas industries, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported Monday.

The figure compares with foreign direct investment amounting to $610,000,000 in 1968, and a record $790,000,000 in 1966.

DES said 70 per cent of the year's inflow of foreign capital came from the United States. Capital from the United Kingdom was cut sharply.

FINANCE FIELD

Foreign take-overs occurred in Canadian enterprises in the food and beverages, forest products, electronics, asbestos, and finance and life insurance fields.

On the other hand, direct Canadian investment abroad rose last year to a record $255,000,000 from $135,000,000 in 1968, which with a like amount in 1963 was the previous record.

About three-fifths of this went into United States industry, one-fifth to Europe, and the remainder chiefly to other countries of the Western Hemisphere—Mexico, the Caribbean and Central and South America.

AMERICAN FOOD

About half the new Canadian investment abroad went into American food and alcoholic beverages manufacturing as the Canadian tobacco products industry diversified its interests.

DES makes no estimate of the current worth of foreign investment in Canada or Canadian investment abroad.

It reported in December that at the end of 1966, United States investments in Canada had a book value of $25,644,000,000 while other foreign investments brought the total book value to $32,012,000,000. Since then, foreign direct investment has totalled another $1,926,000,000.

PAYMENT BALANCE

The bureau reported Monday that Canada's over-all international balance-of-payments deficit last year was $722,000,000.

Canada's commodity trade surplus narrowed last year to $869,000,000 from $1,376,000,000 in 1968, as previously reported, but the deficit on non-commodity trade grew wider, to $1,580,000,000 from $1,436,000,000.

Interest payments made by Canadian borrowers—principally the municipal, provincial and federal governments—also rose last year. But this was to some extent offset by lower payments of dividends and profits to foreign owners of Canadian business, as profit margins fell.

The bureau said inflows of foreign capital in long-term investment in Canada increased by $572,000,000 during the year to reach $2,162,000,000, exceeding the $2,000,000,000 mark for the first time.

Infant Outfits Flammable

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Infant christening sets manufactured by Adorable Children's Dress Co., Brooklyn, N.Y., have been found to be dangerously flammable, the Federal Trade Commission said.

The sets, which retail between $25 and $35, consist of a dress, cape and bonnet made of 100 per cent white cotton organdy. The FTC said the manufacturer had agreed to discontinue sales.

Executives Lose Bonuses

DETROIT (AP) — The top three officers of financially-troubled Chrysler Corp. lost more than $1,000,000 in personal bonuses in 1969, the firm says in a proxy statement.

No bonuses were paid the three executives by the company, which had declines in auto sales and profits last year.

Board Chairman Lynn Townsend's salary for 1969 was $200,000. In 1968, Townsend was paid a total of $630,700, which included the $200,000 salary.

Virgil Boyd, vice-chairman, received a salary of $175,000 for 1969, while in 1968 he was paid a total of $535,967, including a salary of $166,667.

John Riccardo, who recently succeeded Boyd as Chrysler president, was paid a total of $317,900, including $100,000 salary, in 1968, but received only his salary of $120,000 for 1969.

It's about the more than half a million students who will be looking for summer jobs this year. The jobs they need to continue their education.
These young people have a lot to offer employers. Good brains, sound bodies, and a lot of ambition.
Last year, post-secondary students received $500,000,000 in income from summer jobs.
They earned it. This year, there'll be even more students looking for summer jobs. They will be tomorrow's graduates and your full time employees.
So chances are that the student who learns the ins and outs of your business this summer will want to stay with you after graduation.
For an employer, that's what student power is.

Oakalla Staff Votes

Guards Favor Strike

By DON COLLINS

Put the money on the line or face a possible prison guard strike.

This, in effect, is the message to the provincial government from the 430 guards and other staff workers at Oakalla Prison who have gone on record as favoring a strike if such action is considered necessary.

It is also seen by unionists as one more sign of the growing militancy of the B.C. Government Employees Union.

PRISON STAFF

Despite B.C. labor laws which forbid a strike by provincial employees, the prison staff voted 298-11 Sunday to take such action if the 1970 wage increase doesn't prove acceptable.

It is the second time recently that the government workers, discontent with the way things are, have departed from the normal procedure.

The union has decided to let the various branches hold ratification meetings once the increases are announced by the government. Normally, the procedure would appear unusual in that the government has the final say. The BCGEU does not have collective bargaining rights.

However, the move is part of the union's stepped-up campaign for bargaining rights.

The Oakalla meeting was attended by representatives from the staff at Colquitz jail on Wilkinson Road in Saanich, Haney correctional institute and the minimum security camps at Chilliwack and Allouette River.

All were reported by the union to have pledged their support.

The possible strike is still subject to approval of the union's provincial executive.

"The vote is an indication that branch members mean business in their bid for wage parity this year with guards at the B.C. penitentiary," Oakalla branch president Jack Douglas said.

A committee has been set up to ensure continued prison security in the event of a strike, he said.

"We have no intention of abandoning our responsibility to either the people of B.C. or to the inmates."

The prison houses 750 inmates.

The staff at Oakalla and several other prisons want a pay boost of from 10 to 18 per cent for the 1,000 guards, tradesmen and kitchen staff in the provincial service.

General secretary John Fryer admits such a strike would be illegal, but adds: "The dilemma dacing our union members is that strike action is the only effective course open to them if they are being treated unjustly.

NO RECOURSE

"The law provides no recourse to conciliation or arbitration when there is a dispute over wages or other working conditions."

Fryer, who came to the union last July from Ottawa where he was research director with the Canadian Labor Congress, has had much to do with strengthening the organization.

Since then the union membership has grown from 12,000 to almost 14,000 and has averaged an increase of 200 for each of the last six months or so, according to its officers.

Guards at Oakalla earn $440 to $537 a month. They say their counterparts in the Vancouver city police jail earn $545 to $683 and that the B.C. penitentiary rate will be $482 to $655 April 1.

The only strike ever waged against the B.C. government tied up ferry service in 1968. It earned the marine branch a form of bargaining rights.

Chest Meets Wednesday

The annual meeting of the Community Chest of Greater Victoria will be held Wednesday, not today as reported in Saturday's Colonist.

The meeting, at noon in the Tokyo Room of the Imperial Inn, will be addressed by Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis, president of the Union of B.C. Municipalities.

Film Saves Fungus

Serious problems do not always require complex solutions, some research technicians at the federal Forest Research Laboratory on Burnside Road have found.

In the past, a major obstacle to research directed at controlling tree diseases caused by fungi has been the fact that the fungi themselves must be studied.

To do such work, it is necessary to cultivate the fungi in the laboratory and then keep them alive long enough to observe and experiment on them.

Unfurtunately, the environment or medium in which the organisms are grown would dry out and take the fungus with it.

The only way to get around the problem used to be time-consuming periodic transfers of the fungus cultures to fresh media, but two years ago George Reynolds and Walter Lock set out to find a better way.

They put media and fungi in test tubes and then sealed them with almost everything they could think of, including cotton plugs, plastic film and plastic or steel caps.

Each tube was weighed monthly for the succeeding year and then periodically for the next 10 months to determine moisture loss.

The winner? None other than simple polythelylene film of the type housewives use, placed under the test tube plug.

A spokesman for the lab said the discovery would be of value to all types of scientific research that must grow cultures.

Forestry Economist to Speak

An economist with the Planning and Economics Branch of the British Forestry Commission will be in Victoria Friday to discuss Old World Views on tree growing.

Arnold Grayson, who is co-author of the texts, Forest Planning and The Economics of Yield Planning, is considered to be one of Britains leading forestry economists.

His visit to Victoria is being sponsored by the University of British Columbia Faculty of Forestry and the Canadian Forestry Service.

Resource management, particularly in forestry, has long been practised in Europe and is more highly developed than in most sections of North America.

The lecture, which will be open to the public, will be at 10:30 a.m. in the Newcombe Auditorium of the Provincial Museum.

Look, Ma... Sunburned Gums!

NEW YORK (PA) — The ultra-violet rays in sunshine, the rays that give you a suntan, seem to slow down tooth decay, dental researchers said Monday.

They observed this effect in golden hamsters exposed to weak or strong ultra-violet lamps for 15 weeks.

Animals living under lamps weak in the ultra-violet rays, eating diets that promote tooth decay, had an average of 10.9 teeth with decay. Others raised under lamps strong in ultra-violet rays, while consuming exactly the same food had an average of 2.2 teeth with decay.

The experiment was undertaken after earlier studies had indicated reduced tooth decay in humans who had greater exposure to sunshine, Drs. R. P. Feller, S. W. Burney and I. M. Sharon told the International Association for Dental Research, which began a four-day convention Monday. The researchers are from the Veterans Administration Outpatient Clinic in Boston, and the School of Dentistry of the University of the Pacific in San Francisco.

The tooth-protective effect in humans has been thought to be from increased production of vitamin D. Ultra-violet light shining on the skin makes the human body produce vitamin D.

The new experiments with male hamsters noted a different effect upon the sex glands—a more rapid development—of the hamsters exposed to strong ultra-violet light compared with the others, but no great differences in other glands.

Cougars Even Series at 2-2 As Shibicky Supplies Spark

By KEVAN HULL

Alex Shibicky set the style Monday when Victoria Cougars defeated Vernon Essos, 5-2, at Memorial Arena to square the Hockey League final at 2-2.

Cougars have now come back from 5-4 and 10-5 losses in Vernon to record a 3-2 overtime win here on Sunday before assuring themselves of at least one more home game with a fine effort last night.

The teams take tonight off, play in Vernon on Wednesday and return on Thursday. If necessary, a seventh game will be played Friday in Vernon.

Tickets for the Thursday game are available today at Memorial Arena or Price and Smith Men's Wear.

They may be hard to obtain. There were 4139 fans, the most this season, and they were entertained in fine fashion by a Victoria club which appears to be taking over from a more tired Vernon crew.

While several Cougars came up with strong performances, Shibicky was the key to last night's victory.

A prime target of Vernon hitters, he rarely came out second best in the skirmishes. Shibicky continually kept the Essos from concentrating on hockey, as they looked for a piece of him instead.

THREE POINTS

In addition, he won about 80 per cent of his face-offs, set up the opening and closing goals of the game and got what proved to be the winning goal during a Cougar letdown late in the second period.

It was a typical Shibicky goal . . . nothing fancy. He was in the right spot at the right time to put the puck home after John Kwasney's shot bounced out from the goal post.

The goal, at 16:28, came between two giveaways to Vernon.

Gord Osinchuck deflected in the first goal at 15:32 after Cougars failed to clear on a routine play. Jack Marsh had the puck put on his stick by Dale Pennock, giving Ed Forslund no chance on the second goal, at 17:12.

FORSLUND SOLID

That made it 3-2 going into the final 20 minutes, when Forslund, who stopped two hard shots by Lawrence Quechuck on his left collarbone, continued his solid goalkeeping to enable Victoria to win safely.

Lon Miles, also doing a solid job on face-offs, scored on a fine rush at 6:41 of the third period and Ted Plowe, who also drew assists on two goals, finished the scoring from a scramble at 10:48.

FIRST-PERIOD GOALS

Kwasney, continuing his strong playoff performance, got Cougars started on a play with Shibicky at 12:30 of the first period. Chris Riddell, hanging on in a goalmouth scramble, added the second goal with 21 seconds remaining in the period.

Essos didn't have their usual fire after failing to come out on the winning end of hitting exchanges along the boards and Bruce Cowich got the best of the one fighting outbreak to tame defenceman Al Wahlstrom late in the second period.

TIRED AT END

Vernon appeared a tired club at the end of the game and faced a long drive home by car today.

Cougars will fly to Vernon Wednesday afternoon, returning the same night to rest for what they hope will be the final game, and a second straight playoff championship, Thursday.

Forslund was the only Cougar to pick up an injury in the game.

"The doctor doesn't think the collarbone is broken," he said after the game. "I'll have it X-rayed tomorrow to make sure. It's sore though and I have a hard job raising my arm."

Cougars were without Shayne Webster. The plucky winger finally gave in to a severe groin pull suffered at the start of the semi-final series with Kamloops.

Alex Shibicky

Munro Fires Winner

Scott Munro's 25-foot slap shot at 7:19 of the second overtime period Sunday gave Victoria Cougars their first win of the B.C. Junior Hockey League final series with Vernon Essos, 3-2.

Munro made no mistake in the sudden-death overtime session after receiving a perfect pass from centre Murray Kennett.

Taking the pass in full flight at the Vernon blueline, the right-winger burst past the defence and gave Gary Osborne no chance with a low shot to the stick side.

Osborne and Victoria's Ed Forslund both turned in fine performances in a game in which both teams showed the effects of the tiring playoff schedule. Osborne blocked 47 shots, Forslund 40.

Both goalkeepers blocked several breakaway attempts in a game which was scoreless until Randy Bock drove the puck past Osborne at 16:14 of the second period.

Gord Osinchuck evened the score before the period ended. Victoria's Ted Plowe, at 9:31, and Wayne Dye, 29 seconds later, traded goals in the third period to force overtime.

Victoria came on in the extra time, outshooting Vernon 5-3, in the 10-minute straight-time session and 8-2 in the sudden-death portion which followed.

Three White Sox Homers Extend Twins' Loss Skein

Minnesota Twins' winless streak reached nine games Monday as Chicago White Sox ripped last year's American League West champs, 9-4, with a barrage of extra-base blows.

The White Sox got home runs from Walt Williams, Syd O'Brien and Bob Spence. Spence's was a three-run shot. Rich Morales added a triple.

FIVE HOME RUNS

Boston Red Sox crashed five homers, including two by Carl Yastrzemski, in routing Cincinnati Reds, 11-7. George Scott, Mike Andrews and Luis Alvarado also connected for home runs. Johnny Bench had a two-run homer for the Reds.

Pitcher Mike Jackson slammed a three-run homer and Tim McCarver knocked in three other tallies as Philadelphia Phillies slammed St. Louis Cardinals, 14-2.

Seattle, State Get Restraining Order

SEATTLE (AP) — A temporary restraining order to prevent the American League from transferring the Seattle Pilots franchise was issued Monday in King County Superior Court in a suit filed by the state of Washington and the City of Seattle.

The complaint asks damages of more than $80,000,000 if the franchise is moved. This was based on $25,000,000 to the state, $1,550,000 to the city and an unspecified amount of other damages to the general public treble under the state's anti-trust laws.

Judge Solie M. Ringold granted the state's request for the restrainer and ordered the defendants to show cause at 9:30 a.m. Friday why a temporary injunction should not be issued.

Defendants in the suit are the American League, all of its 12 owners, and the principal owners of the Seattle franchise, William R. Daley of Cleveland and Dewey and Max Soriano of Seattle.

Playoff hopes of the Seattle SuperSonics dimmed considerably in National Basketball Association play Sunday and Monday.

Sonics, who upset New York Knickerbockers in Portland Friday, stumbled Sunday against the injury-weakened Cincinnati Royals and were edged, 116-113, in the Ohio city.

Meanwhile, Chicago Bulls, in a three-way tussle with Phoenix Suns for the last two playoff spots in the Western Division, clinched nothing worse than fourth place by winning two games.

Bulls knocked over Milwaukee Bucks, 130-107, Sunday with Bob Love scoring 47 points, then edged the Royals, 142-140, Monday night to move out of reach of the Sonics.

Sonics, a game and a half behind the Suns, have road games left against the Bulls, Boston Celtics and Los Angeles Lakers. The Suns play trailers in their remaining four games, hosting San Diego Rockets, San Francisco Warriors and Celtics and playing in San Diego.

While first place and the last playoff club in the West was all that remained to be decided in this season's schedule, the league announced its new four-division alignment for next season.

The new clubs — Buffalo, Cleveland, Houston and Portland — will play in different divisions.

Portland joins Seattle, San Diego, San Francisco and Los Angeles in the Pacific group, and Cleveland will play in the Central division with Chicago, Cincinnati, Milwaukee and Detroit.

The other divisions have only four clubs — Baltimore, Atlanta, Phoenix and Houston in the Southern and Boston, Buffalo, New York and Philadelphia in the Atlantic.

There will also be a four-team senior league which, if plans can be completed, will furnish an all-star team to play in an inter-city league with Vancouver, Bellingham and Everett.

Orr Sets Scoring Record Rangers Continue Plunge

—AP

Bobby Orr (4) forces puck by Roy Edwards for record 100th point

Bobby Orr reached and passed 100 points Sunday but the main interest in the National Hockey League remained centred in the tightening East Division race.

When Sunday's firing was over, four of the five clubs in the playoff struggle had registered gains because New York Rangers continued to skid toward elimination.

Their winless streak extended through a ninth game when Minnesota North Stars came up with a 4-2 victory, the Rangers were left only two points out of fifth place.

They've managed only two ties since a Feb. 25 win over St. Louis Blues, That left them leading the division by four points, 12 points ahead of the fifth-place Detroit Red Wings and 11 points ahead of the fourth-place Chicago Black Hawks.

Now Boston Bruins are five points ahead of the Rangers, the Hawks are two points ahead with one game in hand, the Wings one point behind with two games in hand and Montreal Canadiens two points behind with a game in hand.

WORSLEY BRILLIANT

Rangers ran afoul of an old teammate in their latest disaster. Forty-year-old Lorne Worsley played brilliantly to block 53 shots. He was particularly spectacular in the first period, when Rangers almost completely dominated play but came away trailing by 12.

Worsley yielded a second period goal but Barry Cullen broke the tie with 75 seconds left and red-hot Bill Collins made sure of victory by shooting into an open goal 11 seconds from time.

Worsley's goaling was quite a boon to a later set of ex-teammates. Montreal Canadiens had trouble with Toronto Maple Leafs but the great play of their recent teammate made the 3-3 tie good enough to be a gain.

FLASHES OF FORM

Canadiens, now unbeaten in the last three games, showed some signs of oldtime form in the first period but needed the standout effort of goalkeeper Rogatien Vachon when they tried to sit on a 3-2 lead for the last period.

Vachon made 23 stops in the final 20 minutes, and might have held the lead but for a crazily-bouncing puck which came off the end boards and couldn't be controlled until the alert Ron Ellis rushed up to whack it in the net.

Meanwhile, the Hawks won for the sixth straight time and the Wings scrambled to a tie.

Led by Pit Martin's line, the Hawks breezed by Los Angeles Kings, 5-2, to move in on the Bruins, who shared the points with the Wings in a 5-5 encounter.

Martin, who criticized his teammates openly for lack of team play before the season started, scored his 23rd goal and provided three scoring passes for linemates Jim Pappin and Gerry Pinder.

Orr turned in an overwhelming performance for the 14,835 Boston fans, who forced a 10-minute stoppage of play when the young defenceman got his 100th point early in the second period. That's how long it took to clear the debris off the ice.

And it was a spectacular point. Bruins were playing shorthanded when Orr got the puck deep in his own zone. He blistered his way up the ice and beat Roy Edwards from directly in front.

FOUR-POINT NIGHT

It was Orr's 27th goal, and it gave his club a 3-2 lead. He scored his 26th goal and provided an assist in the first period to close in on the century mark, then finished off by setting up Phil Esposito for the 4-4 goal in the third period to get to 101 points.

Orr is the fourth player, and first defenceman, to score 100 points in the NHL. Esposito, who holds the record of 126, Bobby Hull (107) and Gordie Howe (103) all did it last season.

Lotz' Earnings Tops After Monsanto Win

PENSACOLA, Fla. — Dick Lotz, who had won only one minor tournament in six years of pro golf but who has been among the leaders in recent tournaments, pulled away from the field in the final round Sunday to win the $150,000 Monsanto Open by three strokes.

The $30,000 winner's share boosted Lotz' earnings for the year to $54,925, highest on the Professional Golfers Association tour.

The 27-year-old Californian, whose only previous win was in the 1969 $50,000 Alameda County Open, shot a three-under-par 68 to finish the 72-hole tournament with 275, nine under par.

Lotz started the cool, sunny day in a tie for first place with veteran Bill Collins but moved in front to stay when Collins bogeyed the first hole. Plagued by an strained ankle suffered Saturday, Collins had little but trouble Sunday, quickly fell from contention and wound up with a 78 and 285 total.

STOCKTON SECOND

Dave Stockton, shaking off the effects of a 73 on Saturday, came back with a 67 for 278 to finish second and pocket $17,000. PGA champion Ray Floyd, in second place after 16 holes of the final round, took a double-bogey six on the 17th hole and wound up in third place with 280, worth $10,650.

Homero Blancas, who barely made the halfway cut, shot a brilliant 64 on the 6635-yard Pensacola Country Club, toughened for the final round, and finished at 281 to share fourth place with British Open champion, Tony Jacklin.

New Zealand left-hander Bob Charles and John Miller finished with 282s.

PLAYER DISTURBED

South Africa's Gary Player, making his first U.S. appearance since last August's PGA championship when he was a target of racial militants because of his country's attitude toward blacks, had a 73 Sunday but finished at 283 with young Bob Stanton and veteran Paul Harney.

Player had appeared a bit disturbed when he was informed after Saturday's round that there were reports that Black Panthers had threatened him if he goes ahead with his plans to stage an exhibition tour for the benefit of the United Negro College fund.

Arnold Palmer, making his first appearance in this gulf-coast city in five years, shot a 69 but finished at even-par 284 along with former two-time champion Gay Brewer, Tommy Aaron, Fred Marti, Lou Graham and Grier Jones, the half-way leader.

Wayne Vollmer of Vancouver shot 74 for 285 and won $1,809.

Lotz, who said he practiced until nearly dark after Saturday's round, made no effort to conceal his joy over winning.

"I've been playing awfully well since the first of the year, so I guess something good was bound to come of it," said Lotz, younger brother of John Lotz, who also plays on the tour.

"I skipped Doral but counting Tucson, Orlando and here, I've been in the 60s on 10 of my last 11 rounds."

He carded 68, 70 and 69 on his first three rounds here.

LUNN DROPS

Bob Lunn, leading money winner a week ago, dropped to second place with $51,718. Lunn missed the cut here.

Others in the top 10 in earnings are: Bruce Devlin, $39,794; Lee Trevino, $33,974; Mike Hill, $33,477; Pete Brown $32,393; Bert Yancey, $30,898; Jacklin, $28,001; Jack Nicklaus $27,628; and Billy Casper, $27,248.

Trueman Rink Tops Bonspiel

Jack Trueman, calling the shots for a rink which had his former skip, Keith Dagg, as vice skip, came out as the biggest winner in the annual men's bonspiel at the Victoria Curling Club.

He won the McCall Brothers primary Sunday and with the victory came the Grand Aggregate championship. Trueman's rink, which had John Balloch and Don Auld on the front end, finished with an 8-1 record in the two primary events.

Winner of the "A" primary was Lloyd Larson and his combination of O. J. Powell, Gordon Benson and Pete Gibson. Larson missed out on a second victory when he was beaten in the final of the event he sponsors, the Crest Motel, by Jim Armstrong.

It was almost a sweep for host-club curlers. Gus Macdonald and Jack Smith were also event winners and the only outsider to score was Harry Guika's Playland rink, which bested Gordon Reeson of the Racquet Club in the Eaton's event.

STOCKHOLM — Favored Russia is leading the six-team world hockey championship after two days of play, ahead of Sweden on goal average after two games for each club.

The Russians, seeking their eighth straight title, rolled over East Germany, 12-1, on Sunday for their second victory.

Sweden kept pace by edging Czechoslovakia, 5-4, in the first meeting between the "big three." However, Russia is 14-2 in goals for and against while Sweden is 11-5.

Fast-improving Finland, which gave Russia a fright before taking a 1-2 setback Saturday, trounced Poland, 9-1, in Sunday's other game.

Third-period goals by Stig Johansson and Anders Hebberg gave Sweden a 5-3 lead and the Czechs couldn't close the gap until late in the game, when Jiri Kochta scored.

Defencemen Nils Johannson and Tonny Abrahamsson got Sweden off to a 2-0 start but Oldrich Machac and Jan Suchy tied it up before the first period ended. Both clubs scored once in the second period.

Alexander Maltsev and Evgeny Mishakov led the Russian onslaught with four and three goals, respectively.

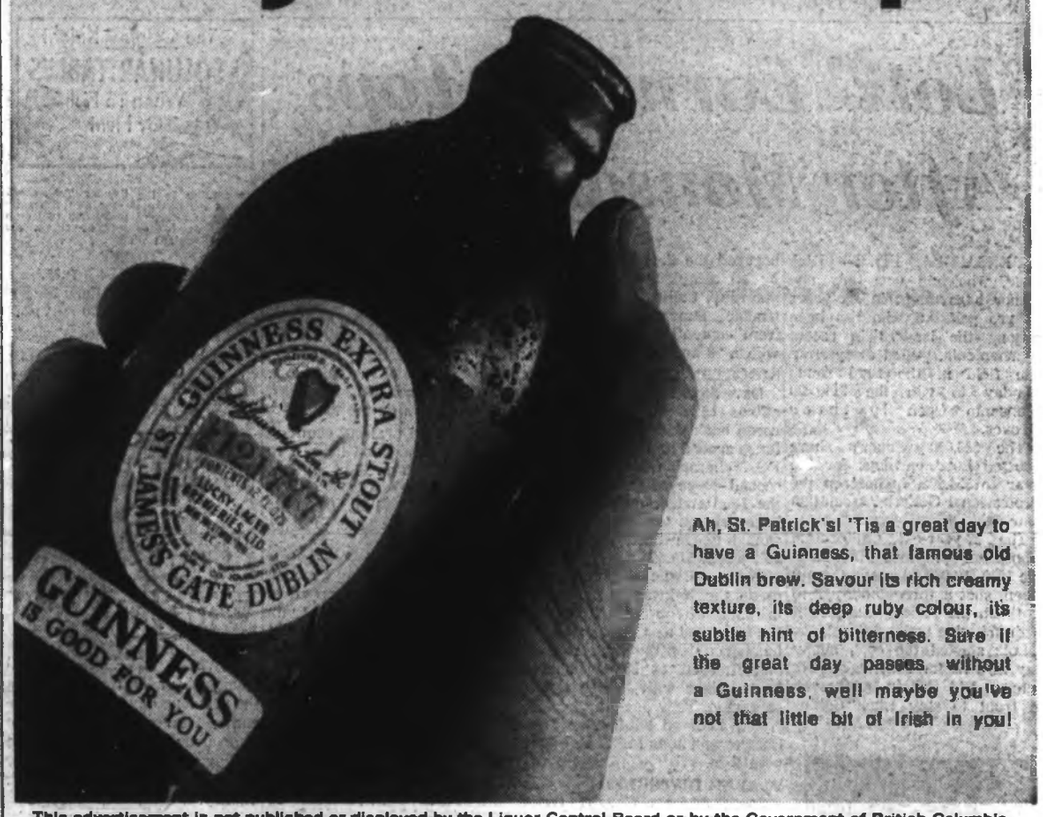

Pekka Leimu scored three times and Matti Murto twice for the Finns, who scored six of their goals in the last period.

The tournament, a double round-robbin, will continue until the end of the month.

Bike Winner

Graham Wright won the opening race of the Victoria Wheelers' cycling club season Sunday, covering the 20-mile road course in 56 minutes and 56 seconds. Bernard Destrube was second, a minute and 26 seconds later, winning a sprint from third-place Karl Fawthorpe.

Get your Irish up!

Ah, St. Patrick's! 'Tis a great day to have a Guinness, that famous old Dublin brew. Savour its rich creamy texture, its deep ruby colour, its subtle hint of bitterness. Sure if the great day passes without a Guinness, well maybe you've not that little bit of Irish in you!

Boarding Homes for Elderly

Grants Going Up

A bill introduced Monday in the Legislature will raise the amount of government and other sponsoring grants to subsidized boarding homes for elderly citizens.

The bill, which amends the Elderly Citizens' Housing Act, increases the provincial government's share of "boarding home low-rental housing units" from one-third to 35 per cent, while increasing the share borne by municipality, regional district or other non-profit donors from 10 to 15 per cent.

The sharing formula for "self-contained low-rental housing units" remains at one-third and 10 per cent.

The government also introduced a bill that clarifies several aspects of the Regional Hospital Districts Act.

The amendments include provision for appointment of deputy chairman, clarification of tax-exempt status of property owned by a district, authorization of executive committees' right to do routine business, clarification of the basis of taxation as being similar to school taxation, the ability to increase the term for temporary borrowing for capital and non-capital purpose, and clarification of voters' qualifications.

A third bill introduced a bill to amend the Mineral Act in which new provisions are proposed for purchase of surface rights by the owner of a mineral claim. One change increases the fee for surface rights grant from $10 to $25.

IN THE LEGISLATURE

Hospital Talk Set

Health Minister Loffmark has called regional hospital authorities to his office Friday for a meeting over the Belleville Street controversy.

The issue involves the future of St. Joseph's Hospital.

A spokesman for the regional district said Monday that the talks in Loffmark's office will be a continuation of those started after the controversy began some time ago.

Attending will be members of the regional hospital district and "possibly others," said the spokesman.

Loffmark has said Belleville Street cannot dissect St. Joseph's proposed new site where St. Ann's Academy now stands, and the city says an interchange around the area would cost about $2,000,000.

The city wants a provincial contribution to the $2,000,000 bill, but Municipal Affairs Minister Campbell has virtually said "no."

Teachers Plan Action

By CLEMENT CHAPPLE

Provincial Secretary Wesley Black stood firm Monday in the face of a warning from the B.C. Teachers' Federation that mass resignations or a strike may result from the government's refusal to increase teachers' pensions.

The warning came earlier Monday from Don Jorgenson, a member of a 19-member BCTF delegation lobbying MLAs Monday and today.

"I feel there is a very good chance this may happen," said Jorgenson. "Teachers feel they have nothing to lose and possibly something to gain by action that will make the government and the public aware of their feelings."

NO COMMENT

Asked to comment on the warning, Black said he did not wish to provoke an argument, but he said, "If that's their tactic, I have no comment."

Black, who administers the pension fund, also questioned the validity of the warning coming from someone other than the BCTF president.

He said he had indicated last week that there were no pension increases planned during "this session."

Jorgenson, a Vancouver teacher and member of the BCTF pension, said pensions are first on the agenda at the federation's annual conference, which opens next Monday.

TIME LOGICAL

He said the logical times to go through with strikes or resignations would be next fall or winter, but he said the pension committee is not empowered to compel any such action on the part of teachers, who must make up their own minds.

Jorgenson said Black confirmed that there would be no pension increases when speaking to a delegation member earlier.

He said teachers are not opposed to investing their pensions in government-sponsored bonds, but they think that the funds are not being invested to the best of the government's ability.

OUT OF LINE

He said that B.C. teachers' pensions are out of line with others in the country. A teacher earning $12,600 in Vancouver after 35 years of service gets a $346 pension compared with $651 in New Brunswick, $637 in Nova Scotia and Quebec, $620 in the federal civil service and $566 in the B.C. civil service, $533 in Ontario, $500 in Saskatchewan, $490 for B.C. Hydro and $358 in Alberta.

The top pension sought by the teachers in the top bracket is $600, but the amount teachers earning less are seeking is much less, he said.

Jorgenson also said the teachers are against the ceiling on pensions in B.C., which makes the highest pension $8,100 a year, compared with $19,000 in Ontario.

Tobacco Ad Ban Proposed

A Liberal MLA introduced a private member's bill Monday night in the Legislature that would ban all forms of tobacco advertising in B.C.

Garde Gardom (Vancouver-Point Grey) introduced the bill which would also demand that tobacco product packages carry a printed warning saying: "This product has a nicotine and tar content that is harmful to human health." The bill also would provide a maximum $1,000 fine or six months imprisonment on a summary conviction against the act's provisions.

* * *

The advertising ban which would include billboards, electric signs, handbills, price lists, publications and similar displays as well as radio and television broadcasts, would not apply to the packaging of tobacco products.

Two Plead for Aged

A Socred and Liberal MLA joined Monday in appealing to the government for more financial help for tenants and elderly people in meeting rising municipal taxes.

The appeal was made first by Allan Williams (L — West Vancouver-Howe Sound) and later by Dr. Scott Wallace (SC — Oak Bay) during debate in the Legislature on approval in principle of a bill to raise the homeowner grant $10 to $160.

Williams said tenants are placed at a disadvantage by the homeowner grant because they must still contribute to "steadily rising" local taxation through rental payments and get no relief from the government.

In the case of elderly people on fixed income, the Liberal member said, the government should make an additional grant up to the full amount of local taxes to those who wish to retain ownership of their homes.

Williams suggested the government may wish to recover the additional amount when the home is finally sold.

Wallace said the Liberal MLA expressed many of the views he held but added he wished to make a special appeal for the elderly.

The Socred member said elderly residents of Hamilton, Ont., have a choice of two means of reducing the burden of local taxation on their homes.

Bennett: Same For All

* * *

Pensioners who meet residence and earning requirements can get $100 a year as a grant from the city or qualify at age 65 for an allowance of $150 a year from the provincial government which is repayable when the property is finally put for sale.

Last year in Hamilton, Wallace said, more than 3,500 elderly citizens applied for and received the $100 grant to help meet their taxes. He said the alternate provincial plan was "not particularly popular."

He told the House the $10 increase in B.C.s homeowner grant was worthy of support but added, "$10 extra is really only a partial solution to problems of pensioners who are not only on a fixed income but each year see the dollar buy less."

Premier Bennett, closing the debate before unanimous approval in principal was given to the bill, indicated the government would give no special treatment to any class of citizens.

"From the beginning we wanted to treat everyone the same, Bennett replied. "Many people, including pensioners, who live in small homes today pay no taxes beyond a nominal $1. And a home worth $16,000 at today's value pays no school taxes at all as a result of the homeowner grant.

"There is no situation like this existing anywhere else in Canada."

The House also gave unanimous approval in principal to a bill increasing per capita grants to municipalities by $2 to a total of $30, but not before a series of NDP and Liberal members stated the increase would not nearly cover the rising local cost of welfare services, for which it has been earmarked.

Barrett Backs Weekend Jail, Pay System

Opposition leader David Barrett said Monday that even with the government's new Corrections Act which will extend emphasis on parole and probation rather than incarceration, the government does not really grasp the importance of parole.

Commenting during second reading of the Corrections Act in the Legislature, Barrett said the Scandinavian countries as well as France and Wisconsin state have proved that a system of requiring criminals to continue employment and pay for their crimes has worked.

WEEKEND JAIL

Barrett said that certain types of criminals should have social and leisure time taken away and be required to go to jail weekends — and pay their room and board during the stay.

Barrett, a former social worker whose duties included work at Oakalla Prison, told the Legislature that "the name of the game in jail is to beat the system."

The "loving walls" of the jail, where a bed and three meals are provided, constitute an adverse climate for rehabilitation, Barrett said.

GROUP THERAPY

The weekends would include group therapy, where such questions as "What is your wife doing on Saturday night?" would be asked. Several MLAs hooted at this, so Barrett said he would dispense with a lecture on the techniques of group therapy.

But he appealed to the government: "Please, no more jails constructed in B.C." The emphasis should be more and more, Barrett said, on parole and rehabilitation, and the criminal should have to pay for his crime.

As the law stands, victims of crime and the relatives and family of criminals are the ones provided with no compensation. The criminal, on the other hand, gets free room and board.

Indians to Return

Engine Trouble Foils Ellis Island Invasion

NEW YORK (UPI) — "Get a canoe" this might have been good advice Monday for Indians representing 14 tribes who were foiled in their attempt to seize Ellis Island by engine trouble on their 16-foot motorboat.

Some 20 Indians had planned to embark from the Jersey shore under the cover of darkness for the abandoned U.S. federal immigration facility.

The U.S. Coast Guard got wind of the Indian invasion and dispatched a patrol boat to the waters.

The coast guardsmen found no one, and for good reason. The Indians — men, women and children — were prevented from leaving an unidentified New Jersey shore community when the boat's engine refused to start. They announced late that they would try again another time.

Mrs. Tina Robinson, whose husband was among the group, said the Indians wanted to claim the 27½-acre island which has been unused for 16 years for an Indian commune "to carry on tribal life in the white man's city." It would be a centre for American studies, an Indian spiritual centre, a centre for ecology and a museum.

Mrs. Robinson said the Indians were affiliated with groups which have occupied Alcatraz Island in San Francisco Bay since last year and which tried Sunday to claim Ft. Lawton on Puget Sound near Seattle.

Ambitious Project Could Become Brochure

A $10,000 study for combined golf course and condominium housing could become just another pretty brouchure in the North Saanich municipal library, says Mayor J. B. Cumming.

Mayor Cumming expressed his disappointment to council Monday night over the failure of developers, Pemberton, Holmes Ltd., to guarantee participation in a proposed Deep Cove Sewer system.

"They spent $10,000 on a study of the proposed development, and now they balk at what might be a $300 study," he said.

"All we asked was that they guarantee how many homes will be avilable to connect up to a sewage system by a certain date. We need some guarantee to make sewage acceptable financially in that area, and they are unwilling to make this commitment," he said.

The housing proposal and request for rezoning was put before council by real estate salesman Douglas Gage last December.

He said 450 condominium houses and an 18-hole golf course were planned for 300 acres on West Saanich Road, south of Wains Road. Sewage was to be processed through a private three-stage treatment plant on the project and the resulting effluent used to irrigate the golf course.

Senior Metropolitan Health Officer Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread later wrote to council refusing permission for disposal of effluent on public lands.

In a letter received by North Saanich council Monday night, Gage said there is a great public interest in and acceptance of developments of the type planned.

Competition, he said, was imminent. "Any undue further delay could result in this development being shelved," he said.

As an interim solution, he suggested that only 225 homes and a nine-hole golf course were planned initially, so that effluent could be disposed of on the remaining area.

"This would mean that these homes would be available for connection to a municipal sewer when the over-all sewage disposal problem in the area has been clarified."

"They want us to override Dr. Whitbread, which we can't do," commented Mayor Cumming.

"They also say if we want sewerage we can build a system and they may or may not use it.

"In any case, according to the provincial government, Dr. Whitbread has final authority, and we can't go over his head and allow effluent to be spread on the land.

"The health officer may be wrong on this and quite probably is wrong in our opinion, but our opinions aren't valid — he is the health officer," said Cumming.

Ald. Harry Taylor said it seemd pretty ridiculous to him that the sterilized effluent from three-stage treatment could not be put on land, while septic tanks, which drained into the land, were permitted.

Ald. Joseph Lott said time was of the essence as far as provision of sewers for Deep Cove was concerned, and plans were needed.

"Time is of the essence, and they are betting we don't have as much as they do," commented Cumming.

"We simply asked if they would guarantee a certain number of users within a certain period of time so that the system wouldn't be a liability on the rest of the users.

"This they wouldn't do and now their very pretty and expensive brochure is liable to become another book on the shelves in our library."

The letter from Pemberton Holmes Ltd. was "received and filed."

Hepatitis Climbs to Top Of B.C.'s Disease List

Infectious hepatitis continues to increase in B.C., leading all other communicable diseases, according to the B.C. Health Branch report for 1969.

The report, tabled Monday in the Legislature by Health Minister Ralph Loffmark, says that outbreaks of hepatitis and the incidence of inadequate or improperly functioning sewage disposal systems are "frequently apparent."

Hepatitis increased in 1969 over 1968 by approximately 10 per cent from 2,000 to 2,160 cases.

Its occurrence is far above other recorded communicable diseases with 103 cases per 100,000 people. The next most common in streptococcal throat, with 57 cases per 100,000 people. Next comes salmonella with 19 and dysentery with 13.

The report also notes that gonorrhea continues to rise, going from 4,200 in 1968 to 4,800 in 1969, but the report notes that only one-third of cases are being reported by doctors.

Meeting Will Hear Institute's Future

An explanation of the future role of Eric Martin Institute likely will highlight the annual meeting of Royal Jubilee Hospital at 8 p.m. Wednesday in the nurses' residence.

Victoria Mayor Courtney Haddock, who is retiring as chairman of the hospital's directors said a report will also be given on Jubilee's extended care plans and the annual financial statement will be distributed.

Perls, Gestalt therapy founder

Berliner Sought Freedom With Gestalt

Dr. Fritz Perls searched for freedom to help him develop his ideas about psychiatry.

●

Perls, author and psychiatrist, who founded the Gestalt therapy and the international Gestalt Institute, died at the weekend in Chicago. He was 76.

His most recent branch was the Gestalt Institute of Canada which was established at Lake Cowichan last year.

Perls was taken ill during a European tour and was flown to Chicago for treatment. His body is to be cremated and buried in New York.

Born in Berlin, Perls was trained as a psychoanalyst at Freudian schools in Berlin and Vienna. Ten days before he came to Canada from California, he purchased the Lake Cowichan Auto Court to establish his Canadian headquarters.

★ ★ ★

He stressed, when he opened the centre, that it was not for treatment but a training school for professional people in psychiatry, psychology and psychotherapy.

It is designed to become a centre for laymen as well.

When Hitler rose to power, Perls left Germany for South Africa where he founded the South African Institute for psychoanalysis. During the Second World War, he served as a psychiatrist with the South African Army.

★ ★ ★

However, he found the South African policy of apartheid repugnant and eventually moved to the U.S. where he founded the New York Institute of Gestalt Therapy.

Later he became disgruntled with the American system, which he felt had deteriorated, and moved on to Canada.

Janet Lederman said Monday that she would be heading the institute at Cowichan, one of seven on the North American continent. It was the first of its kind in Canada.

'Rare Event'

Two Aldermen Thanked

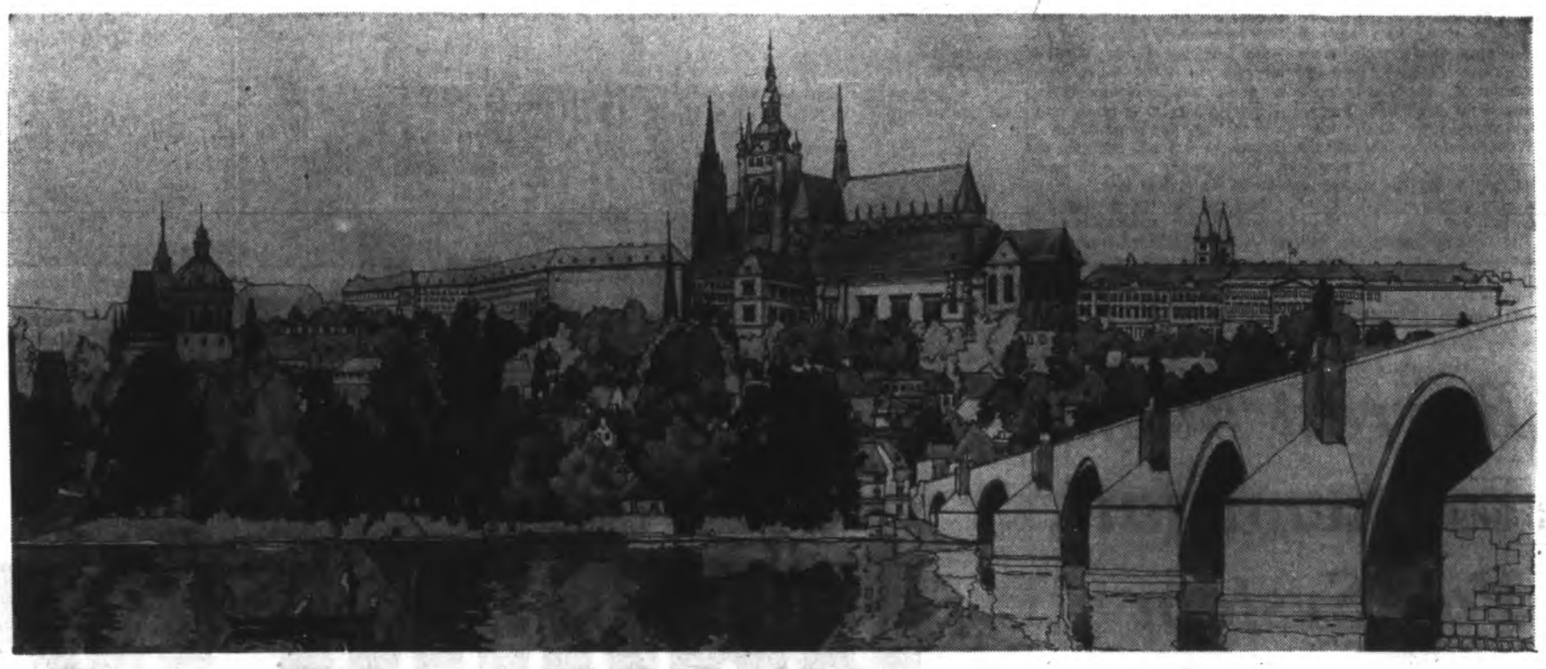

Saanich council passed votes of thanks to two aldermen Monday night — Ald. Alan Newberry and Ald. Edith Gunning.

"It isn't often we do this," said Mayor Hugh Curtis, "and now, two in one night."

Ald. Newberry was congratulated for his work on the Greater Victoria Public Library Board after council approved the library's 1970 budget.

Ald. Gunning, who was absent due to illness, was congratulated for her work on the senior citizens' residence at Hampton and Seaton.

Assistant planner Gil Laurenson told the meeting that the Dawson Developments bid, at $633,785, had been approved and the residence probably would be ready for occupancy by the end of the year.

'Scales Tipped Against Labor'

The government has loaded the scales in favor of management with its bill to provide for employers' bargaining organizations, the New Democratic Party charged Monday night in the Legislature.

Ernest Hall (NDP—Surrey) said the government has its "thumb on the scale" with its approach to collective bargaining.

Attorney-General Leslie Peterson, who introduced the bill and closed the debate, said the opposition to it was so mild he could assume its endorsement, but he criticized the NDP for "peddling" unsubstantiated arguments that the bill was produced on request from industry management.

Besides Hall, Leo Nimsick (NDP—Kootenay) said he was certain the legislation was asked for by industries. "And they only had to ask once and then it was quickly conceded."

★ ★ ★

"It's just another step to put the squeeze on the workers," Nimsick said.

Robert Strachan (NDP—Cowichan-Malahat) said he agreed there has been "a great deal of trouble in the construction industry," but the government has failed in thinking it can legislate human behavior.

"I don't know whether or not the employers have asked for this legislation," said Strachan. But he said that this new legislation would contribute nothing toward the real needs of labor management relations in B.C.

In a voice vote, the NDP opposed second reading of the bill.

Schools Win Approval

Approval for 23 school construction projects, including four new elementary buildings, was announced Monday by the British Columbia education department.

Total cost will be more than $2,370,000.

Included are a four-room building in the Penticton school district and a six-room school in the Williams Lake district.

No Sign Of Rap

BEL AIR, Md. (AP) — Circuit Court Judge Harry Dyer granted an eight-day postponement in the trial of Rap Brown Monday and ordered the defendant to be present when it resumes.

It was the second postponement and Judge Dyer said there would be no more "unless the defendant himself could convince" him of the necessity.

"We have not heard from him, we do not know where he is," said William Kunstler, Brown's lawyer, when asked if he could guarantee attendance of his client in court next Tuesday.

Concert in Contrasts

Flutist Plays Pure Delight

By BILL THOMAS

For the final concert of the regular season the Victoria Symphony offered a study in contrasts Monday night at the Royal Theatre.

The first half of the program featured flutist Jean Pierre Rampal, and it was all music and pure delight. The second half was Moussorgsky-Ravel, and that was pure noise unleavened and bordering on air pollution.

★ ★ ★

Rampal offered unadulterated pleasure with a pure tone and incredible control of his golden flute. His playing of the J. S. Bach suite was brilliant and controlled.

There were moments when the first violin section seemed on the verge of dominating the overture, but conductor Laszlo Gati kept control.

Rampal was undoubtedly at his best in the Mozart flute concerto No. 2. The orchestra also did brilliantly this time, producing a fine Mozart sound that set off the soloist to perfection.

★ ★ ★

The work is the epitome of Mozart in many ways, and Rampal exploited all the facets of the master of invention. Rampal moves with the music in an impromptu ballet as he gets involved with the music.

His performance of the Bach was complemented with an excellent continuo on harpsichord by Winnifred Scott.

The French artist obliged the applauding crowd with an encore, playing the flute solo from the Gluck opera Orpheus. It all proved very enjoyable.

Mahler's adagietto from his Symphony No. 5 completed the first portion of the program. This is a frankly romantic and sentimental work that the orchestra played well, and it was enjoyable if not wildly exciting.

The Russian Moussorgsky had a friend who did water colors, and soon after the painter died, the composer went to a posthumous exhibition and then set about composing a piano work based on the show. Ravel orchestrated the work in 1922, but what a botch he made of it! Pictures at an Exhibition seems more like latex and a paint roller than a water color show.

There is far more of Ravel in this work than there is of the Russian. It is a dreadful showoff work that compounds longevity by being dull and boring, full of musical tricks and not much music.

★ ★ ★

The work provided a loud climax to a season that has on balance been highly musical and satisfying. Even the Ravel couldn't damage that lasting impression.

Still nothing could detract from the beauty and pleasure of the first half.

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI) — A Minuteman missile loaded with concrete was launched briefly Saturday from a truck in a successful test of a mobile missile system under study by the U.S. Air Force. The missile, the same type used in a U.S. defence system, plunged into the ocean as planned.

Sharp: Formosa Gap Narrows

Peking Talks 'Progress'

OTTAWA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said Monday "more progress" has been made in talks aimed at the establishment of diplomatic relations between Canada and mainland China.

The latest in a series of meetings between Canadian and Communist Chinese diplomats at Stockholm took place last Thursday.

Asked in an interview whether he is more optimistic than before Thursday's meeting about the eventual outcome of the talks, Sharp simply reiterated that "more progress" has been made.

The external affairs minister replied yes when asked whether this progress took the form of narrowing the gap between the two sides on the key questions of Formosa.

Peking has been insisting that Canada recognize its claim to the Nationalist-held island off China's southeast coast. Canada has rejected this demand, arguing that territorial claims by either party should not be brought into negotiations on diplomatic recognition.

At the same time, Canada has told Peking that diplomatic relations with the Communist regime would preclude continued Canadian diplomatic ties with the Nationalists.

Canada has been seeking ways of getting around the Formosa impasse. It comes down to a question of how to draft any announcement that diplomatic relations between Canada and Peking are to be established. One proposal reported earlier to have been put forward by Canada was to avoid mentioning the matter altogether.

WOULD BE FREE

Peking would then be free to put whatever interpretation it wants on the agreement for propaganda purposes. But Ottawa would be equally free to refute any public suggestion by Peking that it had acquiesced to Peking's claim to Formosa.

In a weekend television interview taped Friday, the day after the latest meeting in Stockholm, Sharp expressed the view that Peking is "testing" Canada with its tough stand, but reiterated that Canada does not intend to change its position.

Further talks are planned, Sharp said Monday.

Police Commission

Mayor Leads CFAX Talks

The 30-day Victoria police ban on information for radio station CFAX will be the subject of a meeting of all parties concerned in the office of Victoria Mayor Courtney Haddock at 2 p.m. Wednesday.

The mayor's office confirmed Monday that the meeting will involve the mayor, who is also chairman of the Victoria police commission, Commissioners Gordon Carter and D. H. Lawson, Police Chief J. F. Gregory and CFAX owner-manager Clare Copland.

Gregory last week barred the staff of CFAX for 30 days from access to police activity reports and to police personnel for statements. He said he took the action because of "erroneous and derogatory" statements in a CFAX news broadcast March 7.

BROADCASTERS TALK

In Vancouver, president Don Hamilton of the British Columbia Association of Broadcasters Monday issued a statement which says in part:

"The Broadcasters of British Columbia share the shock experienced by CFAX in the amazing action taken by the Victoria police chief on second-hand information without first-hand knowledge, without dialogue, without accusation, without defence, without legal recourse, and without precedent.

"If the station violated a legal standard, the chief has ample opportunity — as does every citizen — for recourse through the courts . . .

'HEARSAY' EVIDENCE

"But he rather proceeded in a cavalier manner of being judge, jury, sole witness, and adopted all of his positions on hearsay evidence."

The statement concludes: "The police chief or his appropriate superior should act immediately to withdraw the embargo and to proceed with whatever inquiry they wish through normal and acceptable channels."

Victoria Student Involved

Girl Joins 'Invasion'

A student at Victoria's Institute of Adult Studies was among a group of Indians who, during the weekend, "invaded" Fort Lawton, a U.S. army post in Washington state the Indians claim under an 1865 treaty.

However, it was learned late Monday that Wendy Sparrow, whose home is on the Musqueam Reserve near Vancouver, was not one of the 77 Indians who subsequently were detained by American authorities.

★ ★ ★

Chief Philip Paul of the Tsartlip Band, who is a counsellor at the adult studies centre, said he had been expecting to see Miss Sparrow in Victoria Monday but he had no idea what detained her.

There were 22 Canadian Indians among the 77. Fourteen of them, including one from Canada, appeared before a U.S. Commissioner Monday afternoon, charged with illegal entry into Fort Lawton.

The United Indians of All Tribes, as the group calls itself, wants Fort Lawton for an Indian university and culture centre.

★ ★ ★

The U.S. defence department has announced that the post, now used for reserve training, will be deactivated this summer and Seattle wants it as a park.

The "invasion" took place just before dawn Sunday after the Indians scaled a 70-foot cliff to the edge of Fort Lawton.

After a sentry passed, they hurried on to the fort grounds, set up a teepee, started a fire and began performing war dances.

Chief Paul said Canadian Indian participation could have been expected because natives on both sides of the 49th parallel are finding they have common objectives.

"The Indian people are becoming aware of suppression . . . and their only hope is in banding together," said Paul, adding that the establishment of the U.S.-Canadian boundary was accomplished without consulting Indians.

★ ★ ★

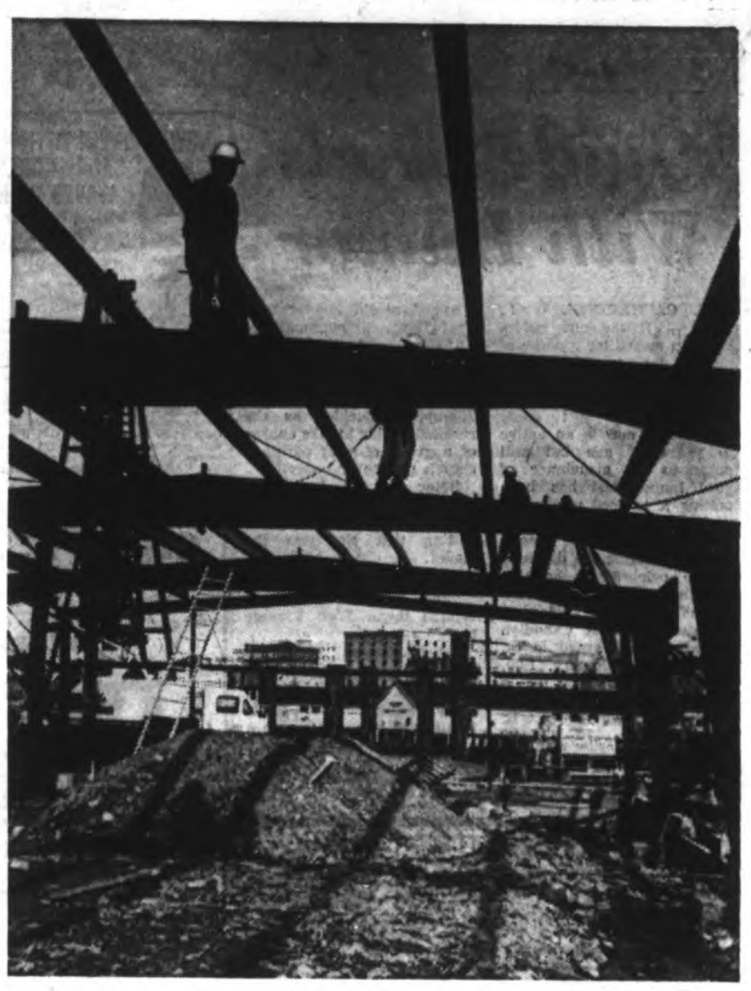

He explained that the takeover of Fort Lawton and its conversion to an Indian culture centre was a reaction to the type of education system that has been imposed on natives.

Paul said Miss Sparrow went to Seattle for the weekend clearly supporting these objectives — "she was 100 per cent behind the claims."

In Seattle, 150 Indians danced and chanted to the beat of drums outside the federal courthouse Monday as the fourteen charged appeared for arraignment.

Charges against one man, Canadian Bob Hall of Chilliwack were dismissed.

The other 13 will enter pleas March 26 during a preliminary hearing set by U.S Commissioner Walter Reseburg in a tiny courthouse jammed with relatives, newsmen and Indian leaders.

Boundary Elimination Approved by Board

Greater Victoria students appeared a step closer Monday night to an education system based on what has been described as a unique philosophy — one that would eliminate school boundaries and allow attendance at either highly liberal or old-fashioned schools.

Approved in principle by the Greater Victoria school board were plans creating certain areas of optional school attendance next September.

This is considered the first step toward removal of all school attendance boundaries.

The idea was first put forward last fall by District Superintendent A. J. Longmore.

★ ★ ★

At Monday night's board meeting Education Director Dr. John Wiens spoke in favor of a system that would allow both the old traditional conservative form of school, as well as that to be found in the other extreme — the free school.

He felt there was considerable support for both extremes.

"I personally don't think there's one best way," he said.

He said also that he didn't think the free school concept "ever had a fair chance to prove what it can do."

This system allows the student much more freedom of choice in a more relaxed atmosphere. The Craigdarroch school, which operated in this manner for more than three years, was closed chiefly because of financial problems.

★ ★ ★

Wiens said a school system as big as that in Greater Victoria should be allowed to "go ahead" without boundaries and with schools offering a wide choice to the students.

He said the philosophy behind the idea was "unique."

Some local school authorities agreed afterwards that his choice of the word "unique" might be appropriate. They said they know of no other such system in Canada.

★ ★ ★

Maps released at the meeting outlined these optional attendance areas for next September:

Senior high schools: Those in an area bounded by Maplewood, Glendenning, Tattersall, Queensbury and Blenkinsop would have the choice of Mount Douglas or Reynolds.

Mount Douglas comes into the picture again as an option with Oak Bay for a zone between the Saanich-Oak Bay border, Woodburn, Lansdowne and Cedar Hill Cross Road.

The choice would be between Mount View and Victoria high school for residents of an area bounded by Finlayson, part of Gorge Road, Harriet, Burnside, Tolmie and Cook.

Junior high schools: People between Helmcken, Burnside and Stillwater would be given the option of Shoreline and Colquitz.

For those in a long strip bordered by Feltham, Tyndall and Torquay, the choice is to be Mount Douglas and the new Arbutus high school.

There is also a plan to eliminate the attendance boundaries between five elementary schools in the Gordon Head area — Fairburn, Gordon Head, Frank Hobbs, Hillcrest and Shelbourne, which is to be renamed Campus elementary.

Monday Blues Gone

Four-legged kid was blue Monday surprise for Saanich 4-H club member Debbie Salisbury, 385 Quayle, whose pet goat died two weeks ago. Members of her Grade 9 class at Royal Oak junior high and members of Saanich 4-H pooled their resources and came up with $25 to buy this little doe for Debbie.—(Jeffrey Pinniger)

Harbor's Facelift Begins

Four days after Victoria city council relaxed setback requirements at Inner Harbor, $1,000,000 Canadian Pacific development is starting to take shape. Prefabricated buildings are being constructed on 10-acre area between Belleville and Inner Harbor to transform conglomeration of shacks and warehouses into tourist attraction containing boutiques, shopping centre, seafood restaurant and dance pavilion. Marathon Realty, subsidiary of Canadian Pacific, says project will be completed before tourist season begins. — (William A. Boucher.)

Quebecer Given 10-Year Terms

Six concurrent 10-year prison terms were handed out Monday in Provincial Court at Sidney to a 32-year-old Quebec man who has spent most of his adult life in prison.

Judge M. F. Peiler gave the sentences—concurrent means they run at the same time—to Yvon Fortin, who pleaded guilty in the same court March 3 to five charges of breaking, entering and theft and one charge of breaking and entering with intent to steal.

★ ★ ★

The maximum sentence that could have been imposed on each charge was 14 years.

RCMP Constable C. M. Lindsay, acting as prosecutor, read to court a criminal record for Fortin that dated back to 1954. It showed about 35 convictions for which he was sentenced to a total of more than 25 years in prison. Most of the convictions were for breaking and entering and all were in Quebec.

★ ★ ★

The record showed Fortin was released from a Quebec prison last October after serving a lengthy term for break-ins. Court was also told he arrived in Sidney soon after.

The six charges on which Fortin was sentenced Monday involved break-ins between Jan. 1 and Feb. 18. In one, nothing was taken; in four, loot was of a minor nature, and in the sixth, $2,000 worth of clothing was stolen from Ganes' clothing store in Sidney.

★ ★ ★

Peiler also sentenced two former Quebec men, who lived in Sidney with Fortin, after they pleaded guilty March 3 to charges of possessing clothing stolen from Ganes' store. Roger Ipperciel, 26, was given one day in jail and a two-year probationary term while Michel Bisson, 26, received a two-year probationary term.

Monterey School

Renovations Get Approval

Monterey elementary school will be renovated, the provincial education department announced Monday night.

Oak Bay Ald. Brian Smith said he hoped the government was going to complete all the renovations needed to the south Oak Bay school.

No details were given in the education department's announcement.

Smith noted that ratepayers were disturbed when nothing was done to the school after the taxpayers voted in favor of the renovations in 1967.

★ ★ ★

"If the government is now going ahead, we are of course delighted," Smith said.

Oak Bay council recently received complaints of unsanitary and unsafe conditions at the school.

Esquimalt

Victoria Fair Wins Support

An Esquimalt alderman suggested Monday that municipal councils should not distribute taxpayers' money to events like Victoria Fair.

However, Ald. Kenneth Hill did not convince fellow aldermen, who decided Esquimalt should make a contribution to the Junior Chamber of Commerce-sponsored show.

★ ★ ★

"Victoria Fair is not the type of activity for which we should be collecting taxes," said Ald. Hill of the request that would take about $1,200 of Esquimalt's revenue.

Mayor Arthur Young pointed out the municipality gets a per capita grant of $1 from the provincial government for tourist promotion, and the Victoria Fair grant could be considered such a project.

Esquimalt's contribution to the May 11-16 fair would be about 8 per cent of a $14,000 grant from that municipality, Saanich, Victoria and Oak Bay.

However, Esquimalt pointed out that its gift would be contingent on the other intermunicipal contributions.

Clinic Today

The Red Cross fell 40 units short of its 150-pint quota in its blood donor clinic Monday. A second clinic will be held today at Red Cross House, 1016 Fort, between 1:30 and 4:30 and between 6:30 and 9:00 p.m.

Power Pole Fight Urged

Saanich Ald. William Noel said Monday night he hoped groups of individuals would come forward to fight a B.C. Hydro proposal that 75-foot-high steel power poles be erected on Interurban and Burnside roads.

Mayor Hugh Curtis said he agreed wholeheartedly.

Both men attended a meeting Monday morning of Victoria and Saanich officials with four representatives of B.C. Hydro in Saanich municipal hall.

★ ★ ★

Curtis told the meeting that "the opinion of local government is that it is no longer acceptable to inflict this overhead transmission line on the environment."

Noel said the overhead line would be "a retrograde step "and a monstrous thing." People would prefer to pay a little extra in rates not to have lines overhead, he said.

Victoria Ald. Peter Pollen called the proposed plan "an environmental tragedy." He said he recognized Hydro's financial problems but standards had to be set in urban areas.

The overhead line would tend to condemn the area to substandard redevelopment, Curtis said.

★ ★ ★

B.C. Hydro's transmission design engineer W. D. Gill of Vancouver told the meeting that "this is one job. But if this goes underground we will be faced with the same in similar areas in other parts of the province."

Cost of the underground lines has been quoted by Hydro at $303,000 a mile compared with $80,000 a mile for steel poles and $25,000 for conventional wooden poles.

A Hydro official at the meeting said a 12,000-volt distribution line was under consideration for Harriet Street, on the Victoria-Saanich boundary, to run across the Gorge at Selkirk Water.

The disputed line would run just over four miles from Interurban Road at Alan to Burnside at Douglas.

A public meeting was called last Thursday night in St. Joseph's Church Hall on West Burnside by Mrs. Maria Bown, 1266 Dunsterville, to protest the erection of the steel poles. About 75 persons attended.

Mrs. Bown said about a dozen persons are circulating petitions against it and are getting good response.

Reaction Quick In Esquimalt

Esquimalt council reacted quickly Monday night to a report that a low-voltage tentacle of B.C. Hydro's proposed power line will reach into Esquimalt.

Hydro plans to put a 132,000-volt line on 75-foot pylons from Interurban Road at Alan to Douglas and Burnside, a proposal that has been strongly denounced by Saanich.

Ald. Art Mebs told council a resident told him there are reports that a 12,000-volt extension of that system will be strung overhead to a substation in Esquimalt.

"Apparently a pylon will be adjacent to this man's home (on Craigflower Road)," said Mebs.

"I suggest a strong letter to Hydro. We should oppose this most vociferously," added the alderman.

"It's up to the people . . . If they don't want it, they shouldn't have to tolerate it," said Mebs. "This is a crown agency (Hydro) and we make it known very strongly that we are against it."

★ ★ ★

Ald. Arthur Cuthbert said residents should write letters to members of the Legislature, hoping their feelings would eventually filter back to Hydro.

He also urged municipal officials to meet with Hydro.

Mayor Arthur Young said the municipality is in no legal position to block Hydro's project and about all it can do is "protest all we want."

Woman, 80, Hit, Dies

An 80-year-old woman died in St. Joseph's Hospital about midnight Monday of injuries received when she was hit by a van at 8 p.m. while crossing Cook at Meares.

Police identified the victim as Mrs. Margaret Leask, of 820 Cook. They said driver of the van was Robert White, 49, of 449 Victoria.

Saanich Lions Help Meals Project

Saanich Lions Club has given the Meals on Wheels program a cheque for $500, Saanich Ald. William Noel said Monday.

Ald. Noel, who is chairman for the program on the community council, also said that plans for Douglas Rotary Club to make further donations are under way.

The alderman appealed for funds earlier this year to carry on the program, which costs about $4,800 a year. Upwards of 160 meals a day, five days a week, are delivered to shut-ins and people who can't make themselves a hot meal or have nobody to do it for them.

Douglas Rotary Club already has given $1,000 to the program this year. Two years ago the club donated an oven which is still in use.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I were amused by the letter from the mother whose college son announced he was bringing a girl home for the weekend. The boy said it would be very honest and mature of his parents if they would allow him and his girl to occupy his bedroom at home since "we are shacked up here at school."

●

Our son Bill asked us the same question just before Christmas. Here is how we handled it.

My husband and I were stunned at Bill's request but we tried not to show it. We told him we'd talk it over and let him know. We hit on a plan, enlisted the co-operation of a neighbor couple and called Bill back. His father said, "Bring the girl. We'll do our best to adjust to the 'new morality.'"

We met Bill and his girl at the airport. She was wearing a long sweater, no skirt, sandals, beads and she was carrying a guitar. Our son looked just like her. When we drove up to our place her only comment was, "Some setup."

We had invited the next-door neighbors (I'll call them Ted and Alice) to dinner and the six of us got along well.

After dinner my husband took Bill aside and said, "I'll see you in the morning. I'm going next door to sleep with Alice. Ted is sleeping here with your mother." Bill said, "I beg your pardon, will you repeat that?" My husband repeated the statement. Bill grabbed him and said, "Dad, you don't mean it. Why that's terrible — you can't do such a thing right in our own house . . ." My husband asked in all innocence, "Why not — it's the way the world is going isn't it?" Bill replied, "But you and Mom are decent, respectable people. That stuff isn't for you!"

My husband countered with, "You're a decent person aren't you? Why is it OK . . ." Bill cut in, "I get the idea, Dad — Jane sleeps at Aunt Ruth's tonight."

Odd Looks at Breakfast

Not another word was said. Jane did sleep at Aunt Ruth's. At breakfast the following morning Bill gave us some odd looks. I'm sure he figured the whole thing out during the night.

If you want to print this letter you have our permission. Sign it — Short Course in Short Hills, N.J.

Dear Short Course: Thanks for the day brightener. It's a honey.

□

Dear Ann Landers: It happened again last night and I am furious. Every time I go to a luncheon or a cocktail party, some well meaning female pulls me aside, grabs the hem of my dress, and folds it under three or four inches to show me how much "better" I would look if I wore my skirt shorter.

I am nearly 60 years old and have no illusions about myself. My legs are not my best feature. My hemline is a couple of inches longer than fashion decrees. So what? I like it that way.

Perhaps if you print this letter some of my friends will see it and keep their hands off my hems. I might add, Ann, if the miniskirted old crows could see themselves as others see them, they'd lower their hemlines instead of encouraging others to lift theirs. — Clinton, Iowa.

Dear Clinton: I applaude your independence. The corn in Iowa is supposed to be as high as an elephant's eye by the Fourth of July, but the skirts don't have to be up there!

Abortion Total, Criticism Rise

LONDON (AP) — Pregnant American women are leading an international rush to Britain for easy abortions, authorities disclosed Sunday.

Government figures show that substantially more women are now coming here for legal abortions from the United States than from any other country. The number is rapidly increasing, but so is the criticism.

★ ★ ★

Even the sponsors of the 1967 law that liberalized abortion in Britain are calling for new curbs against abuses. Tougher controls over the private clinics that perform abortions for foreigners are likely to be recommended.

Under the 1967 law, any woman can have her pregnancy terminated legally with the written permission of two doctors.

The doctors must certify that it is in the interest of either the mother of the unborn child for physical, psychological or moral reasons. In practice, any woman can qualify.

In 1968, the first full year of the act, more than 2,000 foreign women had abortions in Britain. More than 1,000 came from West Germany, 481 from the United States and 236 from Canada.

★ ★ ★

The number increased to an estimated 5,000 foreign women last year. Americans replaced West Germans as the leading overseas clients.

Debates erupted in the House of Commons over alleged profiteering by doctors running abortion clinics in conveyor-belt fashion.

Ads Aid—Women

TORONTO (CP) — Five women who wrote to a supermarket chain to complain about something were asked to meet store executives in three sessions to discuss all their shopping problems and methods.

In the final session they were asked how various types of advertising affects them.

All of them said they use newspaper advertisements to help them plan their shopping lists and to do some "comparison shopping" at home.

They agreed they rarely pay attention to window signs and feel that too many of them plastering a window give a store a cheap, cluttered look.

Three of them said they notice in-store signs that say an item is a special price and ignore those that simply say "low" price. They say a low price isn't necessarily any lower than any other store's, but a special often is.

They indicated mixed reactions to radio advertising, but appeared to find it less practical for their pusposes than newspaper ads.

ERMA BOMBECK Shuns Oven

'Clean It Tomorrow'

My mother told everyone the world would come to an end this July 4 unless I cleaned my oven. (Not only was this embarrassing for me, but it caused a panic raid on drinks with cyclamates from women who are taking it with them when they go.)

★ ★ ★

The problem is mother was born under an antiseptic star. (She could take the spots off a Dalmation). She is the only woman I know who gets goose bumps when her white sauce boils over on the burners. Her theory: Clean-as-you-go.

I was born tired. I subscribe to the theory: If-it-won't-catch fire-today-clean-it-tomorrow.

"What's the matter with you?" she asked one day pulling open the oven door. "Are you a Commie pinko or something?"

"Mother," I said, "It is not un-American not to clean your oven."

"There is something weird about a woman who does not cover her bottom with foil."

"It IS covered with foil," I said.

"I mean shiny foil," she insisted. "Besides, your light is burnt out.

"Oh, good grief," she said, "I hope my card club never sees this. It seems like ever since you went away to that college you think cleaning an oven is beneath you."

"It is," I said.

Last week, my husband and I slipped away for a few days while mother "sat" with the kids.

On our return to the kitchen, I sensed a brilliant light in the corner.

"What is it?" asked my husband.

★ ★ ★

"It's our stove," I said.

"It's got a clock on it. What happened to it? It looks funny."

"The chrome is shiny. You'll get used to it." I opened the oven door. The light shone bright. The racks were polished. New aluminum foil gleamed from the bottom. Even the salt and pepper shakers had been stripped of grease and flour prints . . . I ran my hand over the burners.

★ ★ ★

"Do you know what this means?" I asked.

"That the world won't come to an end July 4?"

"No, you ninny. For years I've wanted my stove to look like this."

"You mean so you can start fresh and keep it clean on a daily basis?"

"Are you out of your tree? This means I can sell it!"

Veteran Looks Back

Guide Leads With Humor

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — If the girl guides gave an award for a sense of humor, Louise Thompson would be in line for one.

Miss Thompson, one of the first Canadian girl guide lieutenants, now is an active 90 years of age but still possesses an abundance of good humor and has been putting it to good use longer than most.

She was one of the special guests attending the diamond jubilee celebrations here in February, marking the founding of the girl guides in Canada. The first Canadian company was formed in St. Catharines in January, 1910, with Miss Thompson as a lieutenant.

★ ★ ★

Asked to describe some of the activities of those early days in Canadian guiding, Miss Thompson remarked:

"If somebody says, 'Oh, that isn't right,' you can put it down to my age."

Miss Thompson, who now makes her home at the Mount Carmel Residence for the Aged, said she thinks basic guiding activities haven't changed much. She remembers hiking, camping and bird watching, and recalls that "we mended old clothes."

Not taking herself too seriously even then, Miss Thompson chuckled as she recalled having to take charge of a group of girls during a church parade and service.

Being newly in charge, she automatically waited for the leader's signal to salute, forgetting that she was the leader.

★ ★ ★

"And the rector had to remind them. Then I came to!"

On the subject of dress, Miss Thompson muses: "I wonder if less-affluent girls today will put two minis together to be in style with a maxi-skirt.

"After all, you can't cover your knees with what isn't there."

The Mini Meter.
$8.50 swings it.

Once upon a time, our friendly competitor invented a little postage meter that was better than stamps.

The only thing left for us to do was invent a little postage meter that was better than the one that's "better than stamps".

It's called the Friden* 9205 Mini Meter.

When you take our Mini Meter to the post office, you can get it set for up to $999.99 worth of postage versus only $99.99 for their meter. (That means fewer trips for you or your busy secretary.)

Our machine has postage settings for 1¢ through 20¢, plus $1.00. Theirs only goes to 20¢.

Ours makes only half as much noise as theirs (we know this because we counted the decibels.)

Ours uses an inking roller that's actually made of ink, and you change it once a year. Theirs uses an ink pad that needs inking frequently, and it can be messy.

Ours shows the date all by itself, so it's easy to read. Theirs shows five dates at once, and you might get confused.

In short, while they've licked the problem of using stamps (give credit where credit is due), we've licked the problems of using a postage meter. All for just $8.50 a month.

We also have a complete line of mailing equipment including high capacity machines.

For a demonstration call your local Friden Office at 684-4481. They'll swing by with one. Or write, Friden Division, The Singer Company, 1034, Davie St., Vancouver.

Fund Story Smear Job —Seeress

By MARIAN CHRISTY

WASHINGTON — Modern-day seeress Jeane Dixon lives by an ancient Christian principle—even while walking a tightrope. Matthew 10:16 advises: "Be ye wise as a serpent but innocent as a dove." This is the credo that makes Jeane, a staunch Roman Catholic, tick.

While wrestling with Goliath-like negatives, she retains a spirit of superserenity.

But, at the moment, Jeane is under rapid fire, although not riddled with panic.

★ ★ ★

Washington Magazine, in its March issue, zeroes in on Mrs. Dixon's fiscal 1969 earnings which are supposed to be poured into a charity she devised—the Children-to-Children Foundation, basically a medical centre for the underprivileged.

The article, by Harvey Katz, says Jeane's fiscal 1969 earnings were $119,683.75 and that only $14,895.98 went to help children. The underlying implication is, of course, that Jeane Dixon is a fraud.

"It's a smear job," says Jeane, an astute businesswoman who has since hired Washington lawyer Bennett Williams to threaten a $125,000,000 lawsuite.

★ ★ ★

Long before the story came out, Jeane says she had a vision which sent tremors through her: "I knew that I would be attacked somewhere, somehow, by someone."

So she has ordered her staff to record every move of the foundation's financial dealings—even to 10-cent phone calls. "I can account for every penny," she says.

★ ★ ★

Jeane's defense is that the bulk of her earnings—about $75,000—has been spent to set up the foundation office at 1138 18th Street, with large cash outlays spent for such basics as a computerized research system, office equipment, mailing list and furniture.

"How can you get a gigantic project rolling without an efficient organization equipped properly? Even dreams must be based on logic," she says.

Stanfield:

Babysitter Tax

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (UPI) — A "tax on babysitting" could be one of the effects of the government's proposals in the white paper on taxation, Opposition leader Robert Stanfield said Monday.

The Tory leader referred to a proposal to allow tax deductions for child care expenses paid by working mothers.

The ideas is good "so far as it goes," but "offers no help at all" to mothers who cannot afford child care and leave their children with friends or relatives, Stanfield said.

★ ★ ★

Speaking at a dinner meeting in this northern Ontario city, Stanfield described the situation in which a working mother asked for receipts for tax purposes from her babysitter, who would then be liable for taxation on these fees.

"In some cases, that could change the tax bracket of a woman who babysits, and Mr. Benson's proposal could have the ludicrous effect of amounting to a tax on babysitting," he said.

Stanfield said the government should aid working mothers and their children by offering incentives for companies to provide day care facilities on their premises.

"There are nearly 2,000,000 children in Canada under age 14, whose mothers work and therefore can't supervise them. Sometimes the care they receive is excellent; too often it is not," Stanfield said.

Company-operated day care facilities could look after these children and alleviate "serious mental and financial strain" on the parents, he said.

Haggis Hangup

DONCASTER, England (CP) — Despite its Scottish connections, the royal family hasn't a taste for Scotland's traditional dish, the haggis. Philip Wood, sales manager for a Yorkshire manufacturer who is compiling a who's who of haggis eaters, found Prime Minister Wilson likes the spicy meat dish, but a Buckingham Palace official, politely declining a proffered haggis, said: "This is a delicacy we do not serve, even in Scotland."

Mini Trial Wins Case

MELKSHAM, England (CP) Housewife Linda Williams took off her miniskirt in a crowded courtroom at the judge's request. She was demonstrating that three skirts her husband bought in a store sale were not all the same size. After Mrs. Williams put them on behind a filing cabinet, the judge agreed and the makers were fined.

Doll House Magic Woven in Ontario

THOROLD, Ont. (CP) — Many little girls dream of owning a doll house where their imaginings can reside. Tara Ellison, 11-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Ellison of Thorold, houses her fantasies in a nine-room home.

Tara's neighbor, G. H. West, built the doll house, approximately four feet by two feet, as an exact scale model of a house plan published by Central Housing and Mortgage Corp.

★ ★ ★

The living room holds a tiny color television set and a model stereo set with revolving tapes. Paper clips are clothes hangers, bottle tops toilets and razor blade dispensers wash basins. The burners on the kitchen stove are pennies.

Coupled with this ingenuity is a careful duplication of everything contained in a family home, from pictures on the wall to beds and chesterfields hand-made by West.

The walls swing out on every room so Tara can easily move furniture. Like Gulliver in Lilliput, she can lift the roof to store doll clothes in the attic.

West lacked the electrical experience to wire the house. Plastic, instead of glass, was installed in the windows for safety.

S. J. Willis Band

Concert Lots of Fun

By BERT BINNY

The S. J. Willis school band Sunday afternoon entertained a good house at the McPherson Playhouse and provided quite a show.

To start with the band played 19 widely varied selections; something to titillate every musical palate. There were also a very pleasant choir of about 20 voices, three Charleston dancers, a replica of Tiny Tim tip-toeing through the tulips and other brief and unexpected interludes, including a TV commercial for a headache remedy specially dreamed up for the occasion.

Programs like this are lots of fun: Esquimalt high school did one a year or two ago with great success.

However, the main attraction is always the band and the feature of the S. J. Willis band was the manner in which its performance improved as the program progressed. For this not-un common phenomenon there must be a reason, and it was not that the items in the second half were easier to play.

It is purely and simply a matter of self-confidence. The time, the place and the circumstances are new to the players.

Understandably, if not also unconsciously, doubts about their own abilities subtract from their concentration on the music itself and, to start with, we get a performance that is characterized by a surfeit of modesty.

Then, as the doubts die down, the music perks up and the audience is treated to the sort of performance that is not only far more enjoyable but, also, far more representative of the band's true abilities.

SECOND HALF

This was proved beyond doubt by the way in which the S. J. Willis performers treated, for instance, Brasilia and Lara's Theme in the second half of the program. Their intonation and balance were always acceptable and, as soon as those nasty, nagging doubts about themselves departed, they achieved notable fluency, too.

The choir, directed by Miss M. McKee, gave three items: Try to Remember, The Impossible Dream and Brodszky's I'll Walk With God. They, too, came into their own as the program went along.

MORE THAN 40

The band of more than 40 members was conducted by Gordon Curtis, with J. Woods as emcee. Responsible for the various added attractions were Bob Fish, Gordon Justice, Ron Blight, Julian Fikus and Ian McCoy. The Charleston was demonstrated by Gail Macdonald, Valerie Basel and Cynthia Bloomberg.

Soprano Catherine Young, guitarist Chris Jordan and pianist Winnifred Scottare featured next Sunday at McPherson in a concert staged by the Victoria Musical Art Society.

Cats Corner
British Fox

RAINHAM, England (CP) — Peter Thornton had to rescue a frightened fox from two cats which had it cornered in his Kent backyard. "My cat Tinker and the tom next door were standing guard over it," he said. "I gave it some cat food, then it had a drink out of the goldfish pond and left."

Hirt Return Applauded

NEW YORK (AP) — Al Hirt has played a Carnegie Hall concert for the first time since his lip was cut by a brick thrown during the Mardi Gras parade in New Orleans last month.

"Bear with me folks," he told the audience before he started Saturday night.

The audience applauded generously but the critics gave mixed reviews.

Hirt, who played with his upper lip shot full of cortisone, received 15 stitches Feb. 15 after a youth threw the brick while the trumpeter rode on a float.

Like Father Here

John Britt and Lorraine Bowman will be featured in Eric Nicol's comedy Like Father which starts Saturday at Langham Court Theatre. Play, to be presented by Victoria Theatre Guild, will be directed by Edna Kowalchuk. Cast will include Brian Fitzpatrick, Bill Howard and Gerre Partridge. Newcomer to Victoria stage, Mrs. Partridge has played in radio and stage productions in Rochester, Newark and Deleware. She has appeared in major roles in such productions as Antigone, Claudia and Arsenic and Old Lace.

Fun, Satire Abound In Two Films

By BILL THOMAS

This must be the week for film fun fans. There are offerings at both ends of the spectrum, gentle comedy of the Secret of Santa Vittoria at the Odeon and the wildly improbably satire of Putney Swope at the Haida.

Stanley Cramer, who produced and directed the Secret of Santa Vittoria, has taken Robert Crichton's best seller and turned it into what, on balance, is a very funny film. Anthony Quinn plays the mayor of a small town in Italy who has greatness thrust upon him when the fascists give up power toward the end of the war. The mayor, Bombolini, is invested with a medal of office and also with the task of saving more than 1,000,000 bottles of wine from the predatory Germans. Quinn's performance, like most Italian wine, is a trifle on the coarse side.

DEN MOTHER

He treats Bombolini more as a caricature than a character.

The truly stellar performance comes from Anna Magnani who plays the mayor's wife and acts as den mother to the mayor's alcoholic coterie. She does everything that can be expected of her. She storms, rages, and fumes, at her bumbling husband, but naturally she forgives him in the end. When the mayor pleads with her, complaining that the Germans may put a pistol to his head and blow his brains out if he doesn't tell where the wine is hidden, his vitriolic wife shoots him down by reminding him that such an act would only prove the stupidity of the Germans.

She reminds him that the whole village knows Bombolini's brains are located in a quite different region of his anatomy.

The Secret of Santa Vittoria is good light entertainment that leaves the viewer satisfied but with the lingering feeling that with a slightly different touch, this could have been a really great comedy.

Putney Swope is a swatch of another color, but it does have one of the same problems of the Stanley Cramer production, in that Putney's director Robert Downey has taken hold of a very good comic idea and then failed to exploit it fully.

EASY RIDER

Just as Easy Rider plucked a lot of money from the pockets of the college crowd, with its sharply focused, even if high biased viewpoint, so Putney Swope should also draw well.

The basic plot concerns Putney Swope, played by Arnold Johnson, who is music adviser and the only black member of the board of directors of a Madison Avenue advertising agency. The chairman of the board falls dead on the conference table at a meeting and Swope is elected head of the company because all the other members vote for him thinking that none of the others would.

SWITCH PULLED

Swope pulls a switch and replaces the staff with black brothers and sisters, renaming the agency Truth and Soul, Inc.

The rest of the film follows a quite predictable course along the lines of George Orwell's Animal Farm. The agency starts off with the highest principles and Swope finds his novel approach attracts a fantastic number of accounts. In the Orwellian tradition, the high principled agency is gradually perverted toward the creeping realization that some are created more equal than others.

Both the Secret of Santa Vittoria and Putney Swope are well worth seeing, especially by anyone interested in trends in the cinema. The Secret of Santa Vittoria is the epitome of the old, play-it-safe Hollywood laughbag, while Putney Swope is for those who like to venture toward the horizon of cinema satire.

Pinks Mix Free

I suppose I should be celebrating St. Patrick's Day by doing a column on the shamrock, with all its stories and traditions.

Trouble is, we are right in the middle of our first Colonist Free Seed Offer for 1970, and I'm afraid the shamrock will have to wait its turn while we get on with the business of giving away free seeds of Dianthus Peppermint Pinks.

The Pinks are very old flowers indeed; in fact, Pliny, writing in the first century A.D., says the clove Pink discovered in Spain in the days of Augustus Caesar, and that the Spaniards used the flower to give a spicy flavor to beverages.

This use evidently persisted down the centuries, and gave the flower one of its English names, Sops-in-Wine. A later name, Gillyflower, was used by Chaucer and Shakespeare.

Strangely enough, the name Pink does NOT derive from the color of the flower; in fact, it is the other way around—the color takes its name from the flower. Pink as a color is quite a recent word, never used before the year 1720, and if you find this hard to believe, remember that we still have no English word for pale blue!

★ ★ ★

The seeds I have for you are in a mixture of many kinds of Pinks, from the latest Japanese hybrids flowering only eight weeks from seed to some that date back almost 300 years.

Some are in light pastel shades, some in primary colors, some striped and fringed, some with a prominent eye, some plain, but all with that glorious clove fragrance so charateristic of the Dianthust family.

There are quite a number of ways of using these Peppermint Pinks in the garden. The plants are dwarf and compact, standing 8 to 12 inches tall, hence they can be used for edging, to place a narrow border of contrasting color around a bed of taller flowers.

Also, with their neat habit of growth, these Pinks are ideal for window boxes and small planters, and for the odd sunny pocket in the rock garden.

I have often thought, too how pleasant it would be to have a small bed of clove-scented pinks growing below one's bedroom window! Next best thing, of course, would be to keep a tiny bouquet of pinks in the bedroom; they last for the best part of a week in water.

One problem we often have with our Colonist Free Seed offers is the difficulty in getting our hands on enough of the precious seeds to satisfy all our gardening friends.

★ ★ ★

The seeds we select for these gift offers are almost necessarily somewhat rare and in short supply, hence we usually have to ration out the seeds to make sure all applicants get a fair share.

We have a pretty fair quantity this time, though, and I figure we can afford to put about 100 seeds in each gift packet. This is far more than could possibly be used in an average-sized city garden.

After all these years, I shouldn't have to tell you how to get your free packet of seeds, but for the benefit of those newcomers to these parts, all you do is snip out the little order form at the foot of this column and send it to me with a stamped and self-addressed envelope.

Later this week I'll be giving you some pointers on how to start your free seeds.

Hot Memos for Sale

ART BUCHWALD

WASHINGTON — The market price on White House memorandums has tumbled in the past few weeks. At one time they were considered rare items that occasionally showed up for public inspection, but now it's impossible to walk down the street in Washington without someone trying to peddle memorandums.

The other day I was walking by 1600 Pennsylvania Ave. when a man sidled up to me and whispered, "Would you like to buy a hot memorandum that Daniel Patrick Moynihan wrote to the president last year on the guaranteed annual wage?"

★ ★ ★

"I'm sorry," I said, trying to push past him. "I already have a dozen Moynigan memos that I'm trying to unload."

The man looked around furtively. "How about a memo from Spiro Agnew to President Nixon in which he suggests nationalizing the television industry?"

"No good. I found one in a Cracker Jack box this morning."

★ ★ ★

"Here's a note from Henry Kissinger to Herb Klein telling Klein to knock off the swinger image Kissinger's been getting."

"No, thank you."

"How about one from Herb Klein to Henry Kissinger telling Kissinger to knock off the swinger image?"

"I'm sorry, but someone left one of those memorandums in my milk bottle this morning."

"My, you're hard to please," he said. He started going through his trench coat. "Ah hah. Here's one you haven't got. A memo from Atty. Gen. Mitchell to press secretary Ron Ziegler telling him he wants to subpoena all the White House reporters' notebooks."

"Ziegler released that memo at the noon press briefing."

"All right. How about the memorandum telling him what he could do with his memorandum?"

"I was one of the people who wrote it," I said. "May I please go by?"

★ ★ ★

He opened up another large inside pocket and took out a fistful of memorandums. "Make a deal with you," he said. "Take any one blindly for $5."

"But," I protested, "they're all Moynihan memos. They're all over town."

"I was afraid of that," he said.

"Say, how do you get these memorandums from different White House personnel?"

"I just stand here by the fence and someone throws them over."

"Is anyone in the White House in cahoots with you?"

"Of course not. You see they're cutting each other's throats in there. When someone throws a batch of Moynigan memorandums over the fence, I know they're out to get Moynigan. When someone throws a batch of Kissinger memos over the fence, I know the knife is out for Kissinger."

★ ★ ★

"Here's one they threw over the fence from Bob Finch to the President."

"Are they out to get Finch?"

"They have been since he took the job."

While we were talking, a memorandum came flying over the fence.

He unwrapped it from the rock and read it and then threw it on the ground in disgust.

"It's just another copy of the 'benign neglect' memo that Moynihan wrote."

A policeman came running up.

"Let's not litter the sidewalk with those White House papers. Ever since they've decided to embarrass people by releasing memorandums in there, this place out here has been a mess."

SHEILAH GRAHAM

Lazenby Peeved

"Why do you write such nasty things," George Lazenby asked me. Recovering my speech, I gave my stock answer, "I write nasty things about nasty people; nice things about nice people.

I had written that George had been fired as James Bond by the producers of the film series, Harry Saltzman and Cubby Brocolli.

"That wasn't true," he insisted. "I played Bond once (in On Her Majesty's Secret Service) and that was enough. I didn't want to be Bond for the rest of my acting life (Saltzman had given me the story).

"What about the stories that you were more difficult with the producers than Sean Connery had ever been?" I askd him.

"They put this out when I refused to sign the contract. I didn't like what was in it. I still haven't signed the contract." This sometimes happens in films and in television. By the time the lawyers on both sides agree to all the clauses, the project is finished. "They treated me abominably," George, more relaxed with his hair longer, continued. He told me some of his grievances.

★ ★ ★

"When we stayed nine weeks in Switzerland (Murren) for the snow scenes, they put me in a two-by-four room at a hotel. Diana Riggs, who didn't have much to do in these scenes, was given a villa staffed with servants. When I complained and asked for a villa, and why did she have it and not me, they said, "well, you are working most of the time, she isn't." So I'd finish working and come back to this small room and feel I was going off my rocker."

"Harry Saltzman promised I could have the Aston Martin car I drive in the film. But he didn't give it to me. He said, "if it's too small for Sean, it will certainly be too small for you."

"And Diana Riggs hated me. That's why she would eat garlic before our love scenes. You could smell it for miles.

"When it was over, I decided I would visit my parents in Australia. I didn't know it but Mick Jagger was on the same plane and when we arrived the entire press of Australia was waiting for him. They also wanted to interview me — my getting the role of James Bond was splashed all over Australia."

"So I thought I'd do it all in one go and held a press conference. The United Artists people told me they had orders not to pay for it. So I paid the £300 myself. Later someone from U.A. slipped me the money. But that is the kind of treatment I recieved."

★ ★ ★

"The director, Peter Stone, chose me for the part. All the same, he wouldn't communicate with me. I needed help. I'd never had an acting lesson before. Nine months in front of a camera. The crew were marvellous. They were wary for a week, but when they brough me a cup of tea, I knew it was alright."

"I've learned a lot. I've learned not to be——" and he used a four letter word. "I've also learned not to let anything bug me."

George said it was like being in a lottery.

"Am I going to be an actor or not? Will I win?"

"Will you ever make another picture with Harry and Cubby?" I asked. He grinned, "Sure, if they had the right script."

Lazenby believes that the Bond pictures are on the way out "unless they get with it. Dr. No was nine years ago. Things have changed. They must cater for the young people now, not their parents. There was little competition in this field when they started, but since then, dozens of imitation James Bonds. They'll have to come up with something new, if they want the series to survive."

Lazenby has nothing on his acting schedule.

"I've had dozens of scripts offered me. But nothing good — so far."

SYDNEY HARRIS

Takes Two To Tangle

It is a shame that we have only the one word "accident" to cover two different kinds of happenings — those that are unintentional, and those that are merely unexpected.

For most so-called "accidents" are the latter, not the former; are unexpected by us, even though we have in some way contributed to their occurrence. They are not "accidents" in the purely fortuitious sense.

As an example, the only serious auto accident I have ever had took place on an Oregon mountain road some 20 years ago, when a car drove straight at me in my lane. I was forced to swerve off the road and rolled over in a little gulley, totally demolishing my car and doing myself no good at all.

The subsequent police report indicated that this "accident" was entirely the fault of the other driver, who was in the wrong lane. But it was my fault, too, in a more devious way, as most accidents are. I had delayed wiring or phoning ahead for a reservation, and motel after motel was filled by dusk — so I decided to push on another 50 miles to the next town.

I had driven 500 miles that day, was tired, and should not have been taking a strange mountain road at night, when my vision was reduced and my reflexes slowed down.

Although legally I was in the right, and the insurance company paid up promptly, in a moral sense I was guilty of contributory negligence — not in my driving, but in my failure to plan ahead, in pressing on beyond my optimum ability to cope with a sudden emergency.

★ ★ ★

And in this same sense, I believe, most of us do not have "accidents" in the pure meaning of the word. A recent article in the magazine, Traffic Safety, indicates that most motorists plan as poorly as I did — and thus make such "accidents" inevitable.

More than half wait until the gas tank is one-fourth full before stopping. (One out of five run out of gas.) More than 80 per cent plan the day as they go along. The average driver logs 11 hours a day at 65 m.p.h., which is too long for alert and comfortable driving.

★ ★ ★

Uncertainty, indecision, or the dangerous last-minute decision are responsible for most crashes on major highways, which are three times as safe as ordinary roads.

Every accident is someone's fault, but it usually takes two to tangle.

The driver coming at me in Oregon carried the legal blame, but if I were the prudent driver I though I was, I wouldn't have been around to be aimed at, in the mountains, after dark, tired, tense, and in too much of a hurry to make the next town. It's taken me 20 years to admit it.

BRUCE LOWTHER

AbouTV

I care little for most commentators on TV, but I have to say one who interested me during the 1960s was James Minifie, the CBC's Washington man until he retired to Victoria a couple of years ago after suffering a stroke.

Minifie has done some writing and speechmaking since coming to Victoria and now, he says, he's ready to make his broadcasting "comeback." This welcome development occurs this evening on the Ideas program on CBU-FM (105.7), and the program is about the psychological masks people use to cover their weaknesses.

Broadcaster Minifie, who will discuss the masks of such world leaders as de Gaulle, says he plans to stay in Victoria but wants to get back on the air. As we want him to.

BUREAU OF USELESS INFORMATION: Saturday's answer—The question was who directed The Wrong Man, Spellbound, Marnie, To Catch a Thief, The Trouble with Harry, North by Northwest, Stage Fright and Psycho. The answer is Alfred Hitchcock, and that's what the questions will be about all week.

Today—On what landmarks did the Hitchcock movies Saboteur and North by Northwest end? Who played the villain in Rear Window? And what Hitchcock movie had a villain named Bruno? It was a brilliant job of acting, so name the late actor who brought Bruno to life. The answers Wednesday.

"Shure and I'd never be belIevin' in the little people if I wasn't this very minute seein' them with me own two eyes!"

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
4♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Two of clubs

In this deal a club is led and you can immediately reach several conclusions.

1. You have two inescapable losers in hearts, and another in diamonds if East has the king. In this event the contract will be unmakeable unless you can avoid losing a trump trick, and your best chance will be to try to drop a singleton king of trump.

2. If West has the king of diamonds, you can make the contract even if you lose a trump trick. In this case your only problem will be to handle the trump suit in such a way that you do not lose two tricks in it.

3. You can restrict your trump losses to one trick no matter how the adverse cards are placed by simply leading a small trump towards dummy's queen. If West has K-J-9, the only trick he gets is the king; if East has the same holding, the queen loses to the king, but later you finesse against East's jack and in that way disarm him.

4. It follows that the correct way of handling trumps depends on who has the king of diamonds. If East has it, you have to lay down the ace of trumps and pray; but if West has it you can afford to play for safety by leading towards the trump queen.

Accordingly, your first move should be to find out who has the king of diamonds. At trick two you lead a diamond and finesse the queen. When it holds, you come back to hand by ruffing a club and lead a low trump, so catering for any conceivable layout of the trump suit.

Nanaimo Parents Protest Proposal

Trustees Delay Bus Cuts

NANAIMO — An information picket by parents protesting the predicted enforcement of bus walk-limits was called off Monday when a school board official told them the action had been delayed for a week.

They left but promised they would return next Monday to protest again.

The dozen picketers showed up at Nanaimo district school bus depot, carrying placards warning that, by making children walk, there would almost certainly be traffic accidents.

★ ★ ★

Their placards echoed a similar warning by school trustees in the weeks preceding the unsuccessful referendum which was held last week. The trustees told those attending various special meetings that one of the expense reductions would be to enforce government walk-limits. Children from Grades 1 to 3 would walk 2½ miles and children in higher grades would walk three miles to school.

★ ★ ★

A school board spokesman said the matter had been discussed over the weekend resulting in a decision to defer walk-limit enforcement for one week to allow the public to be more fully informed and to ensure new pick-up areas would be known to parents, pupils and drivers.

A claim that the bus drivers would honor a picket line next week was immediately denied by Steve Plecas Canadian Union of public employees local 606 business agent.

"It's got to be a legal picket line before any of the drivers will honor it but we certainly aren't going to run the picketers down with a bus either. Someone will have to call the police and have the picketers removed if they're blocking the road.

"But the fact is, even if we stop we aren't honoring the picket — only their lives," Plecas said.

Transportation foreman Roy Spencer said, "There was no delay.

★ ★ ★

"They weren't intending to hold buses up. I asked them about it and they said, 'definitely not' and that they were only an information picket."

There are about 1,500 students a day transported by the 15 buses. Walk-limits and other cuts necessitated by last week's defeat of a $583,000 operating budget referendum were discussed during an in-camera board meeting Monday night.

★ ★ ★

Other cuts considered were staff reductions in non teaching personnel, originally estimated at about 50.

Plecas said he thought about 35 would be CUPE members. As the total membership from Qualicum to Cowichan was 170 that would mean about one-eighth of the membership would be lost.

"I am very worried about this," he said.

Campbell River

Two Escape As Fire Wrecks Boat

By HELEN MITCHELL

CAMPBELL RIVER — Campbell River Fire department was called to Standard Oil Marina shortly before 2 p.m. Sunday, where a pleasure craft, owned by Ray Rolandi of Burnaby, was destroyed by fire.

What could have been a serious waterfront fire was averted by prompt action of the firemen, aided by a strong southeast wind which blew the burning boat out into the channel, away from the marina.

The service station is located on a scow at the end of the floats behind the breakwater where a considerable number of pleasure and other craft tie up for the winter — next to the government ferry slip.

The boat, a 17-foot double Eagle, was valued at $2,500 to $3,000. Damage to the marina is estimated by manager Ernie Lee to be between $2,000 to $3,000.

It is believed to be covered by insurance. It is not known if the boat was covered by insurance.

Fire Chief Bill MacIntosh said it was believed the fire was caused by a spark from an electric motor as old gasoline was being pumped from the boat by Art Rolandi, the owner's brother.

The flames burned through the moorings which tied the boat to the end of the scow. All the windows in the service station building were broken by the heat of the flames.

Mr. Rolandi escaped from the boat through a front window. His son Mike, 15, also on the boat, received slight burns.

Another fire in the Campbell River area put the Elk Falls mill operation out of commission until about midnight Monday. The blaze was in an electrical sub-station at the mill which closed down the operation of the pulp mill and sawmill division, affecting about 1,100 men.

★ ★ ★

A company spokesman said that the cause was unknown and that there had been no estimate of the damage to the sub-station.

Campbell River firemen were called to help mill firemen employees who have received firefighting training.

Fined Bruin Apologizes

BOSTON (AP) — Boston Bruins have announced that Derek Sanderson had been fined an unspecified amount for his actions in Chicago last Wednesday night when he made an indecent gesture during a 0-0 National Hockey League tie with the Black Hawks which was televised back to Boston.

Sanderson also issued a public apology, saying: "I sincerely regret my actions . . . All I can say is at the time I was very angry with both the Chicago team and their fans, and reacted without thinking."

Bulldozers Tie Series

COQUITLAM — Esquimalt Carson's Bulldozers defeated Coquitlam, 3-1, Sunday to tie the two-game, total-goal series for the B.C. girls' ice-hockey championship at 6-6.

The teams failed to score in overtime and the championship will be decided in a third game, yet to be arranged, in Victoria.

Bonnie Peck, Wendy Humphries and Jane Mowat scored for Esquimalt. Kathy McGrath scored for Coquitlam.

Line to North Cowichan

Duncan Backs Water Supply

DUNCAN — Duncan council Monday night supported Ald Dick Benzies' recommendation to sell water to North Cowichan at a rate which will be negotiated between the two councils.

Ald. Jim Saunders, although referring to the decision as a good one, wanted to know whether the city would have enough water for its own consumers during a hot, dry summer.

Benzies stated that, according to the consulting engineer's findings, there would not be any problem because the system in the city was capable of producing 4,000,000 gallons a day.

Aldermen were told that the approximate amount of water needed by North Cowichan would amount to about 70,000,000 gallons for one year. Another proposal, suggested earlier by North Cowichan and studied by Duncan, to carry water drawn from a North Cowichan well outside the city in city mains to the municipality was "not a good idea," according to Benzies. He stated that because the city was under strict regulations of the public utilities, it could not control the quality of incoming water after permission to use the lines had been given.

He added: "We must protect the purity of our water."

Don't create more hovels within the city was Ald. Allan Kerr's plea when he suggested council should look into the possibility of providing decent housing for elderly Chinese residents who now occupy quarters in "Chinatown," close to the law courts building and a new provincial government office structure which will open within the next two months.

★ ★ ★

Kerr pointed out that the city really "had not done too much for the Chinese people," and he proposed that the old nurses' residence on Hospital Hill would be suitable for the purpose. He said necessary renovations would cost about $25,000.

Before the 1970 zoning bylaw was passed, Mayor Jim Quaife said that council, following public hearings in 1969, had decided not to rezone the site of the former Super Valu store and then, after reassessment of the situation, had decided to enforce the bylaw.

★ ★ ★

However, the mayor pointed out council had followed legal advice from its solicitor and the property in question can be used for automotive sales in a shopping centre zone. Quaife said council had felt the expense of thousands of dollars in court costs would have been "unjustifiable."

Tory Finance Critic:

Budget Will Fail To Cut Inflation

OTTAWA (CP) — Marcel Lambert (PC—Edmonton West) said Monday in the Commons the federal budget brought down last week will increase unemployment without easing inflation.

Lambert, speaking in the first day of the four-day budget debate, said inflation is due largely to the "lack of spending priorities on the part of the federal and provincial governments."

The budget had done nothing to correct this situation, the Conservative financial critic said.

★ ★ ★

The government has "obviously lost control" of its own expenditures since these would increase by $900,000,000 in 1970-71 over 1969-70.

Lambert said consumer credit controls included in the budget will lead to higher unemployment, continued inflation and increased pressure on low-income groups.

He moved an amendment to a government motion for concurrence in the budgetary proposals, condemning consumer credit controls and "the failure of the government to increase old-age security supplements or provide relief from inflation to low-income people."

★ ★ ★

The announced credit controls would require persons buying on instalment plans of longer than a year to make a 20-per-cent down payment and pay the balance in 24 months on any purchase exceeding $100, except for automobile purchases where the maximum payment time would be 30 months.

Lambert said the down-payment requirement will be "a lot harder on the man making $6,000 than on someone earning $20,000 who can easily raise the cash from any number of sources."

People might also try to make purchases before the requirements take effect, causing a decline in consumer buying and "a slackness throughout the economy" for several months after the proposals became law.

The controls, to take effect this spring, "are a sad mistake," Lambert said.

★ ★ ★

A recent survey of automobile dealers in Montreal showed that already most people make down payments of 20 to 25 per cent on purchases and complete payment in 29 months.

He asked whether the government studied consumer credit conditions in all areas of Canada before deciding on controls.

White Paper Stalls Harbor Plan

By HUBERT BEYER

Plans for the proposed $25,000,000 Victoria Wharf Street development have been stalled and may be scrapped.

"I think that under the present circumstances, the project will not become a reality," J. A. Reid, president of Reid Properties Ltd. who conceived the project, said from Vancouver Monday.

Reid told the Colonist in an interview that federal Finance Minister Edgar Benson's proposed white paper on taxation was responsible for the change of plans.

"We have examined the minister's proposals and we have come to the conclusion that the Reid Development will not go ahead if the so-called tax reforms are adopted by the Commons," he said.

Reid said some of the white paper proposals discouraged the inflow of foreign capital, especially American.

"As a result of this, Canada has become bad news for foreign investors and without foreign capital, there is no chance for the Reid Development in Victoria."

The $25,000,000 development, key to urban renewal on Wharf Street, was to have been started this summer.

Plans included a three-tower complex below Bastion Square. The hotel was to have 160 rooms in the 10 top storeys of a 24-floor tower. Other space was to be occupied by offices.

Two other towers were to contain 292 apartment units. The entire project was to be completed by the spring of 1972.

"The federal government must take responsibility for this decision," Reid said.

"They have created an unhealthy atmosphere for investors; the white paper meand a death blow to this scheme."

Reid said Prime Minister Trudeau was misusing his mandate to destroy economic development.

"I think he should go back to the people and ask them if that's what they want him to do," he said.

Reid said difficulities arising from negotiations with Ocean Cement Ltd., which would have to move its present facilities had been overcome.

"These negotiations were a problem at one time, but we've pretty well settled the matter now," he said.

Among other proposals, the Benson white paper calls for:

- Canada's first capital gains tax.
- Abolition of the three-year tax-free period for min-

Anti-Viet Protests Renewed

PHNOM PENH (AP) — Cambodian youths renewed their demands Monday for the withdrawal of North Vietnamese and Viet Cong guerrilla troops from Cambodia. More than 20,000 of them marched before the National Assembly, denounced the Viet Cong in speeches, then dispersed quietly.

Cambodian troops armed with United States-made M-16 rifles stood by. Some of the youths carried signs reading, Viet Cong Go Home. One waved a poster showing Cambodian soldiers skewering Viet Cong on a giant bayonet.

* * *

There was one incident. A youth who assailed the nation's leader, Prince Norodom Sihanouk, was severely beaten by about a dozen students.

The demonstration followed the ransacking by youths last Wednesday of the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese embassies in Phnom Penh. After that, the Cambodian government set a deadline of dawn last Sunday for the withdrawal of all North Vietnamese and Viet Cong forces in Cambodia.

* * *

U.S. officials in South Vietnam said they saw no sign that the 40,000 to 60,000 Viet Cong or North Vietnamese had left their Cambodian sanctuaries, from which they had been launching or directing attacks against U.S. and South Vietnamese government troops. The Ho Chi Minh infiltration trail from North Vietnam runs through eastern Cambodia.

Members of the National Assembly met with representatives of North Vietnam for three hours to discuss Wednesday's rioting.

* * *

Sinhanouk is still out of the country. He had been in France for medical treatment when the rioting broke out. He denounced the attacks on the two embassies but left Paris for Moscow to seek Soviet help in getting the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong to withdraw.

He lunched in the Kremlin with Soviet President Nikolai Podgorny and Premier Alexei Kosygin Monday.

SEATTLE (AP) — Actress Jane Fonda sued U.S. Defence Secretary Melvin Laird Monday for alleged government violation of her constitutional right and said her anti-war stand may cost her an academy award.

"There are some very powerful people in my profession who take an opposite political stand," she said. "I could lose the Oscar over this."

* * *

Miss Fonda has been nominated for best actress award for her role in the movie, They Shoot Horses, Don't They?

"In the past other actresses who took unpopular political stands have lost their chances for an Oscar," she said. "I hope it's not true — I hope things have changed."

* * *

Miss Fonda and her attorney, Mark Lane of New York, were thrown off two army posts in the Seattle area March 8 and warned not to return when they tried to talk with servicemen and demonstrating American Indians. Lane was a vice-presidential candidate with black civil rights activist Dick Gregory in the last presidential election.

The suit, filed for Miss Fonda and Lane by the American Civil Liberties Union, asked the U.S. district court to declare the army's actions unconstitutional and enjoin the army from enforcing its order against their re-entering Ft. Lawton and Ft. Lewis.

"If they rescind the order," Miss Fonda said, "the first thing I'll do is return to Fort Lewis."

U.S. Jet Decision Due

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — The state department will announce later this week whether the United States will supply more jet aircraft to Israel, the White House said Monday.

The White House disclosure, 15 days after the expiry of President Nixon's original deadline for announcing his decision on the Israeli request, came amid increasing belief that Israel will be turned down.

Israel is reported to have asked for two dozen or more supersonic Phantom F-4 fighter-bombers and 80 slower A-4 Skyhawks.

On the Middle East front an Israeli military spokesman said Israeli jets struck across the Suez canal twice Monday, engaging Egyptian interceptors in dogfights and shooting down a Soviet-built MiG-21.

The two air raids, both against central sectors of the Suez canal, came on the heels of two Israeli commando attacks inside Syrian territory for the first time since the June, 1967, war, it was reported.

In the first of the commando raids, shortly before midnight Sunday night, helicopter-borne troops destroyed a high-tension power pylon 12 miles northeast of Damascus, plunging the eastern sector of the Syrian capital into darkness.

In the second raid commandos blew up a bridge and two pillboxes six miles from Golan Heights.

Colonist Legislature Report

B.C. should prohibit the transfer of any land titles in perpetuity to non-Canadian absentee owners, Robert Williams (NDP—Vancouver East) said Monday night.

He told the Legislature during the debate on the principle of the proposed new Land Act that the bill pays only lip service to the government's announced intention of discouraging foreign ownership of crown land.

* * *

Non-nationals can get around the proposed law by employing a "simple dodge" Williams said. All they need do is form a private B.C. company which can then apply for and receive title to lands in the province.

The NDP member said the Land Registry Act should be amended without delay to prevent all transfers of land in future if not retroactively as well, to non-national absentee owners except under a leasehold agreement.

* * *

Second reading was passed at midnight by a vote of 42 to 5 with the Liberal MLAs opposed.

Williams said the bill before the House was simply an updating of an old statute and will have to be rewritten in the near future to plug the loopholes in it.

He said it does not, as it should, require all crown land to be allocated by bid only. "This government which believes so fervently in the market place is unwilling to test the market when it should," the NDP member said.

He added it should place a limit on all tenure and fails to make any attempt to clean up the government's "messy, tarnished image" resulting from transfers of park land.

The government's land use committee, which Williams described as potentially a major reform in the use of land in B.C., is dealt with only in passing by the bill under the heading "miscellaneous."

Williams said the bill also leaves the director of lands too much discretion as the final arbiter of the highest and best use of crown land in the province. Williams added: "Since the director does not have the staff needed this, too, is only lip service."

The NDP member tried to move adjournment of the debate at 11:05 p.m., saying that this was a major piece of legislation which required full study by members. The motion was defeated by the government on a vote of 33 to 15 and the House continued to sit.

Tenant Bill Voted In

It's 'Cruel Hoax' But Step Ahead

An NDP member told the Legislature Monday night the government is guilty of "a cruel hoax" by suggesting landlords will be thwarted in any attempt to raise rent without at least a three-month notice.

Gordon Dowding (NDP—Burnaby-Edmonds) made the charge during the debate on the principle of the proposed new Landlord and Tenant Act which was later given unanimous approval.

Opposition members attacked a number of what they claimed were the bill's shortcomings but finally supported the measure on grounds that it was a big improvement over the present law.

* * *

Dowding said he checked and found the largest landlord organization in Vancouver, which rents 2,200 apartments, does so on a monthly contract basis. He said the bill would allow a landlord in such cases to give a tenant one-month notice, then raise the rent for the new occupant without having to wait the required three months.

"Landlords must not be allowed to get around the law — so it becomes in effect, a cruel hoax," Dowding said. was ordered by Speaker William Murray to withdraw the word hoax and did so, substituting the phrase "a cruel disappointment."

But Won't Turn Raise Down

McGeer Says Nay to Pay

Only Liberal leader Pat McGeer raised an objection to the second reading of a bill in the Legislature Monday which will raise MLAs' pay from $8,000 to $10,000 a year.

McGeer's speech was short and echoed his budget-day complaints that a pay raise for MLAs was not in line with calls for restraint from federal and provincial governments in their fight against inflation.

"When the call for restraint comes," said McGeer, "I took it seriously."

But McGeer said later he will not turn down the raise when it comes. He first said he was opposed when the raise was announced budget day, Feb. 6.

In the House he said his objection was a "personal" matter, and he was not followed by his four Liberal colleagues when a voice vote was taken approving the measure and registering McGeer's lone "no."

The raise comes in the form of amendments to the Constitution Act, which also provides for a change in the

All Players Numbered In $3,000,000 'Game'

REDWOOD CITY, Calif. (Reuters) — A judge asked trial lawyers to retire and put numbers on their backs when 40 lawyers representing 60 clients turned up in court here Monday to battle for a portion of a $6,000,000 will.

"You can't tell the players without a program," Judge James O'Keefe said, adding he hoped none of the lawyers would be offended by having to wear identifying placards.

The vast legal throng congregated in San Mateo County Superior Court for a hearing on the will of financier George Whittell, who left half of his fortune to "the society for the prevention of cruelty to animals local or national."

There is no national society in the United States and he did not specify a specific local society, prompting animal-loving organizers from all over America to claim the money.

The other half of the bequest went to the Defenders of Wild Life organization and the National Audubon Society, which were each specifically awarded one-quarter of the estate.

Boarding Homes for Elderly

Grants Going Up

ture will raise the amount of government and other sponsoring grants to subsidized boarding homes for elderly citizens.

The bill, which amends the Elderly Citizens' Housing Act, increases the provincial government's share of "boarding home low-rental housing units" from one-third to 35 per cent, while increasing the share borne by municipality, regional district or other non-profit donors from 10 to 15 per cent.

The sharing formula for "self-contained low-rental housing units" remains at one-third and 10 per cent.

The government also introduced a bill that clarifies several aspects of the Regional Hospital Districts Act.

The amendments include provision for appointment of deputy chairman, clarification of tax-exempt status of property owned by a district, authorization of executive committees' right to do routine business, clarification of the basis of taxation as being similar to school taxation, the ability to increase the term for temporary borrowing for capital and non-capital purpose, and clarification of voters' qualifications.

A third bill introduced a bill to amend the Mineral Act in which new provisions are proposed for purchase of surface rights by the owner of a mineral claim. One change increases the fee for surface rights grant from $10 to $25.

Two Plead for Aged

A Socred and Liberal MLA joined Monday in appealing to the government for more financial help for tenants and elderly people in meeting rising municipal taxes.

The appeal was made first by Allan Williams (L — West Vancouver-Howe Sound) and later by Dr. Scott Wallace (SC — Oak Bay) during debate in the Legislature on approval in principle of a bill to raise the homeowner grant $10 to $160.

Williams said tenants are placed at a disadvantage by the homeowner grant because they must still contribute to "steadily rising" local taxation through rental payments and get no relief from the government.

In the case of elderly people on fixed income, the Liberal member said, the government should make an additional grant up to the full amount of local taxes to those who wish to retain ownership of their homes.

Williams suggested the government may wish to recover the additional amount when the home is finally sold.

Wallace said the Liberal MLA expressed many of the views he held but added he wished to make a special appeal for the elderly.

The Socred member said elderly residents of Hamilton, Ont., have a choice of two means of reducing the burden of local taxation on their homes.

Bennett: Same For All

★ ★ ★

Pensioners who meet residence and earning requirements can get $100 a year as a grant from the city or qualify at age 65 for an allowance of $150 a year from the provincial government which is repayable when the property is finally put for sale.

Last year in Hamilton, Wallace said, more than 3,500 elderly citizens applied for and received the $100 grant to help meet their taxes. He said the alternate provincial plan was "not particularly popular."

He told the House the $10 increase in B.C.s homeowner grant was worthy of support but added, "$10 extra is really only a partial solution to problems of pensioners who are not only on a fixed income but each year see the dollar buy less."

Premier Bennett, closing the debate before unanimous approval in principal was given to the bill, indicated the government would give no special treatment to any class of citizens.

"From the beginning we wanted to treat everyone the same, Bennett replied. "Many people, including pensioners, who live in small homes today pay no taxes beyond a nominal $1. And a home worth $16,000 at today's value pays no school taxes at all as a result of the homeowner grant.

"There is no situation like this existing anywhere else in Canada."

The House also gave unanimous approval in principal to a bill increasing per capita grants to municipalities by $2 to a total of $30, but not before a series of NDP and Liberal members stated the increase would not nearly cover the rising local cost of welfare services, for which it has been earmarked.

Hospital Talk Set

Health Minister Loffmark has called regional hospital authorities to his office Friday for a meeting over the Belleville Street controversy.

The issue involves the future of St. Joseph's Hospital.

A spokesman for the regional district said Monday that the talks in Loffmark's office will be a continuation of those started after the controversy began some time ago.

Attending will be members of the regional hospital district and "possibly others," said the spokesman.

Loffmark has said Belleville Street cannot dissect St. Joseph's proposed new site where St. Ann's Academy now stands, and the city says an interchange around the area would cost about $2,000,000.

The city wants a provincial contribution to the $2,000,000 bill, but Municipal Affairs Minister Campbell has virtually said "no."

Federation Lobbies

Teachers Plan Action

By CLEMENT CHAPPLE

Provincial Secretary Wesley Black stood firm Monday in the face of a warning from the B.C. Teachers' Federation that mass resignations or a strike may result from the government's refusal to increase teachers' pensions.

The warning came earlier Monday from Don Jorgenson, a member of a 19-member BCTF delegation lobbying MLAs Monday and today.

"I feel there is a very good chance this may happen," said Jorgenson. "Teachers feel they have nothing to lose and possibly something to gain by action that will make the government and the public aware of their feelings."

NO COMMENT

Asked to comment on the warning, Black said he did not wish to provoke an argument, but he said, "If that's their tactic, I have no comment."

Black, who administers the pension fund, also questioned the validity of the warning coming from someone other than the BCTF president.

He said he had indicated last week that there were no pension increases planned during "this session."

Jorgenson, a Vancouver teacher and member of the BCTF pension, said pensions are first on the agenda at the federation's annual conference, which opens next Monday.

TIME LOGICAL

He said the logical times to go through with strikes or resignations would be next fall or winter, but he said the pension committee is not empowered to compel any such action on the part of teachers, who must make up their own minds.

Jorgenson said Black confirmed that there would be no pension increases when speaking to a delegation member earlier.

He said teachers are not opposed to investing their pensions in government-sponsored bonds, but they think that the funds are not being invested to the best of the government's ability.

OUT OF LINE

He said that B.C. teachers' pensions are out of line with others in the country. A teacher earning $12,000 in Vancouver after 25 years of service gets a $346 pension compared with $651 in New Brunswick, $637 in Nova Scotia and Quebec, $620 in the federal civil service and $566 in the B.C. civil service, $533 in Ontario, $500 in Saskatchewan, $490 for B.C. Hydro and $358 in Alberta.

The top pension sought by the teachers in the top bracket is $600, but the amount teachers earning less are seeking is much less, he said.

Jorgenson also said the teachers are against the ceiling on pensions in B.C., which makes the highest pension $8,100 a year, compared with $19,000 in Ontario.

Tobacco Ad Ban Proposed

A Liberal MLA introduced a private member's bill Monday night in the Legislature that would ban all forms of tobacco advertising in B.C.

Garde Gardom (Vancouver-Point Grey) introduced the bill which would also demand that tobacco product packages carry a printed warning saying: "This product has a nicotine and tar content that is harmful to human health." The bill also would provide a maximum $1,000 fine or six months imprisonment on a summary conviction against the act's provisions.

★ ★ ★

The advertising ban which would include billboards, electric signs, handbills, price lists, publications and similar displays as well as radio and television broadcasts, would not apply to the packaging of tobacco products.

Be Wise . . . It Pays to Advertise!

Barrett Backs Weekend Jail, Pay System

Opposition leader David Barrett said Monday that even with the government's new Corrections Act which will extend emphasis on parole and probation rather than incarceration, the government does not really grasp the importance of parole.

Commenting during second reading of the Corrections Act in the Legislature, Barrett said the Scandinavian countries as well as France and Wisconsin state have proved that a system of requiring criminals to continue employment and pay for their crimes has worked.

WEEKEND JAIL

Barrett said that certain types of criminals should have social and leisure time taken away and be required to go to jail weekends — and pay their room and board during the stay.

Barrett, a former social worker whose duties included work at Oakalla Prison, told the Legislature that "the name of the game in jail is to beat the system."

The "loving walls" of the jail, where a bed and three meals are provided, constitute an adverse climate for rehabilitation, Barrett said.

GROUP THERAPY

The weekends would include group therapy, where such questions as "What is your wife doing on Saturday night?" would be asked. Several MLAs hooted at this, so Barrett said he would dispense with a lecture on the techniques of group therapy.

But he appealed to the government: "Please, no more jails constructed in B.C." The emphasis should be more and more, Barrett said, on parole and rehabilitation, and the criminal should have to pay for his crime.

As the law stands, victims of crime and the relatives and family of criminals are the ones provided with no compensation. The criminal, on the other hand, gets free room and board.

Indians to Return

Engine Trouble Foils Ellis Island Invasion

NEW YORK (UPI) — "Get a canoe" this might have been good advice Monday for Indians representing 14 tribes who were foiled in their attempt to seize Ellis Island by engine trouble on their 16-foot motorboat.

Some 20 Indians had planned to embark from the Jersey shore under the cover of darkness for the abandoned U.S. federal immigration facility.

The U.S. Coast Guard got wind of the Indian invasion and dispatched a patrol boat to the waters.

The coast guardsmen found no one, and for good reason. The Indians — men, women and children — were prevented from leaving an unidentified New Jersey shore community when the boat's engine refused to start. They announced late that they would try again another time.

Mrs. Tina Robinson, whose husband was among the group, said the Indians wanted to claim the 27½-acre island which has been unused for 16 years for an Indian commune "to carry on tribal life in the white man's city." It would be a centre for American studies, an Indian spiritual centre, a centre for ecology and a museum.

Mrs. Robinson said the Indians were affiliated with groups which have occupied Alcatraz Island in San Francisco Bay since last year and which tried Sunday to claim Ft. Lawton on Puget Sound near Seattle.

Nanaimo Parents Protest Proposal

Trustees Delay Bus Cuts

NANAIMO — An information picket by parents protesting the predicted enforcement of bus walk-limits was called off Monday when a school board official told them the action had been delayed for a week.

They left but promised they would return next Monday to protest again.

The dozen picketers showed up at Nanaimo district school bus depot, carrying placards warning that, by making children walk, there would almost certainly be traffic accidents.

★ ★ ★

Their placards echoed a similar warning by school trustees in the weeks preceding the unsuccessful referendum which was held last week. The trustees told those attending various special meetings that one of the expense reductions would be to enforce government walk-limits. Children from Grades 1 to 3 would walk 2½ miles and children in higher grades would walk three miles to school.

★ ★ ★

A school board spokesman said the matter had been discussed over the weekend resulting in a decision to defer walk-limit enforcement for one week to allow the public to be more fully informed and to ensure new pick-up areas would be known to parents, pupils and drivers.

A claim that the bus drivers would honor a picket line next week was immediately denied by Steve Plecas Canadian Union of public employees local 606 business agent.

— Agnes Flett

Picket signs brought out by parents

"It's got to be a legal picket line before any of the drivers will honor it but we certainly aren't going to run the picketers down with a bus either. Someone will have to call the police and have the picketers removed if they're blocking the road.

"But the fact is, even if we stop we aren't honoring the picket — only their lives," Plecas said.

Transportation foreman Roy Spencer said, "There was no delay.

★ ★ ★

"They weren't intending to hold buses up. I asked them about it and they said, 'definitely not' and that they were only an information picket."

There are about 1,500 students a day transported by the 15 buses. Walk-limits and other cuts necessitated by last week's defeat of a $583,000 operating budget referendum were discussed during an in-camera board meeting Monday night.

★ ★ ★

Other cuts considered were staff reductions in non teaching personnel, originally estimated at about 50.

Plecas said he thought about 35 would be CUPE members. As the total membership from Qualicum to Cowichan was 170 that would mean about one-eighth of the membership would be lost.

"I am very worried about this," he said.

Line to North Cowichan

Duncan Backs Water Supply

DUNCAN — Duncan council Monday night supported Ald Dick Benzies' recommendation to sell water to North Cowichan at a rate which will be negotiated between the two councils.

Ald. Jim Saunders, although referring to the decision as a good one, wanted to know whether the city would have enough water for its own consumers during a hot, dry summer.

Benzies stated that, according to the consulting engineer's findings, there would not be any problem because the system in the city was capable of producing 4,000,000 gallons a day.

Aldermen were told that the approximate amount of water needed by North Cowichan would amount to about 70,000,000 gallons for one year. Another proposal, suggested earlier by North Cowichan and studied by Duncan, to carry water drawn from a North Cowichan well outside the city in city mains to the municipality was "not a good idea," according to Benzies. He stated that because the city was under strict regulations of the public utilities, it could not control the quality of incoming water after permission to use the lines had been given.

He added: "We must protect the purity of our water."

Don't create more hovels within the city was Ald. Allan Kerr's plea when he suggested council should look into the possibility of providing decent housing for elderly Chinese residents who now occupy quarters in "Chinatown," close to the law courts building and a new provincial government office structure which will open within the next two months.

★ ★ ★

Kerr pointed out that the city really "had not done too much for the Chinese people," and he proposed that the old nurses' residence on Hospital Hill would be suitable for the purpose. He said necessary renovations would cost about $25,000.

Before the 1970 zoning bylaw was passed, Mayor Jim Quaife said that council, following public hearings in 1969, had decided not to rezone the site of the former Super Valu store and then, after re-assessment of the situation, had decided to enforce the bylaw.

★ ★ ★

However, the mayor pointed out council had followed legal advice from its solicitor and the property in question can be used for automotive sales in a shopping centre zone. Quaife said council had felt the expense of thousands of dollars in court costs would have been "unjustifiable."

Campbell River

Two Escape As Fire Wrecks Boat

By HELEN MITCHELL

CAMPBELL RIVER — Campbell River Fire department was called to Standard Oil Marina shortly before 2 p.m. Sunday, where a pleasure craft, owned by Ray Rolandi of Burnaby, was destroyed by fire.

●

What could have been a serious waterfront fire was averted by prompt action of the firemen, aided by a strong southeast wind which blew the burning boat out into the channel, away from the marina.

The service station is located on a scow at the end of the floats behind the breakwater where a considerable number of pleasure and other craft tie up for the winter — next to the government ferry slip.

The boat, a 17-foot double Eagle, was valued at $2,500 to $3,000. Damage to the marina is estimated by manager Ernie Lee to be between $2,000 to $3,000.

It is believed to be covered by insurance. It is not known if the boat was covered by insurance.

Fire Chief Bill MacIntosh said it was believed the fire was caused by a spark from an electric motor as old gasoline was being pumped from the boat by Art Rolandi, the owner's brother.

★ ★ ★

The flames burned through the moorings which tied the boat to the end of the scow. All the windows in the service station building were broken by the heat of the flames.

Mr. Rolandi escaped from the boat through a front window. His son Mike, 15, also on the boat, received slight burns.

Another fire in the Campbell River area put the Elk Falls mill operation out of commission until about midnight Monday. The blaze was in an electrical sub-station at the mill which closed down the operation of the pulp mill and sawmill division, affecting about 1,100 men.

★ ★ ★

A company spokesman said that the cause was unknown and that there had been no estimate of the damage to the sub-station.

Campbell River firemen were called to help mill firemen — employees who have received firefighting training.

Shelter Plea Made

COURTENAY — Every dog must have its day and if a group of Courtenay women has its way, Fido's last day will come in a more humane manner than at present.

Early in January a group calling itself the Animal Action group, sent a letter to city council asking for $2,000. A similar letter, over the signature of Mrs. Helen Beaugrand, was sent to Comox council with a request for the same sum.

Courtenay clerk-administrator W. C. Moore said the letter was answered explaining that the request had not been granted because of a lack of information.

All the letter outlined was that the money would be used for erection of a shelter.

This week a group of women declared its intention to form a branch of the SPCA and said one of its first duties would be to convince council of the need for an electrificator, estimated to be worth about $800.

At present, dogs in the city pound are shot after the claim time has elapsed.

Courtenay Woman Hurt in Crash

A Courtenay woman was reported in fair condition Monday in St. Joesph's Hospital in Victoria following a noon-hour traffic accident on the Tunnel Hill section of the Malahat highway.

Mrs. Mary Scott, Headquarters Road, suffered multiple injuries including a broken shoulder in the accident. Her husband Robert and their children Judy, 18, and Robert, 15 escaped with minor injuries.

Colwood RCMP said the Scott car was heading south when it failed to negotiate a curve, ran into a ditch, hit a bank, bounced back onto the highway, spun around and stopped.

Referendum Needs Go-Ahead

DUNCAN — Cowichan and District School Board is awaiting approval from the lieutenant-governor in council to place a $213,316 referendum before district ratepayers.

★ ★ ★

If the referendum — planned to provide essential classroom space for the increased enrolment expected next September in the area — is approved, a vote will be held in mid-April, the board said Monday evening.

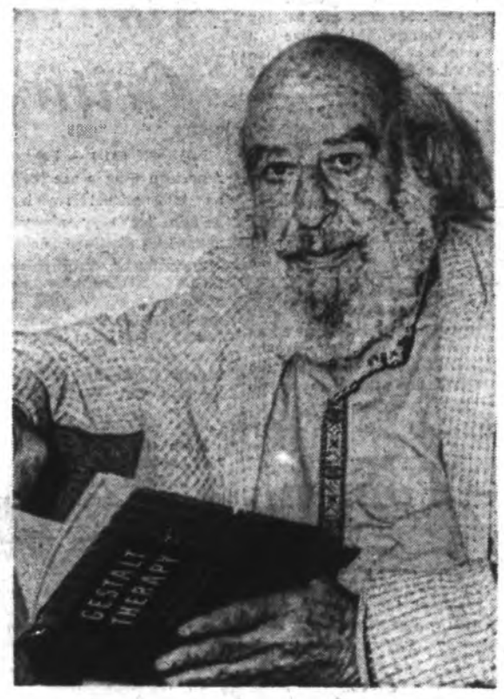

It said that the proposed referendum would contain money to build classrooms at the Alexander and Koksilah elementary schools and the Quamichan junior secondary school. It would also add to science facilities at the Mount Provost and Quamichan junior secondary school. Other congested areas would be handled by portable classrooms owned by the district.

The board tabled a resolution to approve establishment of a semester system in Cowichan senior high school next September for two years until its next regular meeting. The delay will enable trustees to study data so they will be more knowledgable in making their final dicision.

★ ★ ★

When they were presented with material Monday night they said the first time some of the trustees had even heard about the changeover was last week at an education committee meeting. Committee chairman Dick Christmas said that the principal, vice-principal and staff of the school had made a thorough study of the system and feel it was quite worthwhile.

Eric Lewis, district superintendent of schools, advised the board that time was essential in reaching a decision because of the time involved in scheduling for the semester system.

Perls, Gestalt therapy founder

Berliner Sought Freedom With Gestalt

Dr. Fritz Perls searched for freedom to help him develop his ideas about psychiatry.

Perls, author and psychiatrist, who founded the Gestalt therapy and the international Gestalt Institute, died at the weekend in Chicago. He was 76.

His most recent branch was the Gestalt Institute of Canada which was established at Lake Cowichan last year.

Perls was taken ill during a European tour and was flown to Chicago for treatment. His body is to be cremated and buried in New York.

Born in Berlin, Perls was trained as a psychoanalyst at Freudian schools in Berlin and Vienna. Ten days before he came to Canada from California, he purchased the Lake Cowichan Auto Court to establish his Canadian headquarters.

★ ★ ★

He stressed, when he opened the centre, that it was not for treatment but a training school for professional people in psychiatry, psychology and psychotherapy.

It is designed to become a centre for laymen as well.

When Hitler rose to power, Perls left Germany for South Africa where he founded the South African Institute for psychoanalysis. During the Second World War, he served as a psychiatrist with the South African Army.

★ ★ ★

However, he found the South African policy of apartheid repugnant and eventually moved to the U.S. where he founded the New York Institute of Gestalt Therapy.

Later he became disgruntled with the American system, which he felt had deteriorated, and moved on to Canada.

Janet Lederman said Monday that she would be heading the institute at Cowichan, one of seven on the North American continent. It was the first of its kind in Canada.

Speakers Test Skills

NANAIMO — Saturday night was a big one for Port Alberni and Nanaimo toastmaster clubs when division three's champion, Pat Barron of Nanaimo club 738 was chosen as best speaker.

About 70 people in the Shoreline Hotel attended the area speakoffs to hear the four representatives previously selected by their clubs as the best speakers at club competition levels.

Barron will compete in the divisional speakoffs in Duncan April 18 from which a winner will be selected to compete in the district speakoff in Victoria May 9.

★ ★ ★

In Saturday night's competition were Baron leading with his speech, And Wash Your Hands of the Whole Affair; Don Downing of Port Alberni's Sonass Club, with Tomorrow's Woods; Arnold Olson of Nanaimo's Snenymos Club, with The Wise One; and Harry Clark of Port Alberni's Klitsa Club with Don't Needle My Children.

Bands Pick Officer

DUNCAN — Members of the South Vancouver Island Tribual Federation are planning to rebuild their organization.

Newly-elected first vice-president Gordon Elliott of Duncan said Monday that the decision was taken at the federation's annual convention at Duncan Saturday.

Elliott said the group had existed for six years but it had been "quite dormant" last year.

Although the group intends to focus its attention on the problems of people within its area, it would also encourage more interest among area chiefs in the Union of B.C. Chiefs, said Elliott.

★ ★ ★

He added that the federation supported the Nishga Band which was claiming title to land in the Nass River Valley, north of Prince Rupert.

About 50 delegates attended the meeting.

Officers elected were: president, Doug White, Nanaimo; 1st vice-president, Elliott; second vice-president, Chief John Albany, Esquimalt; third vice-president, Amelia Elliott, Duncan; secretary-treasurer, Ernest Elliott, Duncan.

Gordon Elliott said that it was hoped to have the 18 chiefs from every band in the Cowichan district as directors.

Flames Burn Home

TOFINO — A new modern home, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Norman Winters, was destroyed by fire early Monday.

Neighbors awoke at about 3 a.m. to find the frame building ablaze. Effort were made to save it but the fire was beyond control, said a local resident.

Mr. and Mrs. Winters and their three children have been on holiday in Vancouver and the house was empty. The family will return to the area today.

The house is on the Ucluelet-Tofino Highway, about 10 miles from Ucluelet and two miles from Long Beach.

BRUCE LOWTHER
AbouTV

I care little for most commentators on TV, but I have to say one who interested me during the 1960s was James Minifie, the CBC's Washington man until he retired to Victoria a couple of years ago after suffering a stroke.

Minifie has done some writing and speechmaking since coming to Victoria and now, he says, he's ready to make his broadcasting "comeback." This welcome development occurs this evening on the Ideas program on CBU-FM (105.7), and the program is about the psychological masks people use to cover their weaknesses.

Broadcaster Minifie, who will discuss the masks of such world leaders as de Gaulle, says he plans to stay in Victoria but wants to get back on the air. As we want him to.

BUREAU OF USELESS INFORMATION: Saturday's answer—The question was who directed The Wrong Man, Spellbound, Marnie, To Catch a Thief, The Trouble with Harry, North by Northwest, Stage Fright and Psycho. The answer is Alfred Hitchcock, and that's what the questions will be about all week.

Today—On what landmarks did the Hitchcock movies Saboteur and North by Northwest end? Who played the villain in Rear Window? And what Hitchcock movie had a villain named Bruno? It was a brilliant job of acting, so name the late actor who brought Bruno to life. The answers Wednesday.

"Shure and I'd never be believin' in the little people if I wasn't this very minute seein' them with me own two eyes!"

Colonel Pleased with NATO Exercise

Rifles 'Tremendous'

By DON GAIN

It was almost like fighting the Battle of Narvik, the commanding officer of the First Battalion, Queen's Own Rifles of Canada, said at week's end.

Lt.-Col. Thorold Marsaw had just returned from Northern Norway where his men made up the majority of the 900-man Canadian contingent taking part in the six-nation NATO exercise Arctic Express.

★ ★ ★

The soldiers from Work Point, in their simulation exercise, fought for and occupied the same territory that was the site of the Battle of Narvik 30 years ago next month.

★ ★ ★

The Germans seized Narvik April 9, 1940 and two naval battles were fought there April 10 and 13 that year.

In the six-day manoeuvres just completed with NATO's ACE Mobile Force, the men from Esquimalt ranged from Narvik to Bardufoss, farther north.

From the moment they landed on Norwegian soil they were involved in the simulated invasion which saw Norwegian troops and British Royal Marines storming ashore from the Lofoten Islands.

"My guys did a tremendous job," the colonel said. "I was so proud of them. They were really outstanding."

He also had high praise for the Norwegian ski troops.

"They're an excellent enemy," he said. "They came swooping down on us like eagles from almost impossible locations."

Artillery support for the Queen's Own was supplied by the Third Regiment, Royal Canadian Horse Artillery of Winnipeg. Logistical support came from No. 1 Combat Group in Calgary. Six Iroquois helicopters from 403 Helicopter Squadron in Petawawa, Ont., accompanied the troops.

"We got excellent service out of our army choppers, which gave us a fantastic manoeuverability in the mountains," Marsaw said.

The troops dug into waist-high snow to pitch their Arctic tents when they were in one place long enough, he said.

But when they had to race across the countryside in round-the-clock operations, they sometimes went 26 hours without putting their heads down, their commanding officer said.

The days quickly grow longer at this time of year and by the time the exercise was over, it was light from 6 a.m. till 5 p.m.

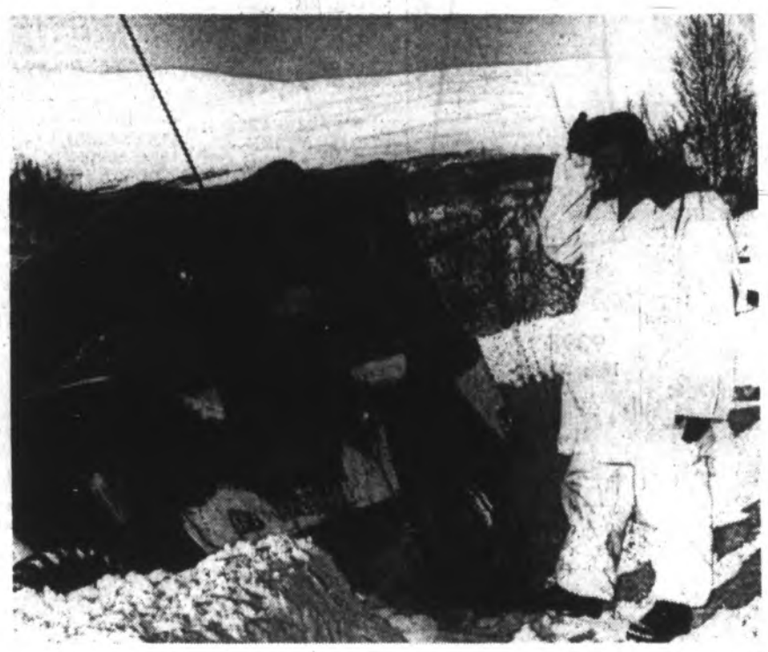

The lowest temperature the troops experienced was 32 degrees below zero. But for the most part the temperature hovered above zero. There was brilliant sunshine most days.

Five ships from NATO's Standing Naval Force Atlantic at Norfolk, Va., under the command of Commodore D. S. Boyle of Revelstoke, took part in the exercise.

The airlift that began Feb. 23 from Patricia Bay to Bardufoss was completed in reverse Friday when the last of 600 men and 80 vehicles was returned.

Yukon and Hercules aircraft were used. An equipment sealift from Narvik to Halifax is being supplied by HMCS Bonaventure.

Summing up the exercise, Marsaw said, "We went over with the idea of strengthening our NATO ties and also of assuring our allies that Canada is serious about her commitment to the north and I think we came away having accomplished that."

Church Move On Poverty Spurs Doubt

Victoria's poor have little hope that the latest church drive to eliminate poverty will change their situation, says the Victoria Low-Income Group's vice-president.

"The churches have talked for centuries about helping the poor, but talk is all they do," Elaine Olszewski said Saturday.

She was commenting on a newly-announced Canada-wide move to eliminate poverty at home and abroad by a coalition of 40 church and voluntary agencies.

★ ★ ★

Mrs. Olszewski noted that one of the Roman Catholic Church's project is the allocation of Lent Sunday collections to self-help projects in Latin America, Africa and Asia.

"They seem to be overlooking the fact that there are poor people in Canada and self-help organizations right across the country," she said.

Mrs. Olszewski said a series of events had shattered her belief in the sincerity of the church to act in helping the poor.

★ ★ ★

Latest rebuff, she said, came when 70 brochures were mailed to Victoria churches asking for help in setting up an office in the city where poor people could find help.

"We had only one reply from the 70 letters," she said. "That was a very generous $100 donation from Bishop Remi de Roo."

Mrs. Olszewski said there were similar offices in other cities, notably Toronto and Calgary, where people with problems could turn for assistance.

"Very often people don't know where to go — our Low Income Group will help anyone, but then a stranger doesn't know who to ask for. We need an office with its own telephone listing and steady help at all hours.

"It seems to me the first thing needed is for the poor to be consulted by the people who think they will give help," she said.

"The coalition seeking to abolish poverty doesn't seem to include representatives of the underprivileged.

"This underlines part of our problem — we are treated as social outcasts.

"I don't mind being poor, but I do mind being poverty-stricken, which is the level many of us have to live at, and I do mind being a social outcast.

"They don't seem to have included even representatives from old age pensioners groups.

"Unless something changes and the churches start talking to us, and listening, then this whole movement will be a sham, as other movements have been in the past," said Mrs. Olszewski.

Feeding Today

New Whale 'Has Heart'

By DON COLLINS

The little white whale the world is waiting to see is apparently just as eager to see the world.

●

"The little white fellow is by far the most curious of the lot of them," owner Bob Wright said Saturday night after the five recently-captured killer whales were moved into individual pens at Pedder Bay.

"He wants to see what's going on and he came right into the area where we wanted them ahead of all the others. He's got lots of heart and a real personality."

It took from 11 a.m. Saturday until nightfall to herd the five whales into their pens.

★ ★ ★

There they will be kept until eventual removal to Wright's Sealand of the Pacific at Oak Bay.

It is in the pens where Sealand trainer Graeme Ellis begins the tricky job today of trying to get the whales to accept food given them by humans.

"I think the younger ones might take to it readily enough," Wright said. "But with the others, it might take a little longer."

The albino whale, which appears to be one of the youngest, is thought to be two to three years old.

★ ★ ★

The diet will consist of herring and vitamins — an awful lot of herring.

"It's going to be 100 pounds each per day — that is, once they've all taken to the feeding by man," Wright said.

Once this has been accomplished they will be moved to Sealand. But not before.

Wright isn't able yet to say how long this may take. He is also uncertain yet whether they will be moved over the water or overland by truck.

Before they are moved a three-camera crew representing French oceanographer Jacques Cousteau will begin underwater filming for a television special.

★ ★ ★

However, until the whales get used to Ellis, and he is able to feed them readily, all other people, including photographers, are being kept at a respectable distance.

Wright said the French camera crew had been filming the whales from the surface and the air Friday and Saturday and "I think they've got some tremendous shots."

"They must have used up 2,000 feet of film in the two days," he said.

The cameramen expect to be filming the albino and its four normal-colored friends for possibly three weeks.

"We heard about the white whale in Paris," said chief cameraman Ronald Church. "We know such a whale is unique and thought this was a good opportunity to make a film on killer whales."

The three cameramen arrived late Thursday with a half a ton of underwater photographic equipment.

The goal, according to Church, is to attempt to show in film man's relationship with mammals.

It will be the first such TV feature ever made on killer whales, Church said.

★ ★ ★

The albino is the only one of its kind in captivity. Wright says he has turned down offers from many parts of the world for the mammal. He feels it is worth more than $250,000, but says he does not intend to sell it.

The whales were captured March 1 off Race Rocks by a 16-man team from Sealand.

While the white whale's personality is apparently quite evident to Wright, its sex is not.

No one (with the possible exception of other whales) has been able to discover yet whether it is male or female.

Victoria Asks Probe Into Quadra Blaze

The provincial fire marshal's office in Vancouver has been asked to investigate a blaze that caused heavy damage Saturday afternoon to the former Holy Angels School at Quadra and North Park.

Victoria Fire Chief Eric Simmons said that expertise was sought after his department could not decide on the cause of the fire that started in the basement.

There was no estimate of the damage to the former Roman Catholic school now owned by nearby Glad Tidings Temple.

★ ★ ★

Firefighter Robert Brown was hit on the shoulder when part of a ceiling collapsed. He was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital and released after treatment in the emergency department.

Simmons said it took firefighters about 45 minutes to bring the blaze under control after it was reported about 1:35 p.m.

The former Holy Angels School is a C-shaped structure and the fire was confined to the east wing, the side facing Quadra. The fire went up the exterior walls and mushroomed in the loft.

★ ★ ★

Simmons said he first thought it was caused by an electrical failure but that has since been ruled out and the fire marshal's office has been called in.

The only occupant of the building was a tenant — a hairdressing firm specializing in wigs — that was in the east wing. The rest of the place was vacant.

A spokesman for Glad Tidings Temple said about one-third of the building was heavily damaged. Insurance adjusters were on the scene and the loss would be calculated later.

The original school was opened Nov. 28, 1940, by the Sisters of Our Lady of the Angels.

★ ★ ★

It generally was a Chinese mission school and was operated by that Roman Catholic order until 1964. In that year, it was taken over by the Sisters of St. Ann, who changed the name to St. Andrew's School.

For the next four years, the Sisters of St. Ann ran the school until, in 1968, St. Andrew's switched to the building formerly occupied by St. Louis College.

The Catholics sold the school to Glad Tidings Temple in 1969.

Holdup Pair Wield Knife

A 66-year-old man was robbed at knife-point by two youths as he walked home in downtown Victoria around midnight Saturday.

Police said Oliver Leslie Pirie, of 712 Yates, was walking from the curling rink to his residence and had taken a shortcut through a vacant lot joining the 800 block North Park with the 800 block Fisgard when he was seized from behind by two youths.

★ ★ ★

The youths threw him against the wall at the rear of Robinson's Press and one of them held a knife to his head just behind his right ear and demanded his wallet and his money, police said.

Pirie surrendered the wallet, which contained about $47 plus various papers, and the youths fled south through the vacant lot.

★ ★ ★

Police said there was a suggestion that the other youth, who appeared to have been holding something, had held a gun.

The youths were described as being about 17 or 18 years of age, wearing dark clothes and had shoulder-length hair.

Investigation is continuing.

White Paper Stalls Harbor

By HUBERT BEYER

Plans for the proposed $25,000,000 Victoria Wharf Street development have been stalled and may be scrapped.

"I think that under the present circumstances, the project will not become a reality," J. A. Reid, president of Reid Properties Ltd. who conceived the project, said from Vancouver Monday.

Reid told the Colonist in an interview that federal Finance Minister Edgar Benson's proposed white paper on taxation was responsible for the change of plans.

"We have examined the minister's proposals and we have come to the conclusion that the Reid Development will not go ahead if the so-called tax reforms are adopted by the Commons," he said.

Reid said some of the white paper proposals discouraged the inflow of foreign capital, especially American.

"As a result of this, Canada has become bad news for foreign investors and without foreign capital, there is no chance for the Reid Development in Victoria."

The $25,000,000 development, key to urban renewal on Wharf Street, was to have been started this summer.

Plans included a three-tower complex below Bastion Square. The hotel was to have 160 rooms in the 10 top storeys of a 24-floor tower. Other space was to be occupied by offices.

Two other towers were to contain 292 apartment units. The entire project was to be completed by the spring of 1972.

"The federal government must take responsibility for this decision," Reid said.

"They have created an unhealthy atmosphere for investors; the white paper means a death blow to this scheme."

Reid said Prime Minister Trudeau was misusing his mandate to destroy economic development.

"I think he should go back to the people and ask them if that's what they want him to do," he said.

Reid said difficulties arising from negotiations with Ocean Cement Ltd., which would have to move its present facilities had been overcome.

"These negotiations were a problem at one time, but we've pretty well settled the matter now," he said.

Among other proposals, the Benson white paper calls for:

- Canada's first capital gains tax.
- Abolition of the three-year tax-free period for min-

Anti-Viet Protests Renewed

PHNOM PENH (AP) — Cambodian youths renewed their demands Monday for the withdrawal of North Vietnamese and Viet Cong guerrilla troops from Cambodia. More than 20,000 of them marched before the National Assembly, denounced the Viet Cong in speeches, then dispersed quietly.

Cambodian troops armed with United States-made M-16 rifles stood by. Some of the youths carried signs reading, Viet Cong Go Home. One waved a poster showing Cambodian soldiers skewering Viet Cong on a giant bayonet.

★ ★ ★

There was one incident. A youth who assailed the nation's leader, Prince Norodom Sihanouk, was severely beaten by about a dozen students.

The demonstration followed the ransacking by youths last Wednesday of the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese embassies in Phnom Penh. After that, the Cambodian government set a deadline of dawn last Sunday for the withdrawal of all North Vietnamese and Viet Cong forces in Cambodia.

★ ★ ★

U.S. officials in South Vietnam said they saw no sign that the 40,000 to 60,000 Viet Cong or North Vietnamese had left their Cambodian sanctuaries, from which they had been launching or directing attacks against U.S. and South Vietnamese government troops. The Ho Chi Minh infiltration trail from North Vietnam runs through eastern Cambodia.

Members of the National Assembly met with representatives of North Vietnam for three hours to discuss Wednesday's rioting.

★ ★ ★

Sinhanouk is still out of the country. He had been in France for medical treatment when the rioting broke out. He denounced the attacks on the two embassies but left Paris for Moscow to seek Soviet help in getting the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong to withdraw.

He lunched in the Kremlin with Soviet President Nikolai Podgorny and Premier Alexei Kosygin Monday.

Miss Fonda has been nominated for best actress award for her role in the movie, They Shoot Horses, Don't They?

"In the past other actresses who took unpopular political stands have lost their chances for an Oscar," she said. "I hope it's not true — I hope things have changed."

Miss Fonda and her attorney, Mark Lane of New York, were thrown off two army posts in the Seattle area March 8 and warned not to return when they tried to talk with servicemen and demonstrating American Indians. Lane was a vice-presidential candidate with black civil rights activist Dick Gregory in the last presidential election.

The suit, filed for Miss Fonda and Lane by the American Civil Liberties Union, asked the U.S. district court to declare the army's actions unconstitutional and enjoin the army from enforcing its order against their re-entering Ft. Lawton and Ft. Lewis.

"If they rescind the order," Miss Fonda said, "the first thing I'll do is return to Fort Lewis."

Snakes Hide Grass

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Customs Bureau said Monday it had found some grass in the snakes.

The bureau said it discovered 85 pounds of marijuana hidden under a shipment of boa constrictors sent into the country through the port of Miami. The origin of the snakes and the grass was not disclosed.

U.S. Jet Decision Due

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — The state department will announce later this week whether the United States will supply more jet aircraft to Israel, the White House said Monday.

The White House disclosure, 15 days after the expiry of President Nixon's original deadline for announcing his decision on the Israeli request, came amid increasing belief that Israel will be turned down.

Israel is reported to have asked for two dozen or more supersonic Phantom F-4 fighter-bombers and 80 slower A-4 Skyhawks.

On the Middle East front an Israeli military spokesman said Israeli jets struck across the Suez canal twice Monday, engaging Egyptian interceptors in dogfights and shooting down a Soviet-built MiG-21.

The two air raids, both against central sectors of the Suez canal, came on the heels of two Israeli commando attacks inside Syrian territory for the first time since the June, 1967, war, it was reported.

In the first of the commando raids, shortly before midnight Sunday night, helicopter-borne troops destroyed a high-tension power pylon 12 miles northeast of Damascus, plunging the eastern sector of the Syrian capital into darkness.

In the second raid commandos blew up a bridge and two pillboxes six miles from Golan Heights.

San Francisco Strike Over

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The four-day city employees strike ended officially Monday night as six striking unions ratified a tentative agreement providing a $6,000,000 annual wage increase for 7,000 workers.

B.C. should prohibit the transfer of any land titles in perpetuity to non-Canadian absentee owners, Robert Williams (NDP—Vancouver East) said Monday night.

He told the Legislature during the debate on the principle of the proposed new Land Act that the bill pays only lip service to the government's announced intention of discouraging foreign ownership of crown land.

★ ★ ★

Non-nationals can get around the proposed law by employing a "simple dodge" Williams said. All they need do is form a private B.C. company which can then apply for and receive title to lands in the province.

The NDP member said the Land Registry Act should be amended without delay to prevent all transfers of land in future if not retroactively as well, to non-national absentee owners except under a leasehold agreement.

★ ★ ★

Second reading was passed at midnight by a vote of 42 to 5 with the Liberal MLAs opposed.

Williams said the bill before the House was simply an updating of an old statute and will have to be rewritten in the near future to plug the loopholes in it.

He said it does not, as it should, require all crown land to be allocated by bid only. "This government which believes so fervently in the market place is unwilling to test the market when it should," the NDP member said.

He added it should place a limit on all tenure and fails to make any attempt to clean up the government's "messy, tarnished image" resulting from transfers of park land.

The government's land use committee, which Williams described as potentially a major reform in the use of land in B.C., is dealt with only in passing by the bill under the heading "miscellaneous."

Williams said the bill also leaves the director of lands too much discretion as the final arbiter of the highest and best use of crown land in the province. Williams added: "Since the director does not have the staff needed this, too, is only lip service."

The NDP member tried to move adjournment of the debate at 11:05 p.m., saying that this was a major piece of legislation which required full study by members. The motion was defeated by the government on a vote of 33 to 15 and the House continued to sit.

Tenant Bill Voted In

It's 'Cruel Hoax' But Step Ahead

An NDP member told the Legislature Monday night the government is guilty of "a cruel hoax" by suggesting landlords will be thwarted in any attempt to raise rent without at least a three-month notice.

Gordon Dowding (NDP—Burnaby-Edmonds) made the charge during the debate on the principle of the proposed new Landlord and Tenant Act which was later given unanimous approval.

Opposition members attacked a number of what they claimed were the bill's shortcomings but finally supported the measure on grounds that it was a big improvement over the present law.

★ ★ ★

Dowding said he checked and found the largest landlord organization in Vancouver, which rents 2,200 apartments, does so on a monthly contract basis. He said the bill would allow a landlord in such cases to give a tenant one-month notice, then raise the rent for the new occupant without having to wait the required three months.

"Landlords must not be allowed to get around the law — so it becomes in effect, a cruel hoax," Dowding said. was ordered by Speaker William Murray to withdraw the word hoax and did so, substituting the phrase "a cruel disappointment."

But Won't Turn Raise Down

McGeer Says Nay to Pay

Only Liberal leader Pat McGeer raised an objection to the second reading of a bill in the Legislature Monday which will raise MLAs' pay from $8,000 to $10,000 a year.

McGeer's speech was short and echoed his budget-day complaints that a pay raise for MLAs was not in line with calls for restraint, from federal and provincial governments in their fight against inflation.

"When the call for restraint comes," said McGeer, "I took it seriously."

But McGeer said later he will not turn down the raise when it comes. He first said he was opposed when the raise was announced budget day, Feb. 6.

In the House he said his objection was a "personal" matter, and he was not followed by his four Liberal colleagues when a voice vote was taken approving the measure and registering McGeer's lone "no."

The raise comes in the form of amendments to the Constitution Act, which also provides for a change in the

All Players Numbered In $3,000,000 'Game'

REDWOOD CITY, Calif. (Reuters) — A judge asked trial lawyers to retire and put numbers on their backs when 40 lawyers representing 60 clients turned up in court here Monday to battle for a portion of a $6,000,000 will.

"You can't tell the players without a program," Judge James O'Keefe said, adding he hoped none of the lawyers would be offended by having to wear identifying placards.

The vast legal throng congregated in San Mateo County Superior Court for a hearing on the will of financier George Whittell, who left half of his fortune to "the society for the prevention of cruelty to animals local or national."

There is no national society in the United States and he did not specify a specific local society, prompting animal-loving organizers from all over America to claim the money.

The other half of the bequest went to the Defenders of Wild Life organization and the National Audubon Society, which were each specifically awarded one-quarter of the estate.

Victoria Student Involved

Girl Joins 'Invasion'

A student at Victoria's Institute of Adult Studies was among a group of Indians who, during the weekend, "invaded" Fort Lawton, a U.S. army post in Washington state the Indians claim under an 1865 treaty.

However, it was learned late Monday that Wendy Sparrow, whose home is on the Musqueam Reserve near Vancouver, was not one of the 77 Indians who subsequently were detained by American authorities.

★ ★ ★

Chief Philip Paul of the Tsartlip Band, who is a counsellor at the adult studies centre, said he had been expecting to see Miss Sparrow in Victoria Monday but he had no idea what detained her.

There were 22 Canadian Indians among the 77. Fourteen of them, including one from Canada, appeared before a U.S. Commissioner Monday afternoon, charged with illegal entry into Fort Lawton.

The United Indians of All Tribes, as the group calls itself, wants Fort Lawton for an Indian university and culture centre.

★ ★ ★

The U.S. defence department has announced that the post, now used for reserve training, will be deactivated this summer and Seattle wants it as a park.

The "invasion" took place just before dawn Sunday after the Indians scaled a 70-foot cliff to the edge of Fort Lawton.

After a sentry passed, they hurried on to the fort grounds, set up a teepee, started a fire and began performing war dances.

★ ★ ★

Chief Paul said Canadian Indian participation could have been expected because natives on both sides of the 49th parallel are finding they have common objectives.

"The Indian people are becoming aware of suppression . . . and their only hope is in banding together," said Paul, adding that the establishment of the U.S.-Canadian boundary was accomplished without consulting Indians.

★ ★ ★

He explained that the takeover of Fort Lawton and its conversion to an Indian culture centre was a reaction to the type of education system that has been imposed on natives.

Paul said Miss Sparrow went to Seattle for the weekend clearly supporting those objectives — "she was 100 per cent behind the claims."

In Seattle, 150 Indians danced and chanted to the beat of drums outside the federal courthouse Monday as the fourteen charged appeared for arraignment.

Charges against one man, Canadian Bob Hall of Chilliwack were dismissed.

The other 13 will enter pleas March 26 during a preliminary hearing set by U.S Commissioner Walter Reseburg in a tiny courthouse jammed with relatives, newsmen and Indian leaders.

Boundary Elimination Approved by Board

Greater Victoria students appeared a step closer Monday night to an education system based on what has been described as a unique philosophy — one that would eliminate school boundaries and allow attendance at either highly liberal or old-fashioned schools.

Approved in principle by the Greater Victoria school board were plans creating certain areas of optional school attendance next September.

This is considered the first step toward removal of all school attendance boundaries.

The idea was first put forward last fall by District Superintendent A. J. Longmore.

★ ★ ★

At Monday night's board meeting Education Director Dr. John Wiens spoke in favor of a system that would allow both the old traditional conservative form of school, as well as that to be found in the other extreme — the free school.

He felt there was considerable support for both extremes.

"I personally don't think there's one best way," he said.

He said also that he didn't think the free school concept "ever had a fair chance to prove what it can do."

This system allows the student much more freedom of choice in a more relaxed atmosphere. The Craigdarroch school, which operated in this manner for more than three years, was closed chiefly because of financial problems.

★ ★ ★

Wiens said a school system as big as that in Greater Victoria should be allowed to "go ahead" without boundaries and with schools offering a wide choice to the students.

He said the philosophy behind the idea was "unique."

Some local school authorities agreed afterwards that his choice of the word "unique" might be appropriate. They said they know of no other such system in Canada.

★ ★ ★

Maps released at the meeting outlined these optional attendance areas for next September:

Senior high schools: Those in an area bounded by Maplewood, Glendenning, Tattersall, Queensbury and Blenkinsop would have the choice of Mount Douglas or Reynolds.

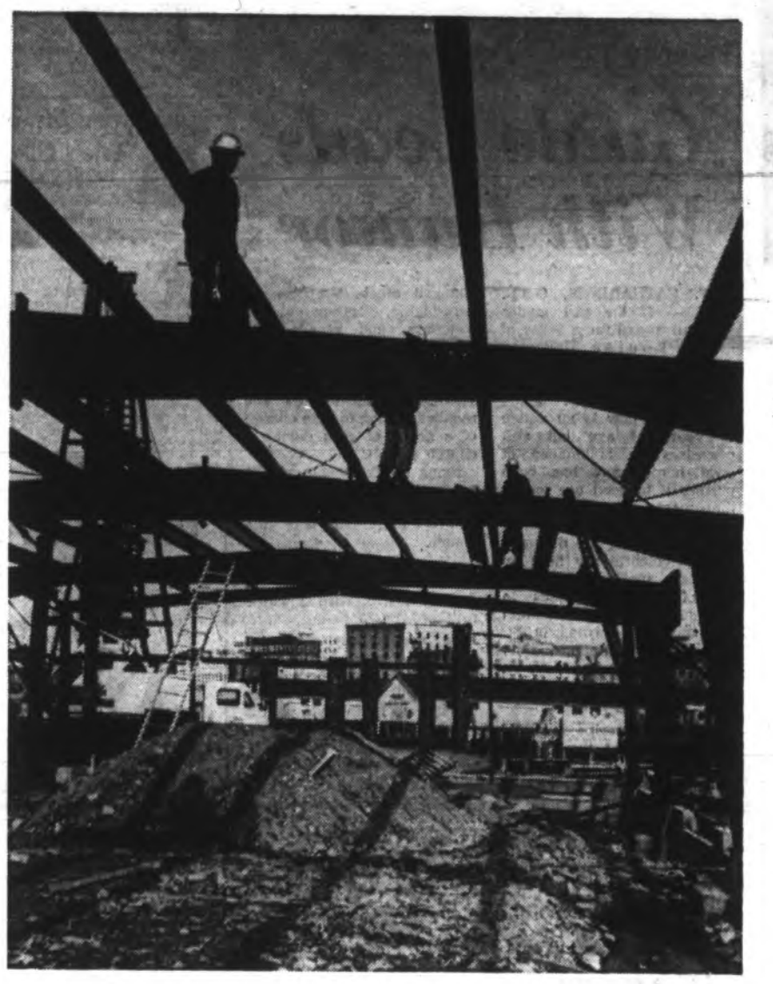

Mount Douglas comes into the picture again as an option with Oak Bay for a zone between the Saanich-Oak Bay border, Woodburn, Lansdowne and Cedar Hill Cross Road.

The choice would be between Mount View and Victoria high school for residents of an area bounded by Finlayson, part of Gorge Road, Harriet, Burnside, Tolmie and Cook.

Junior high schools: People between Helmcken, Burnside and Stillwater would be given the option of Shoreline and Colquitz.

For those in a long strip bordered by Feltham, Tyndall and Torquay, the choice is to be Mount Douglas and the new Arbutus high school.

There is also a plan to eliminate the attendance boundaries between five elementary schools in the Gordon Head area — Fairburn, Gordon Head, Frank Hobbs, Hillcrest and Shelbourne, which is to be renamed Campus elementary.

Harbor's Facelift Begins

Four days after Victoria city council relaxed setback requirements at Inner Harbor, $1,000,000 Canadian Pacific development is starting to take shape. Prefabricated buildings are being constructed on 10-acre area between Belleville and Inner Harbor to transform conglomeration of shacks and warehouses into tourist attraction containing boutiques, shopping centre, seafood restaurant and dance pavilion. Marathon Realty, subsidiary of Canadian Pacific, says project will be completed before tourist season begins. — (William A. Boucher.)

Quebecer Given 10-Year Terms

Six concurrent 10-year prison terms were handed out Monday in Provincial Court at Sidney to a 32-year-old Quebec man who has spent most of his adult life in prison.

Judge M. F. Peiler gave the sentences—concurrent means they run at the same time—to Yvon Fortin, who pleaded guilty in the same court March 3 to five charges of breaking, entering and theft and one charge of breaking and entering with intent to steal.

★ ★ ★

The maximum sentence that could have been imposed on each charge was 14 years.

RCMP Constable C. M. Lindsay, acting as prosecutor, read to court a criminal record for Fortin that dated back to 1954. It showed about 35 convictions for which he was sentenced to a total of more than 25 years in prison. Most of the convictions were for breaking and entering and all were in Quebec.

★ ★ ★

The record showed Fortin was released from a Quebec prison last October after serving a lengthy term for break-ins. Court was also told he arrived in Sidney soon after.

The six charges on which Fortin was sentenced Monday involved break-ins between Jan. 1 and Feb. 18. In one, nothing was taken; in four, loot was of a minor nature, and in the sixth, $2,000 worth of clothing was stolen from Ganes' clothing store in Sidney.

★ ★ ★

Peiler also sentenced two former Quebec men, who lived in Sidney with Fortin, after they pleaded guilty March 3 to charges of possessing clothing stolen from Ganes' store. Roger Ipperciel, 26, was given one day in jail and a two-year probationary term while Michel Bisson, 26, received a two-year probationary term.

Monterey School

Renovations Get Approval

Monterey elementary school will be renovated, the provincial education department announced Monday night.

Oak Bay Ald, Brian Smith said he hoped the government was going to complete all the renovations needed to the south Oak Bay school.

No details were given in the education department's announcement.

Smith noted that ratepayers were disturbed when nothing was done to the school after the taxpayers voted in favor of the renovations in 1967.

★ ★ ★

"If the government is now going ahead, we are of course delighted," Smith said.

Oak Bay council recently received complaints of unsanitary and unsafe conditions at the school.

Esquimalt

Victoria Fair Wins Support

An Esquimalt alderman suggested Monday that municipal councils should not distribute taxpayers' money to events like Victoria Fair.

However, Ald. Kenneth Hill did not convince fellow aldermen, who decided Esquimalt should make a contribution to the Junior Chamber of Commerce-sponsored show.

★ ★ ★

"Victoria Fair is not the type of activity for which we should be collecting taxes," said Ald. Hill of the request that would take about $1,200 of Esquimalt's revenue.

Mayor Arthur Young pointed out the municipality gets a per capita grant of $1 from the provincial government for tourist promotion, and the Victoria Fair grant could be considered such a project.

Esquimalt's contribution to the May 11-16 fair would be about 8 per cent of a $14,000 grant from that municipality, Saanich, Victoria and Oak Bay.

However, Esquimalt pointed out that its gift would be contingent on the other intermunicipal contributions.

The Red Cross fell 40 units short of its 150-pint quota in its blood donor clinic Monday. A second clinic will be held today at Red Cross House, 1016 Fort, between 1:30 and 4:30 and between 6:30 and 9:00 p.m.

Power Pole Fight Urged

Saanich Ald. William Noel said Monday night he hoped groups of individuals would come forward to fight a B.C. Hydro proposal that 75-foot-high steel power poles be erected on Interurban and Burnside roads.

Mayor Hugh Curtis said he agreed wholeheartedly.

Both men attended a meeting Monday morning of Victoria and Saanich officials with four representatives of B.C. Hydro in Saanich municipal hall.

★ ★ ★

Curtis told the meeting that "the opinion of local government is that it is no longer acceptable to inflict this overhead transmission line on the environment."

Noel said the overhead line would be "a retrograde step "and a monstrous thing." People would prefer to pay a little extra in rates not to have lines overhead, he said.

Victoria Ald. Peter Pollen called the proposed plan "an environmental tragedy." He said he recognized Hydro's financial problems but standards had to be set in urban areas.

The overhead line would tend to condemn the area to substandard redevelopment, Curtis said.

★ ★ ★

B.C. Hydro's transmission design engineer W. D. Gill of Vancouver told the meeting that "this is one job. But if this goes underground we will be faced with the same in similar areas in other parts of the province."

Cost of the underground lines has been quoted by Hydro at $303,000 a mile compared with $80,000 a mile for steel poles and $25,000 for conventional wooden poles.

A Hydro official at the meeting said a 12,000-volt distribution line was under consideration for Harriet Street, on the Victoria-Saanich boundary, to run across the Gorge at Selkirk Water.

The disputed line would run just over four miles from Interurban Road at Alan to Burnside at Douglas.

A public meeting was called last Thursday night in St. Joseph's Church Hall on West Burnside by Mrs. Maria Bown, 1266 Dunsterville, to protest the erection of the steel poles. About 75 persons attended.

Mrs. Bown said about a dozen persons are circulating petitions against it and are getting good response.

Reaction Quick In Esquimalt

Esquimalt council reacted quickly Monday night to a report that a low-voltage tentacle of B.C. Hydro's proposed power line will reach into Esquimalt.

Hydro plans to put a 132,000-volt line on 75-foot pylons from Interurban Road at Alan to Douglas and Burnside, a proposal that has been strongly denounced by Saanich.

Ald. Art Mebs told council a resident told him there are reports that a 12,000-volt extension of that system will be strung overhead to a substation in Esquimalt.

"Apparently a pylon will be adjacent to this man's home (on Craigflower Road)," said Mebs.

"I suggest a strong letter to Hydro. We should oppose this most vociferously," added the alderman.

"It's up to the people . . . If they don't want it, they shouldn't have to tolerate it." said Mebs. "This is a crown agency (Hydro) and we make it known very strongly that we are against it."

★ ★ ★

Ald. Arthur Cuthbert said residents should write letters to members of the Legislature, hoping their feelings would eventually filter back to Hydro.

He also urged municipal officials to meet with Hydro.

Mayor Arthur Young said the municipality is in no legal position to block Hydro's project and about all it can do is "protest all we want."

Woman, 80, Hit, Dies

An 80-year-old woman died in St. Joseph's Hospital about midnight Monday of injuries received when she was hit by a van at 8 p.m. while crossing Cook at Meares.

Police identified the victim as Mrs. Margaret Leask, of 820 Cook. They said driver of the van was Robert White, 49, of 449 Victoria.

Saanich Lions Help Meals Project

Saanich Lions Club has given the Meals on Wheels program a cheque for $500, Saanich Ald. William Noel said Monday.

Ald. Noel, who is chairman for the program on the community council, also said that plans for Douglas Rotary Club to make further donations are under way.

The alderman appealed for funds earlier this year to carry on the program, which costs about $4,800 a year. Upwards of 160 meals a day, five days a week, are delivered to shut-ins and people who can't make themselves a hot meal or have nobody to do it for them.

Douglas Rotary Club already has given $1,000 to the program this year. Two years ago the club donated an oven which is still in use.
